To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade?
Is it moving as it should?
No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

The transient rate for space is $1 per inch per insertion. Those who have stock to offer all or a considerable part of the year around should write for contract rates.

CALIFORNIA had its spell of hot weather last week, all records being broken at many points.

THE large new seed house erected by the A. D. Mebane Seed Co., at Lockhart, Tex., is completed and now being filled with seed.

THE Door County Seed Co., Sturgeon Bay, Wis., September 15 received the first car of peas over the new sidetrack to its warehouse at St. John and Water streets.

TEN cases of French bulbs consigned to P. C. Kuyper & Co. arrived on the Marseilles steamer which reached New York September 16, raising the season's total to 18,587 cases.

THERE seems to be no gladiolus mixture so poor that the department stores are not anxious for more; the demand for cheap bulbs never is satisfied, either by quantity or concessions.

FROM Millard county, Utah, come reports that alfalfa seed, its principal crop, is greater than for years, and of fine quality. In other sections of Utah there are better crops of alfalfa seed than usual.

ON the Bermuda boat reaching New York September 15 there were three cases of Harrisii bulbs for export. September 18 there arrived two cases consigned to L. D. Crossmond & Co. and one case to the Reitman-Pilser Co. The total receipts are now 2,300 cases.

IMPROVEMENTS are being made in its plant by the Gates City Seed Co., of Keokuk, Ia., to the extent of $6,000. The two present buildings, twenty-four feet apart, will be connected by a brick addition four stories high. Elevators and a mill are among the improvements to be added.

THERE is, perhaps, more cauliflower seed used on Long Island than elsewhere in the whole United States combined. The acreage there in cauliflower this season is about 1,800. So far the crop is not up to its usual standard. The heads are small and not filled out as they should be, due to unfavorable growing weather.

SUTTON GETS VEITCH'S SEEDS.

Announcement is made that Sutton & Sons, Reading, England, have purchased from J. Veitch & Sons, Ltd., the seed business carried on at Chelsea for the last sixty years, and this department, with the stocks of seeds and horticultural sundries, will be transferred to Sutton & Sons as from October 1, 1913. Messrs. Sutton have also purchased from Veitch & Sons the principal portion of the seed grounds at Langley, near Slough, adjoining the G. W. railway, but Messrs. Veitch's nursery trade will still be carried on

PLENTY OF ROMANS?

There has been some comment because of the fact that many, if not all, of the orders for French Romans placed by American houses were filled in full, in spite of the cry of shortage and the sharp advance in price. Not all the houses received as large sizes as they had ordered, but, apparently, most of them got as many bulbs as they had cared to order at the quotations. Without doubt the advance in price was a factor in cutting down the orders to a point where at least some of the houses find they underestimated the demand.

In this connection the following from an English trade paper is of interest:

"The cry of 'scarcity' and increased prices in Roman hyacinths, etc., is well known in past years, but the representations made in May, June, and even July of this year by many exporters and their English agents were such that every firm contracting was given to understand that bulbs would be about a fourth of usual crop, and that prices would assuredly rise, and it would be impossible for all orders to be executed, and that in all cases only a part of the quantity ordered (Roman hyacinths in particular) would be supplied.

"Now let us see what has happened, to my own knowledge.

"Firstly.—Upon these representations of extremely short crops high prices were demanded, and some exporters stipulated that unless Paper White narcissi were taken in fairly large quantity, Roman hyacinths would not be supplied.

"Secondly.—All quantities of white Roman hyacinths ordered were supplied in full, up to the last bulb.

"Thirdly.—To my certain knowledge four of the chief exporters have had surplus stocks to sell during the latter part of August, and one of these French exporters, through one of their English agents, has been offering continuous quantities for some weeks in all sizes, at much lower prices than he has sold to his earlier buyers.

"Fourthly.—Large quantities have been offered by auction by this English agent at lower prices still.

"Now, considering heavy prices paid by firms, surely this is not business, and should be stopped. Protection of some kind is necessary, as the tale is told by the agent on journey and never put into writing.

"If the large buyers throughout England would join together and exchange their experiences, I am quite sure Roman hyacinth buyers would refuse to contract above a certain price, in exactly similar way to the lily of valley buyers last year."

CLOVER SEED.

Referring to clover seed crops, Conrad Appel, Darmstadt, Germany, had this to say September 11:

"Red clover will favorably yield in Germany and in Austria, where the weather has been propitious. England and France are also expecting satisfactory results.

"The white clover crop will be better and the rates will be lower than last season; however, the bright, fine quality will again be rare.

"Alsike in Russia and Germany was satisfactory, while America is yielding little.

"Crimson clover was not much asked for, owing to the rainy weather in July, and through this the prices have come down.

"Large grained birdsfoot trefoil is late and it seems that one can only reckon upon a small crop. The small grained birdsfoot trefoil, on the contrary, shows better results than last year.

"It is still too early to be able to say anything definite about the crop of

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

A NURSERY has been started at Avon Park, Fla., by A. K. Miller. Over 30,000 trees are already set out.

THE Texas Nurserymen's Association was in session at Waco September 23 and 24, President O. M. Phillips, of Rockdale, presiding.

INCORPORATION papers have been issued to the Menary Nursery Co., Omaha, Neb., with a capitalization of $25,000. The incorporators are G. H. Keyes, R. C. Menary, F. W. Menary and A. O. Menary.

REPORTS from nurserymen of southern California indicate that the supply of orange trees is short, while the demand is strong, on account of the splendid crops this year. Half-inch trees at $1 is the basis for future retail contracts just now and $1.50 is predicted.

A SUNDAY edition of a New York daily in an extensive write-up of George W. Vanderbilt's estate at Biltmore, N. C., mentions the Biltmore Nursery, which for ten years after its establishment in 1889 was occupied in producing stock for the estate. Now it does a business of $150,000 a year and has a plant of 300 acres. A library of works on horticulture gathered for Mr. Vanderbilt by C. D. Beadle, manager of the nursery, is said to be worth $50,000.

THE Breck-Robinson Nursery Co. entertained at its plant at Lexington, Mass., September 15, 150 employees of the Joseph Breck & Sons Corporation, of Boston, with which it is connected. After a luncheon, the store baseball team beat the nursery team, and a set of games was run off, to everyone's great enjoyment. C. H. Breck, president of the corporation; Edward O. Hatch, general manager, and A. E. Robinson, manager of the nursery, assisted in the fun.

H. A. SURFACE, state zoölogist, announced before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society his discovery of an internal parasite that was cleaning the dreaded San Jose scale out of eastern Pennsylvania. This parasite, which he describes as "a hymenopteron, a minute wasp-like insect," has been so successful against the scale that, says Mr. Surface, "entire nurseries that could not get state certificates a year ago because of bad infection, are now so clean that the best inspectors have been unable to find a living scale in them this season."

THE PHOENIX ASSETS.

John Y. Chisholm, who was appointed by Judge Myers as receiver for the Phoenix Nursery Co., Bloomington, Ill., stated to a reporter September 18 that the creditors have not thus far shown a disposition to crowd matters and if this condition continues to exist a much better settlement will be made. "If they crowd us," said Mr. Chisholm, "we won't be able to pay more than 30 cents on the dollar, but if they give us time I anticipate a satisfactory settlement will be possible." Mr. Chisholm stated further that the nursery has much young stock that is practically valueless unless the creditors are lenient and give the company time to market it a little later on.

TREE SEEDS IN WISCONSIN.

The following appeared last week in a newspaper published at Sturgeon Bay, Wis.:

"Frank Graass, of this city, who has for several years been conducting a successful tree seed business in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan, with headquarters at Crivitz, Wis., will this year make this city his headquarters and from now on will conduct the business here.

"Mr. Graass' business has grown rapidly, until now he is one of the largest producers of tree seeds in the United States. In jack pine, upon which he specializes, he leads all other producers and alone gets out the bulk of that seed produced in this country.

"Cone pickers are now at work in this section, in north and south Michigan, Minnesota and different parts of Wisconsin, and shipments of cones are being received daily by boat and rail. The early seeds now being picked are white pine, Norway pine, cedar, spruce, tamarack, balsam, maple and basswood. Along in October the pickers will start gathering acorns, butter-nuts, beechnuts and jack pine. Practically all of the cones and nuts will be shipped direct to this city, but branch stations will be maintained at Crivitz and in lower Michigan, to receive nearby crops. All of the seed will be handled from this city, however, as soon as the drying process is finished for this season.

"Mr. Graass handled about 18,000 bushels of cones last year and produced about 3,000 pounds of seed. Most of the seed is sold to foreign governments, to be used in the reforestation projects now being carried on extensively in Europe. Among the countries sold to last year were Germany, Austria, France, Sweden and states in the Balkan territory.

"A new seed firm has entered the local field recently, and is known as the Wisconsin-Michigan Nursery Co. H. Cabot, of St. Louis, and Frank Welter, of this city, are the managers."

find there is a tendency for the soil of the bank to creep or slip down. We have pegged the sod. Can we plant some kind of low-growing shrubs on this slope, the roots of which would hold the soil from slipping? If so, what would you advise? B. L. W.

The various forms of salix or willows, such as S. vitellina or S. vitellina Britzensis, are undoubtedly the best for holding together any bank such as you describe, in cases where such large growers as the willows are permissible. Small plants or cuttings can be stuck in; the cuttings grow without much trouble. Such a covering, however, would soon grow too tall for you unless constantly headed back. Seeing that willows would be too robust, you could have no more suitable plant than the bayberry, Myrica gale. This does specially well along the edges of streams and lakes and will grow in sandy soil, or, in fact, in any soil which is not too dry. The planting can be done in October or April. C. W.

and the early chrysanthemums are beginning to be more plentiful, Smith's Advance being the best so far. Lilies are more plentiful, and another week will probably stop all complaint of shortage for this season.

At Schenley Park.

The season is looking much like fall, and yet in most places the frost has done little damage. Schenley park just at this time has some fine beds that are attracting considerable attention. This park always has such good work that we Pittsburghers do not all appreciate it, but visiting gardeners and others who have seen this work say it is finer than they have ever seen in either this country or Europe.

Geo. Burke, superintendent of Schenley park, was elected vice-president of the Park Superintendents' Association at the last convention in Denver.

Various Notes.

Neil McCallum, president of the Florists' Club, includes in his program for the next meeting, Monday, October 6, the discussion of all outdoor flowers, cosmos, dahlias, etc., and talks by Geo. Burke, superintendent of Schenley park, on what he saw at Denver, and W. A. Clark, on Colorado and Yellowstone Park. He asks for a crowd to start the winter meetings.

Pittsburgh is celebrating its one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary. There will be a number of parades, and it is understood there will be several florists' floats.

Mrs. Lloyd Swarthout, of Washington, Pa., who has been connected with the florists' business all her life, died suddenly last week. Her husband and two young daughters survive her.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., at Bakerstown, is installing a vacuum system in the heating plant of one of the ranges and if it comes up to expectations, the company will change the rest of their houses. The new system is expected to keep the heating pipes thoroughly drained and to save fuel.

The Blind Floral Co. is cutting some good lilies and chrysanthemums. Ed. McGrath, the manager, reports trade as having been exceptionally good for this time of year.

Randolph & McClements have been extremely busy the last week with large funeral orders.

Mrs. E. A. Williams did the decorating for McCreery & Co. last week and is still receiving congratulations for the exquisite taste displayed. The window in her own store has also been an attraction all week, arrangements of dahlias being the feature.

Wm. L. Baker, who has started a wholesale cut flower store at 120 Anderson street, Pittsburgh, desires to correct a note which appeared in one of the trade papers which gave the name Wm. J. Baker. There is a Wm. J. Baker in Philadelphia, but he is not connected in any way with the Pittsburgh establishment. Clarke.

SEPTEMBER SOWING

BY SOWING seed of Silver Pink Snapdragon during September, you can have a continuous supply of blossoms from Easter until July. Pause a moment and figure what this means. There is no other plant that can be depended upon to do half so much business nor yield half so much profit. See recent ads to find what our patrons say. A big grower who had one pkt. of seed last year has just reordered seven pkts. This is the kind of evidence that counts.

Silver Pink is easy to grow, and our free directions give the necessary rules. Our prices are low and, whether you use seeds or plants, you can have a bed at very small cost. Price of seed, over 500 to the pkt., $1.00; 3 pkts., $2.50; 7 pkts., $5.00—by return mail.

PLANTS

We have the finest plants that we have grown—about 25,000 of them, ready for shipment in October. They will be ready for the bench or potting on without further topping. Order early, even if you are not ready to bench. By getting them when ready, you will save on the price and express. If your bench is not ready, you can hold them in 3-inch pots. Figure your needs and let your order come. The price is only $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000, by express.

The Gateway to the South.

Stock is shortening up considerably. The outdoor crops that have been the mainstay during the summer season are nearing their end, while the continued cool and more or less cloudy weather has held the indoor crops in check. Roses are improving right along, while the call for them is fast getting to be the kind the flowers warrant. In pink, Killarney and My Maryland are selling far better than their white conferees. More Beauties could easily be used. Asters still are in heavy supply, but the cut includes few choice ones. These sell well. The medium and poorer grades do not find any too good a market. Gladioli have got to a point where most of the receipts are rather short-stemmed. Good cosmos and dahlias are selling well. Carnations are in much heavier supply than at last writing. The better grades enjoy a quite active demand. Easter lilies are fine and are proving good property. Orchids and valley are regular items and so far have been selling well.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell says he has arranged to handle one and one-third times as many cut ferns this year as he handled last year.

The E. G. Hill Floral Co. has the fall opening decoration for the Gidding store.

Wm. Speck is sending some excellent carnations to the market.

Jos. Maunder, of Newport, as usual, had the decoration for the fall opening of the Fair stores.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade has improved a great deal in the last week or so and the call, especially for funeral flowers, has consumed large quantities of stock. At times it was hard to get enough material to go the rounds, especially of asters, which are dwindling. Some growers have a few late asters that they think will make up a little for the shortage and poor quality of the earlier stock. Roses are of good quality and the supply has been about equal to the demand. The color of Killarney has improved wonderfully and they now compare favorably with winter stock. Sunburst and Ward are doing nicely and are always in favor. Some Richmond are coming in and find ready sale. Beauties have been a little scarce, but the demand for them has not been heavy of late.

Carnations are coming in quite plentifully and the quality is improving right along. Rose-pink Enchantress has the longest stems, but another week or so will see them all with fair stems. Lilies have been quite scarce for the last two weeks and at times the demand was heavy. Gladioli are becoming a scarce article. Valley is short, with demand light at present. Silver Pink snapdragon is coming in with fair stems and finds a ready sale.

The demand for palms was heavy last week and some firms had everything out on decorations for fall openings. The coming week will see great window displays, as all the retail stores are in the style show and prizes are offered for the best trimmed windows. While only a few of the florists will enter for the prize, all will put in good windows, as the show will continue for four days. J. M.

Houlton, Me.—H. L. Chadwick has rented a store near the Dream theater, which he will soon occupy.

POINSETTIAS

There is no better seller at Christmas time than nice pans of Poinsettias. There is never a surplus of these, if they are well done. But to get nice pans you must have strong, thrifty plants, in first-class condition to start with. We still have several thousand which are just right for this purpose and will be pleased to supply you.

The Market.

There were a large number of funerals last week, as well as a few weddings. As the social season also was beginning, this caused a large increase in business. The rose and carnation supply is more satisfactory, both in quantity and quality. Mums have begun to arrive and asters are about gone. It has turned much cooler since the heavy rains last week, and on Monday morning, September 22, there was a light frost, the earliest for years.

Various Notes.

J. C. Elsperrmann had a busy week in funeral work. The housing of the outdoor plants will keep his force extra busy for a while.

Karl Zeidler is putting in an extra boiler, so as to have it in readiness in case of trouble with the other. His roses, carnations and mums are looking well.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. is cutting lots of roses and a goodly number of carnations, and has a steady run of business.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are having good business. Their roses and carnations are in excellent shape. They will soon be cutting mums. Peter Hoppman, of this firm, who left June 1 for a trip to his old home in Holland, has returned and reports a pleasant trip.

Royston & Fenton are cutting a considerable number of roses, which are of better quality since cool weather came. C. L. Niednagel is cutting lots of Kilarneys, both pink and white. His new roses are doing well. His Beauties are in healthy growth and are producing fine flowers on good stems.

Mrs. M. L. Doerr has just received a shipment of bulbs from Holland. She has received a large McCray refrigerator, which she bought for use in her window. Her business is increasing steadily.

Louis Fritsch was extra busy all last week. He was short of flowers and had to buy a considerable quantity.

Miss Nellie Goodge is busy taking in the outdoor stock. Her mums and carnations are looking fine. E. L. F.

Le Roy, N. Y.—Fred Walter's greenhouse plant has been sold to Mr. and Mrs. Aloise King, of Salamanca. The new owners were formerly in business at Hornell and returned from a trip to Germany about two weeks ago.

CYCLAMEN.

Cyclamen seed, new crop of the giant flowering kind. For the last 16 years we have selected our seed bearing cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no flake of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers, a well built five petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage, $1.00 per 100 seeds; $8.00 per 1000. Cash.
C. Winterich, Cyclamen Specialist, Defiance, O.

Cyclamen giganteum, assorted colors or mixed, including Wonder of Wandsbek, grown from the finest strain of German specialists. We offer healthy, well grown plants, 4½-in., 20c; 6-in., 50c and 60c. All cyclamen shipped in paper pots. Cash, please.
Aurora Greenhouse Co., Aurora, Ill.

BUY CHRISTMAS CYCLAMEN NOW.

The extra strong 5-in. cyclamen we are shipping now at 35c each will be worth considerably more two months later. Better buy now; you will net a fine margin at Christmas time.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. Some of many reports: "The pansy plants all look like good, healthy, stocky plants, and we feel will come up to all expectations." Henry J. Hass & Son, Newport, R. I. "I would like to get 4000 or 5000 of your pansy plants. I saw a house of pansies from your stock last winter and they were the finest I ever saw." Harry W. Stewart, Rhinebeck, N. Y. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery, by express in good condition guaranteed. PEONIES.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

Trade is improving right along, but business is not brisk, by any means. Cold weather has made asters rather scarce and also poor in quality. Roses are good in quality, but Killarney, White Killarney, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Taft and Milady all are in light supply. Gladioli are scarce and cut hydrangeas are taking their place. Valley is good. There still are few carnations and it is questionable how soon they will be in the market. Beauties are good and selling at a reasonable figure. Cut flowers of all kinds were unusually scarce September 20, due to the cold, cloudy weather. Boston ferns, palms and green goods of all kinds are in demand. Fall openings made trade brisk. There has been some funeral work, but nothing startling. Baskets of cut flowers arranged in water are selling well.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE market for mine run of the smokeless coals continues "a little soft," as the coal men say. By that they mean that neither spot coal nor contract deliveries command the premium they were able to get earlier in the season. A WEST VIRGINIA RANGE

As I am about to build a rose house, I should like to get some idea as to the heating of it. I have a range of four houses, all 30x110 feet, except the violet house. The range was formerly heated by hot water, using bottom heat entirely. One house was planted with roses, which did not seem to do well. I have now changed the whole heating arrangement to steam and I intend to have some overhead heat in my new rose house. I want to know how many 2-inch pipes will be needed overhead in a house 30x110, and how many returns underneath. Any other information on the subject will be appreciated.

should be placed on the wall plates, and ten 1¹/₄-inch returns should be placed under the benches. While it will be better to use the 1¹/₄-inch size for return pipes, if it is desired to make use of the 2-inch pipes on hand for the returns, only eight will be needed. In case any of the houses are to be used for carnations, eight 1¹/₄-inch or six 2-inch returns will be sufficient.

PIPING FOR THREE HOUSES.

To heat three houses I have only one hot water boiler, which has but three 4-inch outlets and three 4-inch inlets, allowing one outlet and one inlet for each house. Is that enough? What is the best way to connect the boiler with the three 2¹/₂-inch flows of each house? The houses are piped as follows: The top of the heater is about two feet lower than the returns. I use three 2¹/₂-inch flows for each house, and each flow is connected with four 2-inch returns. Each flow, after rising six or eight inches from the heater, runs a few feet to the house it heats, then up four or five feet and along the eave plates with a slight drop, to the farther end of the house. There it drops and is connected with

JOHN MANEELY,

309-311-313 Arch St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

These houses are 22x50, 22x62 and 22x100 feet, with a house 9x41 feet connecting the smallest house with the boiler shed, the two houses forming a capital L. The description implies that three 2¹/₂-inch flows and twelve 2-inch returns are used in each house, with 4-inch main flows and returns connecting these pipes with the heater, but it speaks of the flows running along the eave plates. With three flows one is generally located under the ridge.

For the two larger houses, three 2½-inch flows are desirable, but two will answer in the other house. Instead of arranging the main flow pipes as described, it will be better to carry them up to a point about one foot below the ridge and then to run them toward the houses. Take off two 2½-inch flow pipes and drop them down to run along the eave plates. Then reduce the size of the flow to two and one-half inches and carry it along under the ridge of the longer houses. If three 2-inch returns are connected with each of these flows, a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees can be obtained. In reference to the other house, it would appear that the ridge in the connecting shed is not more than six feet high. If head room will still be allowed, either one 3-inch flow pipe or two 2½-inch flows can be run under the ridge, or one 2½-inch flow pipe can be carried upon each eave plate. For the main part of the house use one 2½-inch flow under each eave plate and connect these with four 2-inch returns. After they reach the connecting shed the number of returns on each side can be reduced to two.

SIZE OF COIL HEATER.

Will you please tell me how many feet of 2-inch pipe will be needed in a coil heater to supply 150 feet of 2-inch pipe used as radiation? I am located in Kansas. L. C. B.

While the amount of pipe needed would vary with the way it is arranged in the heater, it will be advisable to use about twenty feet of 2-inch pipe in the heating coil for 150 feet of pipe in the radiating coils. For larger amounts of radiation the proportionate amount would be reduced nearly one-half.

STEAM PIPES ON INCLINE.

We are told that a steam heating system can be installed by running single pipes up grade from the boilers to the far end of the houses and that the water will run back to the boilers under the steam in the same pipes. Is this correct? We could heat our houses much better if this were the case, because in many places a return pipe would not allow head room. Is it necessary to place a check valve on each return in a steam system, or only on those coming in near water level? J. T.

Steam pipes can be arranged in the manner suggested, provided an automatic air valve is placed near the farther end of each of the pipes; if the ends of the pipes are connected, a single valve will answer.

The reason for making use of such an arrangement is not fully understood, but it is probable that better results can be obtained by running the coil on a slight decline and then connecting the farther end of the coil with the boiler by means of a single return, in which the drip water from all of the pipes can be carried back to the boiler. If more than one return connects with the boiler, a check valve should be used on each return.

Get the Kroeschell First

Several years ago Mr. Ponting corresponded with us in regard to the Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler, but was persuaded to install two sectional cast iron boilers which were claimed to be superior to the Kroeschell.

In the meantime we placed a number of Kroeschell Boilers in the immediate vicinity of Mr. Ponting, and he could not help but notice their great efficiency, and last year, while at the convention, he placed his order for his first Kroeschell. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We like the Kroeschell Boiler very much. It gives entire satisfaction, and it is so easy to fire. I will trade you the two cast iron sectional boilers for another like the Kroeschell I have."
July 16, 1913, Cleveland, Ohio. (Signed) FRED PONTING.

No More Cast Iron Boilers

I have used several different makes of boilers but none I like as well as yours.

The Kroeschell is easier to fire, takes less coal and water circulates quicker than any other boiler.

I have used two different makes of sectional boilers—no more cast iron boilers for us.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron

The Kroeschell has replaced three cast iron sectional boilers, and it certainly has given entire satisfaction.

It only takes a few words to express the good quality of your boilers and they are as follows: "Of all firms handling boilers and advertising them truthfully, the party buying a boiler would have to get the Kroeschell, as you are certainly advertising nothing but facts."

(Signed) ALEXANDER A. LAUB.

Kroeschell Best of All

The Kroeschell Boiler I installed last year usually runs from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. without attention. I do not have the least trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. The boiler has given entire satisfaction.

The Kroeschell is the best boiler we have ever handled.
Madison, N. J., June 30, 1913. (Signed) CHARLES TOTTY.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron

I am heating between 17,000 and 18,000 sq. ft. of glass with the No. 12 Kroeschell, maintaining 50 to 54 degrees in the greenhouses.

I have night fireman and we fire about every hour in extreme cold weather, but in ordinary weather every two or three hours, leaving the boiler run five to six hours at the last firing.

Have had three different makes of sectional cast iron boilers, but would not return to the sectional boiler under any consideration.

(Signed) FREDERICK CAREY.
Kennett Square, Pa., July 3, 1913.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron

We are heating 6,000 sq. ft. of glass with the Kroeschell House Boiler you furnished last fall, and we think it can take care of more.

We maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in the greenhouses and have no trouble keeping temperatures, even in the coldest weather.

The boiler does not require attention after 9:00 p. m., except in the coldest weather, when we bank at 11:00 p. m.

The boiler has given entire satisfaction. We doubt if your boiler could be improved upon, it is by far the best we have ever used, and we've been using heating systems for the past 30 years.

The Market.

The market the last two weeks has been rather slow, and good stock is scarce. Mums are arriving in better condition, both yellow and white. Carnations have made their appearance for the coming season and are of good size and color, but the stems are not up to the standard. The aster crop is about done with the growers in this section. Dahlias are fine now; the cool nights last week did a great deal of good to these plants.

The Fashion Show.

The fashion show which was held here last week proved a great success to every business shop. The idea of this affair was that all the business houses should throw open their doors to the public at the same time, 7:30 p. m., Tuesday, September 16. The streets were all decorated with flags, and the streets and stores were kept in darkness until the time stated, when the doors were thrown open to the public.

There were no goods sold on the opening evening, but fall and winter goods were displayed in every way to attract the attention of the public. This, of course, created a great demand for plants, wild smilax, and all decorative material. The larger stores were all equipped with their own decorating forces, and in this case the florists had no chance to display their artistic ability as decorators; the florists had only to deliver their goods.

The Florists' Club Meeting.

Thursday evening, September 18, the Lancaster county florists held their monthly meeting, with an attendance of about forty members. W. B. Girvin, of Leola, spoke of the proper time to house carnations to secure the maximum cut for Christmas. Amos Rohrer discussed the most practical manner of shading the glass when planting carnations in the houses from the field, and Rudolph Nagel gave a report of the early chrysanthemums. All the speakers brought out a number of points, which were discussed by the members. Wm. Aherne, of Columbia, exhibited a fine specimen of Platyterium alaicorne majus, and F. Spinner showed a fine vase of Golden Glow mums, which reflected splendid skill in handling this variety.

Frank L. Kohr, Chas. F. Edgar and H. C. Rohrer were appointed to arrange for a ladies' night and a chrysanthemum show for the florists' wives and friends, to be held in November. The next monthly meeting will be held the evening of October 16, for which an interesting program has been arranged.

An autopsy was held in First District court here before Judge Austin, September 17, on the death of Frank Roberts, of Seekonk, whose death resulted from injuries received in that town when an automobile operated by Chatterton Warburton, florist of Fall River, ran over him August 14. Testimony was to the effect that Warburton had been driving his car along the road through Seekonk bound for this city at a fair rate of speed, when a Fall River car, approaching from the same direction, started to slow down. Before it had stopped, Roberts jumped from the running board and took two steps directly in front of the oncoming automobile. Warburton applied his brakes as promptly as possible and the car stopped in a remarkably brief time, although not before knocking down Roberts and passing over his body. He died twenty-two hours later. Motorman Herbert W. Hayes, who operated the trolley car; Chatterton Warburton, Mrs. Warburton, Mary Pecheco, sister of Roberts, and Mary Callon were among those who witnessed the accident and testified. Judge Austin will file his report within a week.

At last an inexpensive greenhouse

Made of Sunlight Double Glass Sash

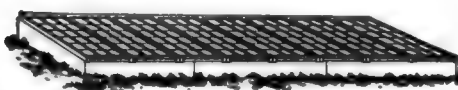

This greenhouse is 11 x 12 feet, glazed top and sides, with the famous Sunlight Double Glass Sash. 8 Standard Sash (3x6 ft.) form the roof and 8 "Pony" Sash (34½ x 38½ in.) form the sides.

The double glass principle

The Double Glass principle with the ½" air space between the two layers of glass make it seldom necessary to heat this greenhouse even in the coldest weather.

It is shipped ready-made in sections.

The sash are easily removable to use in season on hot-beds and cold-frames. Thus the sash do double duty—first on a greenhouse work room in which seed are sprouted and the tiny plants set out in flats, and then, when needed, on the hot-beds or cold-frames outside.

But whether you need the greenhouse or not you must have sash, if you want early garden crops or flowers.

Best and most economical

The Sunlight Double Glass Sash are incomparably the best and the most economical of time and labor. They eliminate mats and shutters. They make earlier, stronger and more profitable plants.

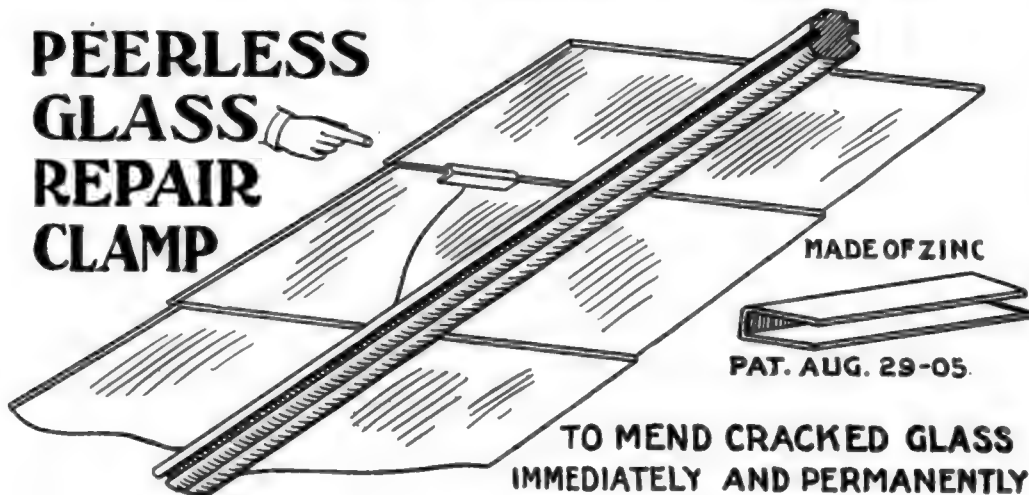

Get our free catalog, with prices on our sash, either single or double; also on this greenhouse. Enclose 4c and ask for Prof. Massey's booklet on hot-beds and cold-frames if you need advice.

ST. PAUL.The Market.

Business opened well last week, with a killing frost to clear away the outdoor stock, which was getting extremely poor. Fashion week is on and the demand for flowers is heavy, as all the stores are having their openings. The large department and general stores all decorated heavily and it aided the florists to have the openings all at once, instead of having them stretched over several weeks, as heretofore. The florists themselves are all decked out in fall attire and the shops are displaying the newest styles in flowers, plants and accessories.

Indoor stock is coming on nicely. Roses and carnations are fair. Mums, although not plentiful as yet, are in good shape and a ready market is found for them. In the way of accessories, baskets of all kinds are moving well and by adding bulbs, which are now being placed on sale, the general business is materially increased.

Various Notes.

A. H. Bunde, probably the oldest florist in the city, has retired from business.

O. R. Eckhardt Co. received a heavy shipment of sphagnum this week. Business with this firm is reported as excellent.

Bids for the park greenhouses were opened September 22. The contract calls for nine houses 26 x 100, complete with heating and boilers, potting shed, etc. These houses will be devoted to growing plants, except palms and tropical plants, of which the board possesses a great many. For this part of the range the city set aside an appropriation of $57,000. Mr. Nussbaumer feels greatly in need of more space and another appropriation is under way for palm houses, etc.

Holm & Olson are putting in a new front at their store, new windows, new tile floor in the show space, large mirrors along the sides, and a fine new electric sign overhead. This makes a great improvement in their already beautiful store.

The monthly meeting of the Minnesota State Florists' Association was called for September 16, at Holm & Olson's store, and it proved to be a rousing good meeting. The annual election of officers was held and resulted as follows: President, O. J. Olson, St. Paul; vice-president, Wm. Desmond, Minneapolis; secretary, Gus Malmquist, Minneapolis; treasurer, E. P. Holm, St. Paul; executive committee, Theo. Wirth, A. Lauritzen, Hugh Will and Prof. L. R. Cady. Five new members were elected and fitting refreshments were served between speeches. C. F. R.

"Leaves Nothing to Be Desired"

So Speaks Chas. Umbach, Gardener for Mr. S. J. Hyde, Greenwich, Conn.

THIS is a particularly attractive and practical little lean-to proposition. The half-timbered cottage in combination with field stone and our curved eave greenhouse, is a source of delight to the owner and the pride of Mr. Umbach. Here's what he says of it:

"I'm glad to say that the curved eave house erected by Lord & Burnham has proved fully that it was the right house to build both for pleasure and service. It is giving excellent satisfaction. Your method of construction leaves nothing to be desired."

HERRINGTON on the Mum, sent by The Review for 50 cents.

The Only Greenhouse Wood

MR. GREENHOUSE MAN, if a contractor tells you frankly, "That kind of lumber will rot too soon, I would rather use Cypress," he is worth dealing with. Trust his judgment, his experience and his honesty. Give him the order.

MR. GREENHOUSE MAN, if a contractor says to you, "Cypress will cost you more to begin with than some 'substitute' wood, but it will be CHEAPER for you if you figure your building costs BY THE YEAR," listen to him. He is speaking from experience, and YOU will do well to PROFIT by his experience, and the experience of the greenhouse trade as a whole.

MR. GREENHOUSE MAN, CYPRESS is the one "natural-born greenhouse wood"—that is as thoroughly established as is the succession of days and nights. The thousands and thousands of owners who have tested it out, and have profited by its marvelous endurance and corresponding freedom from repair and replacement bills, make a case that CANNOT BE DISPROVED. Don't let any one talk you out of Cypress.

THAT BEING THE FACT, THE REASONABLE CONCLUSION IS: ANY OTHER WOOD THAN CYPRESS FOR GREENHOUSE WORK IS "A SUBSTITUTE" FOR THE PROVEN BEST. CYPRESS IS THE BEST—NO ARGUMENT POSSIBLE ON THAT POINT.

Now for a volume or a dozen volumes of our CYPRESS POCKET LIBRARY—they are free to you. Send a letter or a postal hiking for what you need. VOL. 3 is about GREENHOUSES—nothing but. Vol. 4 is the new "Barn Book"; Vol. 36 is the "Carpentry Book," telling how to do framing, etc., and Vol. 37 is the Big "Silo Book," a discussion of the Silo question such as you may not get elsewhere. These farm books are very interesting and are filled with plans and specifications for buildings. Just you GET what you want of them.

You Can't Get Away From Facts

Some of the other fellows, to shield themselves, are constantly talking about greenhouses blowing down and they carefully word their advertisements to mislead you.

Our Iron Frame Houses DID NOT and WILL NOT Blow Down. They Won't Come Down Until You Tear Them Down.

Why not stick strictly to the facts? You are not interested in big talk and a lot of catchy advertising phrases. You want facts, facts! You are paying out good hard-earned money when you pay for a greenhouse. You don't want to pay 10% of the price for salary of a high-priced advertising agency and for big advertising campaigns. You want 100 cents value for your dollar. You get what you want here and we don't size you up first to see how much we can get out of you. One Price to Everybody.

DOESN'T IT MAKE YOU MAD

when a good customer orders extra fine flowers from you and you want to please her, and you telegraph to your wholesaler for fancy stock and get only ordinary quality? You don't care whether your wholesaler has been in business eighty years or not, or whether he sells two-thirds of the flowers in Chicago or not—if he will only send you what you want when you want it, you will be satisfied. We have not been in business since before the war, and we do not claim to handle all the flowers in the Chicago market, but we do claim that we have the best Roses, the best Beauties and the best Carnations in this market, and that our customers are the best treated.

We are here to SHOW YOU. Try us and see.

WARD ROSES

THE most popular rose of the day. Last season every store that could get enough of them to make a showing, sold them on sight.

Their unusual color—a delicate blending of cream yellow and pink—and foliage of dark red and green, make a rose that is very attractive. We know of stores that sold these to people several times a week—people that ordinarily would not buy once a week. Try them and you will find them great trade boosters. We grow them in large quantity. Our price is 2c, 3c, 4c each, to be retailed at 50c, 75c and $1.00 per dozen.

Many stores sell large quantities of the 50c grade for corsage and bouquet work, and by advertising them at 50c in their windows.

AMERICAN BEAUTIES

Indiana is famous the world over for American Beauties of extraordinary quality.

Until we built our first little greenhouses, but few had ever been grown in the state. By winning many prizes, and thereby attracting other growers to the superior quality of our soil for their culture, New Castle became famous as the "home of American Beauties."

An advertisement of New Castle Beauties will attract business to your store.

Notice our "different" price list.

Gentlemen:-

September the 10th

It may interest you to know that we recently have received several inquiries as to how we like our White truck and that in each instance we have replied that we consider it the best truck for florists' use.

Before ordering a White truck we had used another make, and we had investigated the operation of the White and other trucks used by others in our trade. We concluded the White was the truck for us, and we still are of that opinion.

The truck was in constant service all last season. There were no repairs worth speaking of. All that we needed to do was to repaint the body to make the car as good as new for this season.

Very truly yours,

Our Novelties are Irresistible

Nothing conventional about our line this season. All of our experience of past years in catering to the ribbon needs of florists has been utilized in producing the most remarkable and extensive collection of new weaves and colorings we have ever produced. It is almost impossible to sample this season's novelties successfully by mail, owing to the early patterns being sold out and new ones constantly arriving.

A good plan is to send us a carte blanche order giving us a general idea of colorings, widths and quantity desired, or one of our representatives will call upon you when in your territory.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

DAHLIAS FOR THE RETAILER.

The accompanying illustration is of interest for the reason that it is reproduced from a photograph made by G. S. Crego, the originator of the Crego aster, as well as for the evidence it gives of the adaptability of the dahlia to the needs of the retail florist. These are of the type of peony-flowered dahlias. The variety is Hortulantis Witte. The basket was on exhibition at the dahlia show held at Portland, Ore., September 24 and 25. It was arranged by the Portland Seed Co.

THE TREND OF THE TIMES.

The Rise of the Retail Trade.

Forty years ago the possibilities of the retail business were not realized. In fact, the majority of the few retailers then existing were really lovers of flowers, and followed their profession as much for the pleasure it gave them as for the actual profit derived therefrom. Roses with stems from four to six inches long were considered the height of perfection, from the grower's standpoint. Bouquets made up of a variety of flowers and enhanced with a paper holder were considered as beautiful then as the finest creations of the present time appear to the flower lovers of today.

A few years later we were blessed with the hybrid roses, Gloire de Paris, Mabel Morrison, Baron and Baroness Rothschild, Magna Charta and General Jacqueminot. These handsome roses, long since discarded for roses of greater producing qualities, were, and in reality are now, of greater beauty than some of the present day commercial roses. In those days, a cluster of any one of these varieties, combined with mignonette, was a choice remembrance, fit to be sent to the finest lady in the land. Mignonette was good then, and thoroughly appreciated.

Appearance of the Dollar Rose.

As far back as at this time, about thirty years ago, we first find the dollar rose. That is to say, roses sold at from $10 to $12 per dozen, one prominent retailer handling the entire hybrid crop and paying as high as $50 per hundred for the blooms. This same retailer was cutting Jacqueminot roses with 36-inch stems that sold at retail for $1 each.

While the hybrids were good, other roses, such as Bon Silene, Perle des Jardins and Nephitos, were extremely short-stemmed. In fact, the average retailer in those days, in making designs, usually cut the stems still shorter. The mossed wire work used was almost the size of the finished product, little allowance being made for the increase the addition of the flowers might make.

Ingenuity of Older Florists.

Twenty-five years ago we find the leading florists possessed of as much ingenuity and initiative as the present day business man. Large decorations for balls, receptions and elaborate dinners were more plentiful, proportionately, then than now, New York and other city society leaders vying with one another to have the latest ideas and most original surroundings for their entertainments. If we promised stately orange trees in full fruit and could not get them as originally planned, we simply fastened the fruit on with wire and produced the desired effect. Lilac bushes were grown to bloom during January and February, for the flowers for the social functions taking place during these months were ordered early in the season from the grower, so that they would be ready at the proper time.

Orchids Were Scarce Articles.

Orchids, though scarce, could be had by a resourceful florist. In those days we had a great variety of blooms, while today the cattleya has proved to be the real commercial flower. If we had promised a bower of orchids, growing and in bloom, and could not induce the owner to let us have the plants of all the different varieties, we simply fastened the blooms on whatever orchid plants we could get. I say owner instead of grower because most of the orchids came from private collections. Thus, in many ways, the greatest artistic effects were produced with a little ingenuity. During these years of trials and tribulations practically all the different designs and set pieces were first thought out. Today we have the improved flowers to work with and the additional help of a complete line of accessories.

A little over twenty years ago we first became acquainted with the possibilities of the American Beauty as a commercial flower. Stems up to twelve inches long were the average then. Gradually the quality of the flower improved and the length of stem increased until today we have the finished product, a flower that carries with it all the qualifications necessary to become an American Beauty in the real sense of the word.

Recent Progress Slow.

The progress of the retailer for the last fifteen years has been as slow as New Orleans molasses. All around us, on every side, everywhere, we see other trade interests keeping abreast of the times, always pushing and striving for the phantom goal. Merchants in other lines become wealthy and enjoy their declining years in ease and comfort. Why not the retail florist?

The retailers we might place in two classes, in one the concerns doing business in the residential districts, and in the other the houses in the heart of the business centers. Of the two, the former must possess a greater knowledge of flowers; the latter must be primarily a first-class financier, a florist afterward, for ultimate success. The residential district retailer cannot resort to newspaper publicity as his competitor in the busy section can. He cannot take advantage of and promote special sales at times when an over-supply presents an opportunity. His business consists, in the main, almost entirely of family trade, while his competitor, he of the high rentals, depends on transients, as well as regulars, to move the stock he advertises.

Different Advertising Methods.

Don't misunderstand me; the residential florist may advertise in the same manner, but it will not pay him in the end. He has recourse, however, to high-grade circular advertising, engagement booklets and the much abused calendar. The city store man will find this line of advertising expensive; being centrally located, he must literally scatter his advertising matter to the four winds.

Speaking of the end, that is an incontestable climax that comes to everything. Some of us do not live to reach, in a business way, the position of being successful and not knowing the feeling of the pangs of defeat. Success in business, which, after all, only means an increase from year to year large enough to provide for old age from the increased profits, can only be attained by honest, steadfast principles, a fair profit on an article that has been bought by a buyer of good judgment and the proper spirit to make good any misunderstanding between yourself and your patrons, who, after all, are the ones to whom we owe our existence.

FOR THE ELKS' RITUAL.

In reference to H. A. Hyde's inquiry about amaranth and clinging ivy for the Elks' ritual, it is extremely hard to secure amaranth just when it is needed. I use purple heliotrope and myrtle or one leaf of the Boston ivy, putting the two together. Some small purple flower will answer. I do not know the variety of amaranth that should be used for this purpose.

E. M. Plater.

THE TAG IS FINISHING TOUCH.

There are certain classes of business in which the question of put-up is supremely important, and the florists' trade is one of them. The manufacturer of a staple line needs a neat and strong container, but he who sells a luxury like jewelry, flowers, or candy must make his container handsome enough to indicate the quality and beauty of the contents. That is why the discriminating florist uses embossed boxes, watermarked wrapping paper and, last but not least, handsomely printed, distinctive tags. All of these little niceties are much appreciated by the customer and, besides serving their useful purpose, they are an excellent kind of advertising. It pleases the donor of a bunch of long-stemmed American Beauties to know the packing, wrapping and addressing will be so attractively done that the flowers themselves will seem even more beautiful when they are removed from the box.

In this connection it is well to consider the value of a handsome tag. When the flowers are delivered the first question is "Whom are they for?" and the second "Whom are they from?" It is the tag in every case which gives the answer. The tag is the first part of the package to be looked at by the recipient of the flowers. It should therefore be made to act as far as possible as an outward indicator of the beauty of the contents.

Wonderful in design and execution are many of the tags now used by florists. Almost all are made of a special white stock which cannot be spotted by water and is always fresh and clean when the package is delivered. In one corner is usually a bunch of orchids, violets or roses printed in two or more colors and sometimes embossed. Some florists, however, believe in tasteful simplicity and show nothing on their tags except their name and address printed from a handsome cut.

Those who are using distinctive tags claim that they are one of the cheapest and best forms of publicity. In many cases half the cost of the tags is charged to the advertising account and the balance to supplies.

FOR THE CREDIT OF US ALL.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association is seeking something better than profit for its members. It is not a money-making organization itself, and it puts service to the public ahead of financial gain for its members. To bring out its purposes, President Bertermann has asked some of the directors to set down their views and the following by Henry Penn, of Boston, is being distributed in carbon copy:

"With reference to the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, I want to say that it eventually will give prestige and power to all its members who have the foresight to increase its membership by bringing in new applicants, and also to bear in mind not only new members, but the character and quality of the members.

"If properly developed, we have one of the most important factors for progress that our business has developed in recent years. This slogan, 'Member of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association,' if used on all your correspondence, advertisements, or even on your own glass fronts, will have the effect of having patrons ask what the object is, and by explaining its doings, etc., you will impress them with such information as will surely be the means of new business in this direction. In due time there may be as much dignity in being a member of the F. T. D. in connection with flowers, as there is in being a stock broker and being a member of the stock exchange. In other words, the F. T. D. could be to the florist what the stock exchange is to the broker.

"This can eventually be worked out when we have sufficient members in good standing in all cities and towns throughout our country, properly imbued with the fact that it is not only organized for financial gain, but also for conveniences to one another, as well as to our customers, in times of emergencies, etc.

"This is one of the points of our association we must not lose sight of, that, if necessary, we should fill an order for our brother florists even at no profit to ourselves, so that the order is filled creditably. It will eventually be the means of more business, and in that way will be a gain in the end. Of course, these problems can be worked out later, as we become better acquainted by meeting one another at conventions and flower shows, so that we can better give our views and experiences in filling orders on hurry calls, as we are asked to do and are asking others to do. I merely mention this idea, because only last week one of our patrons left a small order, to be delivered in a small town in New Jersey, and we telegraphed it to our good brother florist, and he filled the order after having to send his automobile some fifteen miles over the road specially with this package, as he would not have had time to catch the funeral in any other way. We surely appreciated the service and immediately sent a letter of gratitude as well as a check, for his courtesy, which I feel never could be paid for by merely being out for dollars and cents.

"We have used the lines, 'Flowers delivered in all parts of the United States at one hour's notice,' and 'Members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association,' with great results as a footnote in all our advertisements in the daily and Sunday papers in our city. This has been the means of bringing new business, or business which we feel is at least partly due to this method. We have never kept any record of our business in this direction, but hardly a day passes but what we send out from three to one dozen orders to all parts of the United States. As this is but the beginning of what may some day be one of the most important factors in a growing business, one can readily see the necessity of having a chain of good men and good stores to accomplish our purpose.

"The telegraph companies in due time will only be too glad to cooperate with us and give us whatever benefits we may want by way of special service or code, if we show results with our association. I have already been approached by representatives of the telegraph companies for information about this organization, which illustrates the fact that they will be pleased to do what they can for the improvement and progress of the F. T. D. Not too much credit can be given the organizers and officers of the association for the good work they have accomplished in so short a time. It shows clearly that we have the right men and simply need the numbers to accomplish our purpose.

"Another factor that is most important in the interest of the F. T. D. is the need of an emblem, to be copyrighted and used whenever and wherever possible—something similar to the idea now being used by the Mackay-Bennett Cable Co., for instance, just for illustration. Such insignia would give tone to our association.

"I would suggest that members get ideas suitable for such a purpose, and send them to our secretary, who could at the annual meeting refer them to the board of directors for approval. Another suggestion would be to have one or more good advertising experts invited to our annual meetings, who could enlighten us on subjects pertaining to our line of business. We could all benefit by such talks and our association could, without doubt, procure the most able speakers without much difficulty. I would also suggest that our secretary have members of our club read papers on subjects tending to uplift the methods necessary for our success, and incidentally point out some of the evils now prevalent which could be easily eradicated.

"This would have a tendency to increase the attendance at our annual meetings and would be of much benefit to all."

RETAILING IN THE COUNTRY.

Wenona, Ill., is not a metropolis—far from it. But William Metzger does better business there than many a city florist does, largely because he is actuated by the city spirit of hustle and is free from the restraint of competition that the city florist has to contend with. Mr. Metzger has had two problems to solve. In the first place he has had to provide the facilities; to make it possible for those who want flowers to get them. In the second place he has had to provide the supply. To make it possible for the people to buy his flowers he appointed agents in the surrounding towns, and to provide the supply, which naturally soon had to be far greater than he could produce under his own glass, he made connections with advertisers in The Review. Then the problem became simply one of encouraging the people within his field to use constantly increasing quantities of flowers. This he is doing, the business growing each year.

Mr. Metzger believes it is possible for any florist in a country town to do what he has done. At first the call is largely for funeral flowers, and this means an erratic demand, quite a little business one day and, perhaps, none at all the next. Consequently the florist can not grow his own stock; he needs a connection with a city wholesaler where he can get what he wants on short notice.

Then he can go as far as he likes in developing trade in his own and near-by towns.

LILIES BLOOM AFTER FORCING.

Noticing the inquiry of H. & C. in regard to the value of cold storage lily bulbs for outdoor planting after being forced, in the issue of The Review for September 18, Mrs. W. W. Chisholm, manager of the Anderson Floral Co., Anderson, S. C., who has had better success with these bulbs than many, writes of her experience along this line. How good her result with them has been may be seen by looking at the accompanying illustration, which shows the front walk lined with blooms from bulbs planted outdoors after being forced. Mrs. Chisholm's experience, as she tells it, is as follows:

"From June, 1911, to January, 1912, we received four cases of cold storage giganteums. The bulbs in the first case were planted in coldframes; those in the other cases were planted in pots and forced in our greenhouses. As fast as the blooms were cut, the plants were slipped out of the pots and plunged outdoors as deep as we could plant them, no matter whether the weather was cold or not, so long as the ground was not too frozen to work. The plants from the coldframes were planted out the end of September in nursery rows, and in June, 1912, we got a fine cut from them, getting, as you see, two cuts in less than a year. The plants from the bulbs we received in January did not bloom in time for Easter, but the last part of April, our weather being then warm, we slipped the plants out of the pots and planted them down our front walk. When the blooms were over, we left the bulbs there. This June we took a picture of this walk, and we think no one could wish a more beautiful example than this of what cold storage lilies will do when planted out after being forced." The picture referred to is the one reproduced herewith.

Commenting on the same item about a second crop of blooms from cold storage lily bulbs, E. J. Hull, of Olyphant, Pa., says: "Cold storage lily bulbs will produce a second crop. Every year for the last eight years I have produced a second crop of good lilies from cold storage bulbs that had already produced a crop of blossoms. I set the pots under a bench after the flowers have been cut. I give the plants almost no water for a month, then water more and more as new growth starts. I usually get from two to three good blooms from each plant. Under the above treatment I have not been able to get enough blooms from regular bulbs to pay for the trouble. Give your cold storage bulbs a second trial. It will not cost you much."

LORRAINE BEGONIAS DISEASED.

On visiting another florist recently, I noticed his Lorraine begonias were affected with some leaf trouble, and I desire to inquire what the cause of the trouble may be. Large blotches appear on the leaves and they lose all signs of life, but do not dry up for a long time. The color of these blotches is that of manila tissue paper. Strong sunshine does not strike them. Also, what causes green leaves to have rust-like spots, and others, especially new growths, to have a yellowish or pinkish tinge? D. W. D.

The culture of the plants has probably been responsible for the condition of the leaves you refer to. These begonias, given proper treatment, are rarely diseased, but if heavily shaded in summer, the foliage becomes soft and often becomes diseased. The plants never need heavy shade, and after October 1 full sun should be given. Too much water at the roots, excessive humidity in the atmosphere, a stuffy, ill ventilated house and too much overhead syringing are also probable causes of leaf disease. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Lorraine and Cincinnati Begonias.

Now is the season of rapid growth with Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias, the popular winter-flowering plants, and any final pottings should have been completed before this. No more pinching back need now be done, and flowers can be allowed to develop, as it is a decided advantage to have some nice blooming plants even in October, when there is a comparative dearth of such stock. With the plants in active growth, staking must be attended to at once, or injury will result to many of them. Use light, inconspicuous stakes. Those of Japanese bamboo painted green are suitable and are inexpensive. Let the ties be of green raffia, for it is a great advantage to have both supports and ties seen as little as possible. Elevate specimen plants somewhat, and spread out all as they grow, to insure their best development.

The Cincinnati begonia is rapidly overbalancing the older Lorraine in popular favor, but some growers seem unable to propagate it. While Lorraine comes best from cuttings, Cincinnati is most easily raised from leaves, and it is really surprising how soon these will root in a warm propagating bench. A batch put in here September 1 was well rooted September 15. From leaves rooted now, fine specimen plants may be had a year hence. Do not let the Cincinnati begonias stand where they are likely to get any drip, as this will soon disfigure the foliage; later in the season it is well to remove any flowers which have fallen on the leaves, as these will cause the same trouble.

Full sunshine may now be given these begonias, and a temperature averaging 60 degrees at night is suitable. When well in flower, they are better kept 10 degrees cooler. Look carefully after the last propagation of these begonias, for while there is generally a surplus of larger sizes, small ones are rarely in sufficient supply.

Poinsettias.

It is time now to make up the pans of poinsettias. When doing so, be careful not to break the small balls, as this will mean a loss of foliage. Drain the pans well and use a good, friable loam to which some well-rotted cow manure has been added. Some small Cyperus alternifolius, ferns, Asparagus Sprengeri and A. plumosus should be used among the poinsettias. It improves the appearance and increases the value of the pans, and such plants help to cover up stems which have lost their foliage. A really warm house is not yet necessary for the poinsettias; 55 degrees at night is ample and in such a temperature the plants will be stocky. When the bracts show, 5 degrees higher at night can be given. Water with increasing care. On a proper supply half the future value of your plants rests. Too much or too little means a loss of foliage. A happy medium is what is needed, and the grower who can grow good poinsettias with leaves to the soil is worthy of kind, considerate treatment, for such men are getting all too scarce.

Hydrangeas.

Hydrangea plants in the field are better lifted and potted now, before frosts can injure the young leaves. Pot firmly and use a generous compost. Stand them, after potting, in an open sunny spot, but where some protection can be given on cold nights. If lifted with a ball, they will show little signs of wilting. Plants grown in pots through the summer can now be gradually kept dry at the root. This will assist in maturing the wood, and such plants will be useful for early forcing. Do not on any consideration overlook the new French hydrangeas, such as General de Vibraye and Mme. Mouillere. These are magnificent plants, wonderfully free flowering and in many ways far ahead of the well-known Otaksa. Every grower who has not yet tried these should do so this season.

Rambler Roses.

Pot-grown rambles are, of course, the plants par excellence for early fore-ing. Lifted plants will not compare with them. It is now time to keep these pot-grown roses a little drier at the root. This is especially necessary with the pink rambles, which, if kept constantly damp at the root, will sometimes keep on growing until well into November. Drier root conditions help to check the growth. As Easter comes a little later in 1914, there need be no feverish rush to pot up rambles. Still, if the plants are home-grown, they are better potted early in October. If, on the other hand, they have to be shipped from a distance, potting can be delayed until the latter part of the month, but the earlier potted stock is always the best, as it gets a chance to make a nice lot of fresh roots before forcing is done.

Tuberous Begonias and Gloxinias.

As tuberous begonias and gloxinias become shabby, keep them on a shelf in a dry, moderately cool house, and give little water at the root. As soon as the foliage has all disappeared, they can be stored away and laid on their sides in any warm shed where a temperature of 45 degrees at night is maintained. A little later, when time permits, shake them out and store the tubers in sand or cocoanut fiber refuse. This means an economy in storage, and the pots can be cleaned up on stormy days and stacked away ready for future use.

Amaryllis.

Amaryllis will still be quite green and in active growth. It is wise now to gradually decrease the water supply, so that by the end of November most of the foliage will have died away. After that time the pots can be laid on their sides, not under a dripping greenhouse bench, but in a dry shed or storehouse, where the temperature averages 45 degrees in cold weather. They can remain there until flower spikes begin to peep early in the new year, when a fresh surfacing or repotting may be necessary. Young plants which have not yet flowered must not be given any rest, or it will throw back the date of flowering for probably another year. Keep them growing through the winter in a temperature of 55 degrees at night.

Stevia.

Stevia, the cheap but extremely useful little plant, will have been lifted and potted before now, as it is one of the first plants injured by frost. As there is no special need of housing the plants yet a while, they can be stood in a coldframe exposed to the elements except when frost threatens. There is no special need of this flower while mums are galore, but during December and January the country florist without it is often hard put to it when making up a design or bouquet of flowers.

Lilies.

Bulbs of Harrisii lilies which are now well rooted and several inches high can go into a warm house—65 degrees at night is not too much—and a large part of these can be easily flowered for Christmas, with the probability of some being ready for Thanksgiving. Cold storage speciosums, both album and rubrum, will now have spikes with buds appearing, if they were potted in July. These lilies do not need so much heat as Harrisii or longiflorum. Give them 55 degrees at night, and with this temperature there should be a good cut from early in November until January. L. Jamesii we are trying this year. It is an early form of longiflorum, which so far keeps clean and is quite early. It is one we are likely to grow more heavily a year hence.

HENRY EMUNDS' NEW CANNA.

When the Minneapolis convention was well under way there arrived a box of cannas from Henry Emunds, of Belleville, Ill., which did not get as much attention as they would have won under more favorable conditions. The flowers were of his new canna, Queen Helen, such as are shown in the accompanying illustration. This namesake of the Queen of Italy is a sport of King Humbert and has all its habits. The foliage, however, is green. Mr. Emunds has great faith in his canna. It is a stronger grower, he says, and has probably twice as many shoots to a plant as has King Humbert. The flowers are rather orchid-like in appearance and evenly spotted; the clusters, too, are larger than those of King Humbert. The leaves of the plant are large and glossy.

PANSIES IN COLD FRAMES.

Please give a good method of wintering pansies in coldframes for early spring sales, a good, common way for plants transplanted at this time.

E. B.

Let the plants freeze quite hard, and then cover them with perfectly dry leaves; only a light coating is needed. Put the sashes on and leave them shut up tightly, except on warm, sunny days, when they can be tilted up. Be sure the sashes are well glazed and do not leak, for damp leaves will soon start decay among the plants. The leaves can be removed about the first week in March.

BULBS IN ROSE BEDS.

Will you kindly tell me if it will injure roses that are planted three feet apart to have hyacinths and narcissi planted in the same bed with them? When is the best time to plant these bulbs outdoors in southeast Alabama? They do well here.

M. W. P. B.

It will not do any great amount of harm to grow some hyacinths, tulips and narcissi among your roses if the latter are planted as much as three feet apart each way. The best time to plant the bulbs outdoors in your latitude is late October or early November.

LIME FOR CYCLAMENS.

Can lime or lime water be used for cyclamens, to sweeten the soil and kill worms, and in what quantities?

D. W. D.

Lime water can be applied to cyclamens to assist in getting rid of earthworms. It must be used with care, for too much will impoverish the soil and harm rather than benefit the plants. Take a piece of stone (unslaked) lime. Slake it in a tub, barrel or pail, according to the number of plants to be watered. For a pail containing twelve quarts of water a piece weighing one pound is ample. After slaking, let the lime color settle to the bottom. Then draw off and apply the clear water. Do not keep your cyclamens standing on beds of manure or earth, or worms will soon make the soil in the pots sour, and choke the drainage. Let them stand on a good layer of coal ashes, which worms do not trouble.

RACKS FOR BULBS.

We have a room sixteen feet square and about nine feet high joining our workshop, and should like to know the best method of arranging racks for bulb boxes and the proper heat, water and ventilation for the bulbs. Is it best to bury bulbs outside till cold weather?

J. A. & S.

We should build a rack three feet wide around the sides. The shelves can be eighteen inches apart. Another rack six feet wide can be built down the center. This will allow a 2-foot path on either side. If your flats are 12x24, they will fit on the shelves without any waste of space. All varieties of bulbs can be placed here after being started outdoors or in coldframes. Tulips, narcissi and hyacinths do best if the room is kept dark to draw them up, especially early in the season. This is not necessary in the case of gladioli, iris, Paper White narcissi, sweet-scented jonquils and a few other varieties. These can be given light all the time. In addition, valley in flats can be started in such a house, although it prefers some bottom heat. A minimum temperature of 60 degrees should be maintained in midwinter; later in the season less heat and more air and light are necessary.

ANNUAL PINK LUPINES.

Please tell me how far apart annual lupines should be planted for forcing. Which are better, benches or beds, and what temperature is the best for them? I want to force a lot of pink lupines.

F. S. P.

The annual pink lupines will do better in winter on raised benches than on solid beds, as, indeed, will practically all annuals. Sow the seeds thinly in rows a foot apart. If they come up too thickly, it is easy to pull out a few, but they do not transplant readily. To fill up any possible gaps, it is a good idea to sow a few dozen 3-inch pots of them. Give the lupines a tolerably rich, but quite porous soil. They will then be less liable to damp off during dark weather in midwinter. A night temperature of 45 to 48 degrees, with a 10 degree rise during the day, is sufficiently high for them.

Varieties of L. mutabilis, blue and white, require twice the distance, between the rows, of the pink variety. They also take much longer to flower, but the spikes are fine.

EUROPEAN NOTES.

New Irish Roses.

At the autumn show of the National Rose Society, held in London about the middle of September, four new roses from Ireland received gold medals and first-class certificates. Red Letter Day and Edward Bohane were shown by Alexander Dickson & Sons, Ltd., Newtownards. The former is a bright-colored hybrid tea, a rich crimson red, and the latter is a hybrid tea of large size, rich crimson scarlet. Edgar M. Burnett, shown by S. McGredy & Son, Portadown, has a large bloom, bluish pink, a fragrant hybrid tea. Muriel Dickson, from Hugh Dickson, Ltd., Belfast, is a large hybrid Austrian briar, reddish rose with orange tints.

Three of the best blooms in the show were George Dickson, Bent Cant and A. Hill Gray, and the honors for these, a silver gilt medal to each, went to the Newtownards firm, Dickson & Sons. The best collection of thirty-six blooms, distinct varieties, was put up by Hugh Dickson, Ltd. S. McGredy & Son staged British Queen in splendid form. The finest representative collection of roses on a table, in a space 6x18 feet, was arranged by W. & J. Brown, Peterborough, and was awarded a gold medal; the second prize, a silver gilt medal, went to Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh, who were specially strong in Richmond, Lyon Rose, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Frau Karl Druschki and General MacArthur.

Prize winners in other leading classes were: Paul & Son, Cheshunt; Hobbies, Ltd., Dereham; B. R. Cant & Sons, Colchester; Jackman & Son, Woking, and J. Mattock, Oxford.

New Dahlias.

At the recent show of the National Dahlia Society quite a large number of novelties were submitted to the floral committee, and half a dozen found favor and were awarded cultural certificates. Four of the awards went to J. Stredwick & Son, St. Leonards on Sea, for Pierrot, cactus, yellow florets tipped buff white; E. F. Hawes, cactus, large blooms of superb form, rose-pink; Dorothy Hawes, cactus, finely curved florets, large blooms of a bright rose color, and John Green, cactus-peony, showy yellow florets margined and tipped brilliant scarlet. Keynes, Williams & Co., Salisbury, scored with Rosa, a mauve-colored pompon of good form, and the sixth variety, Wee Gracie, a cream-colored pompon, was shown by J. T. West, Brentwood.

In the premier classes T. Burrell & Co., Cambridge, wrested the leading honors from J. Stredwick & Son, who have held top position for a series of years. Hobbies, Ltd., Dereham, were awarded a gold medal for a large collection, embracing cactus, peony, pompon, collarette and other forms. Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh, continue to introduce new collarette dahlias of splendid form and in a marvelously rich range of colors. In this direction they are ahead of all competitors.

Sweet Peas.

The National Sweet Pea Society has arranged for its annual trials in 1914, at the Burbage Experimental Farm, and has decided that the seeds shall be sown in October, instead of in the spring, as in former years. The annual show will be held in London about the middle of July, and the provincial show in the following week at Belfast. Bee.

Fifty-three years on the job!

Just think of it, you rolling stones, who work six weeks at a place and move on; H. A. Barnard has spent fifty-three years of the sixty-seven he has lived working for one firm of plantmen.

Mr. Barnard is on a trip through the United States for his firm, Stuart Low & Co., Bush Hill Park, England, and plans to spend the greater part of October on a tour of the Pacific coast. He has never been there, although on his repeated journeys he has become known almost everywhere as far west as Chicago.

WHAT A BREEZE COSTS.

Roy Wilcox, of J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Council Bluffs, Ia., dropped into The Review office one day last week. Naturally, the conversation turned to the results of the big storm that wrecked some of the Wilcox houses last spring.

"The houses have been repaired and replanted, and we are cutting a little from them," said Mr. Wilcox.

There are two houses, each 60x1,000 feet, the largest in the west, and they were a wreck after the cyclone that swept Omaha that Sunday afternoon.

"Of course, we can not figure our loss," continued Mr. Wilcox. "We were just beginning to take some real money out of those houses, the first we had had from them. Since the stock froze solid the next day, naturally we were hard hit there, but how much no one can tell. For the material and labor to repair and replant the houses, the items we can count, we figure we spent $40,000. And at that we got off lighter than we thought we would. These are iron or rather steel-framed houses; and when we got at the job we found we could use a great deal more of the material than we had supposed. A great deal of it straightened of itself when the strain was removed, and most of it we could straighten with home-made devices. Both ends of the two houses were badly broken up, especially where the tornado carried a lumber pile into the glass, but the center 500 feet in each house stood so well that nothing was needed but to replace a few panes of glass broken by hail. At the same time, the force of the storm was so great that it broke off the steam mains. It was the iron frame that saved the houses from total destruction. Nothing could have gone uninjured through such a blow, and I am confident that all-wood houses would have been wiped off the lot."

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Examining Committees.

President Chas. H. Totty announces the committees to examine new chrysanthemums for the ensuing year, as follows:

Chicago—J. B. Deamud, chairman; E. O. Orpet, D. A. Robertson. Ship flowers to J. B. Deamud, 160 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Cincinnati—R. Witterstaetter, chairman; Jas. Allen, Henry Schwarz. Ship flowers to chairman, at Jabez Elliott Flower Market, care janitor.

Boston—Wm. Nicholson, chairman; James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Ship flowers to Boston Flower Exchange, C Park street, care chairman.

New York—Eugene Daileduoze, chairman; Wm. H. Duckham, A. Herrington. Ship flowers to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 Twenty-second street, care of chairman.

Philadelphia—A. B. Cartledge, chairman; John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Ship flowers to A. B. Cartledge, 1514 Chestnut street.

Shipments should be made to arrive by 2 p. m. on examination days to receive attention from the committee. They must be prepaid to destination and an entry fee of $2 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week in which they are to be examined, or it may accompany the blooms.

Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees, provided the raiser has given them two years' trial to determine their true character. Special attention is called to the rule that sports, to receive a certificate, must pass at least three of the five committees.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted on the following Saturdays during October and November: October 11, 18 and 25, and November 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29.

The official judging scale will be as follows:

Commercial—Color, 20; form, 15; fullness, 10; stem, 15; foliage, 15; substance, 15; size, 10; total, 100.

Exhibition—Color, 15; stem, 5; foliage, 5; fullness, 15; form, 15; depth, 15; size, 30; total, 100.

Single Varieties—Color, 40; form, 20; substance, 20; stem and foliage, 20; total, 100.

Pompons—Color, 40; form, 20; stem and foliage, 20; fullness, 20; total, 100.

SQUARE TILE BENCH SUPPORTS.

Novel ideas in greenhouse construction are continually cropping out. Florists are exercising their ingenuity especially in regard to material for benches and supports. It was not long ago that benches of concrete were a new thing. With their construction came the question of practical and lasting supports. Among the various successful schemes was that of placing drain tile on end and filling with concrete. From that it was not a long step to using heavy square tile for bench legs without any core of concrete. This is the idea used by Heinel & Weber, of Terre Haute, Ind., in the construction of their new benches, which are shown in the illustration. Every bench at this plant is now of concrete, and, say the proprietors, a perfect success. As successful as the rest of the details are the legs of square tile.

BELGIAN PLANT TRADE IN 1912.

Consul H. A. Johnson, at Ghent, Belgium, in a commercial review of the Ghent consular district for 1912, has the following to say of horticultural conditions and the sale of plants:

"It appears that horticultural conditions during 1912 were far from satisfactory, owing largely, it is claimed, to severe hail storms and the abnormally low temperature in this district during June, while the reappearance of frost in September caused a suspension of nearly all transactions in the plant industry. The demand for azaleas was weaker than during the preceding year, but this weakness was in a measure compensated for by a marked advance in prices. The demand for palms was active, especially toward the end of the year for young plants, so that, in order to fill their orders, horticulturists were in many cases obliged to purchase from abroad. Araucaria excelsa was in active demand at remunerative prices, and the demand for laurel (bay) trees showed a decided increase at advanced prices.

"A brisk trade was also carried on in rhododendrons, the price of which, owing to the fact that many plants suffered during the budding season, showed a decided upward movement. Sales in begonias were especially active and prices satisfactory. Shipments of plants direct from Ghent by way of the Terneuzen canal increased from 1,734 tons in 1911 to 1,814 tons in 1912. Exports to England and the northern European countries show a decided progress, while those to the United States show a marked falling off, due to the quarantine conditions imposed. In the orchid growing industry conditions were favorable, in spite of the unusually large quantities thrown on the market, the bulk of the exports in this line having been shipped to England.

"The demand for cut flowers, particularly orchids, increases from year to year, horticulturists having difficulty in supplying the demand, while prices advanced far beyond all previous records, especially during the Christmas and New Year holidays.

"The trade in nursery stock, especially as regards the German market, shows little or no variation from the preceding year. A marked increase was registered during 1912 in the number of horticultural establishments in this district, which, according to Dr.

Van Hove, in this province alone numbered 1,019, an estimate that is based on the latest list prepared by the Phylloxera convention, but which falls short of the true total, as many establishments are omitted from this list.

"It is claimed that in the plant export trade prices are not altogether satisfactory, as they have not shown an advance proportionate to the increase in prices of certain raw materials utilized in this industry, such as metal, glass, coal, etc., as well as wages and other necessary costs incidental to carrying on the business."

GETTING THE MONEY.

A catalogue may be "full of good short stories" for those who are in search of stock, but to the man who picks one up without a thought of buying, they are not, usually, exactly alive with interest. No matter how well printed, a catalogue is apt to get a decidedly casual reading when it falls into the hands of a man who is not a buyer. But the new catalogue of the Pennock-Meehan Co. will hold the interest of every man whose eyes fall on the first page. The foreword is a business symposium by the editor of the book and the four officers of the company that is so novel that scarcely anyone will lay it down until it is read through. Written primarily to help one business, there is good, sound sense that will help business at large. For instance, this is from Treasurer Rigby: "A big thing in helping along the progress of the flower business is for everyone to pay bills promptly. We do so. If we have not got the money, we get it. Many think that being treasurer is the easy job. Every customer can lighten the treasurer's worries if he will only resolve to keep his dates to the minute, and above all, if he finds that through unforeseen circumstances such is impossible to make at once such arrangements as will be mutually acceptable. A fall-down is bad, but silence is worse. All treasurers are supposed to be ogres, but this is largely exaggerated as a general thing, and we are always ready to lend a helping hand to the deserving."

TOMATOES FOR WINTER.

I should like to know how to treat tomatoes, as this is my first attempt to grow them in a greenhouse for market in the winter. I have two beds, 3x100 feet, and have planted three plants in a row across the benches, at every other sashbar—a distance of thirty-three inches—and have strings suspended to hold each plant. The side walls of the house are five feet high, and I want the plants to grow up the strings to the glass, but no farther. I have seen them grown in England in this way with great success, bearing enormous crops. What I want to know is how to treat the plants. Shall I let each plant grow up in one stem until it reaches the glass and then top it, letting all the suckers stay on this stem, or should the suckers which issue from each branch at the main stem be broken off? The plants are in about six inches of rich soil, with a good layer of cow manure at the bottom of the soil. S.S.

Tomatoes in winter succeed best with a well restricted root area, which checks rank growth and makes the plants much more fruitful. You would have done better if you had run two rows to a bed, allowing eighteen inches between the plants. Each plant should be trained to a single stem. All lateral growths should be rubbed out, and when the plants have reached the maximum height you wish them to attain, simply pinch out the top and see that succeeding lateral growths are removed, either by cutting or rubbing off with the hands.

Your soil is good, but for midwinter fruiting it has a little too much depth and richness. After the last part of February, plants set out as you describe would set their fruit to perfection, but another season reduce the depth of soil and, if the plants show the least signs of starvation, apply food in the way of rich top-dressing. For planting after the middle of January, such beds as you have would be excellent, but you will find that during the short, dark days such tomatoes as have the beds or benches matted with roots and can be fed with top-dressings give you more fruit than such as have a more liberal border to grow in. C. W.

TARIFF AND GLASS MARKET.

The tariff bill that is becoming law this week reduces the duty on greenhouse glass 70 cents per box of fifty feet. Under the old law the duty has been 1 7/8 cents per pound and under the new law it is cut to 1 cent per pound. In the administration of the law double-thick glass such as is used in greenhouses is figured at eighty pounds, net, per box of fifty square feet. The duty therefore has been $1.50 per box and will hereafter be 80 cents.

In spite of the gloomy predictions which have been indulged in by leading members of the glass trade, it now appears that they are taking a new point of view. Representatives of the glass industry told members of Congress during the discussion of the tariff that the reduction would be absolutely disastrous, and it was testified by them during the lobby inquiry that they had paid $17,500 to a New York lawyer to have him work against the proposed revision of the schedule. Nevertheless, the trade in window glass is now extremely optimistic and is indicating this optimism in a variety of ways. As to window glass prospects, letters recently sent out by the Johnston Brokerage Co., of Pittsburgh, a concern which represents the joint interests of the hand manufacturers, to members of the trade show what the feeling is. A recent letter reads in part as follows:

About forty per cent more glass was sold by hand factories in July, 1913, than in the same month in 1912. August sales will equal, if not exceed, those of July. Popular sizes are becoming scarce. "A" quality, single and double, likewise. Up to this time there has been no change in price, and there is every reason to think that discounts will be advanced on popular sizes and on "A" quality at an early date. The workers are talking about higher wages for next year, which will undoubtedly provoke a contest with their employers and possibly delay a start. This demand for higher wages is rather a surprise, as a great many manufacturers felt that workers would be willing to make some concession, anticipating the effect of the new tariff bill. Prices abroad are still high, and if the foreign discounts continue on the present basis, no glass can be brought into this market in competition with the American product at present selling price. Before we need have any fears, even on coast points, of foreign competition, their prices would have to be greatly reduced, and it is doubtful if we will have competition under any circumstances at interior points. It will stand the jobbers and sash houses in hand to send in their orders promptly, as later on they will likely pay a higher price for goods and it is a question whether they can have their wants supplied promptly and completely.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

It is the effort of the American Rose Society to obtain a complete and accurate list of all the varieties of roses which have been originated on the American continent, as far as it is possible to obtain them. This letter is addressed to rosarians with the hope of obtaining the fullest assistance in this direction. It is the intent to publish in the annual bulletin of the American Rose Society the list, as fast as it can be properly compiled, for authentic record.

Will you please give us this information: What roses have you originated? In what year? At what place? Pedigree of the same.

If you have not personally done this work, but have any information bearing upon the subject, will you kindly give what assistance you can?

THE NEW TARIFF RATES IN FORCE THIS WEEK

The Conference committee reported the tariff bill back to the House September 29, and the bill was immediately adopted. The Senate will take similar action at once, and the bill is expected to go into force with signing by the President before the end of this week.

The rates on trade commodities are as published in The Review for June 26; the only change is the elimination of the words "4 years old or less" after "coniferous evergreen seedlings," which are in the free list. The effect is to continue to admit coniferous evergreen seedlings of any age, as in the past, free of duty, instead of putting a limit at 4 years of age and making coniferous evergreens of greater age pay fifteen per cent, as the trade wanted.

The paragraphs covering seeds, bulbs, plants, nursery stock, etc., are as follows:

214. Peas, green or dried, in bulk or in barrels, sacks or similar packages, 10 cents per bushel of sixty pounds; split peas, 20 cents per bushel of sixty pounds; peas in cartons, papers or other similar packages, including the weight of the immediate covering, 1/2 cent per pound.

215. Orchids, palms, azalea indica and cut flowers, preserved or fresh, 25 per centum ad valorem; lily of the valley pips, tulips, narcissus, begonia and gloxinia bulbs, $1 per thousand; hyacinth bulbs, astilbe, dielytra and lily of the valley clumps, $2.50 per thousand; lily bulbs and calla bulbs or corms, $5 per thousand; herbaceous peony, Iris Kaempferi or Germanica, canna, dahlia and amaryllis bulbs, $10 per thousand; all other bulbs, roots, root stocks, corms and tubers which are cultivated for their flowers or foliage, 50 cents per thousand; Provided, That all mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes shall be admitted free of duty.

216. Stocks, cuttings or seedlings of Myrobalan plum, Mahaleb or Mazzard cherry, Manetti multiflora and briar rose, Rosa Rugosa, three years old or less, $1 per thousand plants; stocks, cuttings or seedlings of pear, apple, quince and the Saint Julien plum, three years old or less, $1 per thousand plants; rose plants, budded, grafted or grown on their own roots, 4 cents each; stocks, cuttings and seedlings of all fruit and ornamental trees, deciduous and evergreen shrubs and vines, and all trees, shrubs, plants and vines commonly known as nursery or greenhouse stock, not specially provided for in this section, 15 per centum ad valorem.

217. Seeds: Castor beans or seeds, 15 cents per bushel of fifty pounds; flaxseed or linseed and other oil seeds not specially provided for in this section, 20 cents per bushel of fifty-six pounds; poppy seed, 15 cents per bushel of forty-seven pounds; mushroom spawn and spinach seed, 1 cent per pound; canary seed, 1/2 cent per pound; caraway seed, 1 cent per pound; anise seed, 2 cents per pound; beet (except sugar beet), carrot, corn salad, parsley, parsnip, radish, turnip and rutabaga seed, 3 cents per pound; cabbage, collard, kale and kohl-rabi seed, 6 cents per pound; egg plant and pepper seed, 10 cents per pound; seeds of all kinds not specially provided for in this section, 5 cents per pound; Provided, That no allowance shall be made for dirt or other impurities in seeds provided for in this paragraph.

DISEASES OF THE VIOLET.

The Root Rot Disease.

In the earlier parts of this discussion, by Dr. Donald Reddick, of Ithaca, N. Y., the character and extent of the violet root rot disease, thielavia, were described. At Cornell a number of experiments have been conducted to ascertain the conditions which lead to the disease and to find, if possible, means of holding it in control. Among the conclusions reached are the following:

Spraying and Watering.

It would be desirable to prevent infections on the runners if there were any practical way of effecting it. Any of the common fungicides, used as a spray, would probably be effective, providing the spray could be applied thoroughly. Those who have sprayed violet foliage, however, advise against it on account of injury. Furthermore, it would be nearly impossible to cover the runners on the underside with the spray. New roots, too, issuing from the runners at frequent intervals, permit of carrying infection from spores in the soil to the runners without the possibility of intervention by a fungicide.

Many growers think there is a close relation between the method of watering, particularly the quantity of water used, and the occurrence of thielavia root rot. Recent experiments in England by Chittenden seem to bear out this belief. It was found there, as well as in other places, that infection does not occur readily on the roots of plants except when they are grown in soggy or water-logged soil. The writer has lately been attempting to infect the roots of tobacco and sweet peas with the thielavia fungus. Considerable difficulty has been experienced. A good many plants have developed typical lesions of the disease, but the amount of disease has not been great. The soil used in these experiments has been a rather light soil and one which drains readily. The failure to obtain infections is attributed largely to the fact that the soil can not be kept wet enough.

Crown Rot.

Only brief mention will be made of crown rot and the other diseases to be discussed. The crown rot, as the name signifies, is a rotting of the crown of plants, with the subsequent death of many of the runners. The same disease occurs in the cutting beds and is commonly known as damping off. In both cases the tissues become slimy and rot rapidly. The disease occurs in areas where plants have been too wet, often under a leak in a water pipe or under a hole in the roof during prolonged wet weather.

The disease is apparently caused by a fungus, although no one seems to have studied it extensively. The organism in its vegetative and sclerotial stages has the appearance of a sclerotinia. Possibly it is S. libertiana, a common disease producer.

Sanitation Saves Stock.

The species of sclerotinia are, for the most part, ones that take advantage of plants that are in a weakened condition. They more often exist as saprophytes and are not particularly choice about the source of food. For that reason it is doubtful whether sanitary measures recommended in the case of the thielavia root rot would prove entirely effective. Here is a case where the good health of the host plant is of importance in disease control, whereas, with the more active parasites, constitutionally sickly plants are frequently unattacked. Since the water-soaking of soil leads to an unhealthy condition and seems to be the most frequent attendant circumstance of this trouble, the matter of control is relatively simple. Aside from the removal of diseased plants, some growers seem to have checked the spread of the disease by heavy dusting of air-slaked lime in the affected region.

Leaf-Spot and Gray Mold.

As the name implies, leaf-spot diseases are characterized by certain definite spots on the foliage. There are a number of different organisms concerned, each one of which forms a perfectly distinct and definite type of lesion. The more important ones, however, are Alternaria violæ and Phyllosticta violæ. Dorsett and Galloway regard the disease caused by alternaria as the most serious violet disease, but leaf-spots of any kind have not been particularly destructive in our houses in recent years except in a few instances. In one house, however, the alternaria disease was destructive for a number of weeks. The owner of the house picked off infected leaves as fast as they appeared, but was not successful in checking the spread of the disease, so that nearly all of the foliage was lost. He complained particularly of not having the necessary foliage to surround the bunches of flowers; even greater damage was done by the loss of so much leaf surface, which decreased the vitality of the plants.

Spraying of violets for foliage troubles has met with indifferent success, according to experiments of Halsted and Galloway. If the plants are watered late in the day, the clinging drops of water should be knocked from the foliage by passing over them a long stick held at a level which will cause the leaves to bend and then spring back suddenly. Careful attention to watering and the prompt removal of spotted leaves are the precautions to be observed in combating these diseases.

Leaves and stems often turn yellow or brown and in a day or two become covered with a gray mold. This mold is a fungus of the genus botrytis, possibly Botrytis vulgaris, a common organism living mostly as a saprophyte and only occurring on living plants that are low in vitality. Whenever a leaf or stem is broken or is girdled by thielavia, botrytis is apt to appear on it to complete the destruction. The occurrence of the mold in the house is not of itself to be regarded seriously.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There is now something akin to a scarcity of flowers in the markets, and if the demand were at all robust, there would not be nearly enough to go around. As it is, with but moderate calls, prices have shown a hardening tendency. Frosts and late rains have to a large extent finished the aster crop, and, while a considerable number still come in, they are small and nearing the end. Gladioli are arriving in lessened numbers, with a proportionate drop in size and quality. Dahlias, where they escaped early frosts, are now of good quality, but somehow these flowers have never become popular here.

Roses have improved considerably in quality with clear skies and cooler nights. Beauties, Russells, Killarney Queens and Tafts are leaders in popularity. Prices on all grades show a little improvement. Carnations are not yet abundant, but are selling well, the bulk at $2 to $3, with some specials at $4. Quite a few single violets are coming in and bring 50 cents to 75 cents per hundred. Valley is of good quality, and just about sufficient for the demands. The same is true of longiflorum lilies. Chrysanthemum Golden Glow is overabundant, but there is only a limited supply of Smith's Advance and other varieties. Glory of Pacific and Polly Rose are due this week from several growers. Cattleya labiata is more plentiful and prices are easier. Oncidium varicosum Rogersii is abundant and good. More gardenias are arriving. Asparagus is in good supply and the demand is healthier. Colored foliage plants, Lorraine begonias, nephrolepis, ardisias and palms are now in good demand.

TARIFF AND GLASS MARKET.

The tariff bill that is becoming law this week reduces the duty on greenhouse glass 70 cents per box of fifty feet. Under the old law the duty has been 17½ cents per pound and under the new law it is cut to 1 cent per pound. In the administration of the law double-thick glass such as is used in greenhouses is figured at eighty pounds, net, per box of fifty square feet. The duty therefore has been $1.50 per box and will hereafter be 80 cents.

In spite of the gloomy predictions which have been indulged in by leading members of the glass trade, it now appears that they are taking a new point of view. Representatives of the glass industry told members of Congress during the discussion of the tariff that the reduction would be absolutely disastrous, and it was testified by them during the lobby inquiry that they had paid $17,500 to a New York lawyer to have him work against the proposed revision of the schedule. Nevertheless, the trade in window glass is now extremely optimistic and is indicating this optimism in a variety of ways. As to window glass prospects, letters recently sent out by the Johnston Brokerage Co., of Pittsburgh, a concern which represents the joint interests of the hand manufacturers, to members of the trade show what the feeling is. A recent letter reads in part as follows:

About forty per cent more glass was sold by hand factories in July, 1913, than in the same month in 1912. August sales will equal, if not exceed, those of July. Popular sizes are becoming scarce. "A" quality, single and double, likewise. Up to this time there has been no change in price, and there is every reason to think that discounts will be advanced on popular sizes and on "A" quality at an early date. The workers are talking about higher wages for next year, which will undoubtedly provoke a contest with their employers and possibly delay a start. This demand for higher wages is rather a surprise, as a great many manufacturers felt that workers would be willing to make some concession, anticipating the effect of the new tariff bill. Prices abroad are still high, and if the foreign discounts continue on the present basis, no glass can be brought into this market in competition with the American product at present selling price. Therefore we need have any fears, even on coast points, of foreign competition, their prices would have to be greatly reduced, and it is doubtful if we will have competition under any circumstances at interior points. It will stand the jobbers and sash houses in hand to send in their orders promptly, as later on they will likely pay a higher price for goods and it is a question whether they can have their wants supplied promptly and completely.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

It is the effort of the American Rose Society to obtain a complete and accurate list of all the varieties of roses which have been originated on the American continent, as far as it is possible to obtain them. This letter is addressed to rosarians with the hope of obtaining the fullest assistance in this direction. It is the intent to publish in the annual bulletin of the American Rose Society the list, as fast as it can be properly compiled, for authentic record.

Will you please give us this information: What roses have you originated? In what year? At what place? Pedigree of the same.

If you have not personally done this work, but have any information bearing upon the subject, will you kindly give what assistance you can?

THE NEW TARIFF RATES IN FORCE THIS WEEK

The Conference committee reported the tariff bill back to the House September 29, and the bill was immediately adopted. The Senate will take similar action at once, and the bill is expected to go into force with signing by the President before the end of this week.

The rates on trade commodities are as published in The Review for June 26; the only change is the elimination of the words "4 years old or less" after "coniferous evergreen seedlings," which are in the free list. The effect is to continue to admit coniferous evergreen seedlings of any age, as in the past, free of duty, instead of putting a limit at 4 years of age and making coniferous evergreens of greater age pay fifteen per cent, as the trade wanted.

The paragraphs covering seeds, bulbs, plants, nursery stock, etc., are as follows:

214. Peas, green or dried, in bulk or in barrels, sacks or similar packages, 10 cents per bushel of sixty pounds; split peas, 20 cents per bushel of sixty pounds; peas in cartons, papers or other similar packages, including the weight of the immediate covering, ½ cent per pound.

215. Orchids, palms, azalea indica and cut flowers, preserved or fresh, 25 per centum ad valorem; lily of the valley pips, tulips, narcissus, begonia and gloxinia bulbs, $1 per thousand; hyacinth bulbs, astilbe, dielytra and lily of the valley clumps, $2.50 per thousand; lily bulbs and calla bulbs or corms, $5 per thousand; herbaceous peony, Iris Kaempferi or Germanica, canna, dahlia and amaryllis bulbs, $10 per thousand; all other bulbs, roots, root stocks, corms and tubers which are cultivated for their flowers or foliage, 50 cents per thousand; Provided, That all mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes shall be admitted free of duty.

216. Stocks, cuttings or seedlings of Myrobalan plum, Mahaleb or Mazzard cherry, Manetti multiflora and briar rose, Rosa Rugosa, three years old or less, $1 per thousand plants; stocks, cuttings or seedlings of pear, apple, quince and the Saint Julien plum, three years old or less, $1 per thousand plants; rose plants, budded, grafted or grown on their own roots, 4 cents each; stocks, cuttings and seedlings of all fruit and ornamental trees, deciduous and evergreen shrubs and vines, and all trees, shrubs, plants and vines commonly known as nursery or greenhouse stock, not specially provided for in this section, 15 per centum ad valorem.

217. Seeds: Castor beans or seeds, 15 cents per bushel of fifty pounds; flaxseed or linseed and other oil seeds not specially provided for in this section, 20 cents per bushel of fifty-six pounds; poppy seed, 15 cents per bushel of forty-seven pounds; mushroom spawn and spinach seed, 1 cent per pound; canary seed, ½ cent per pound; caraway seed, 1 cent per pound; anise seed, 2 cents per pound; beet (except sugar beet), carrot, corn salad, parsley, parsnip, radish, turnip and rutabaga seed, 3 cents per pound; cabbage, collard, kale and kohlrabi seed, 6 cents per pound; egg plant and pepper seed, 10 cents per pound; seeds of all kinds not specially provided for in this section, 5 cents per pound; Provided, That no allowance shall be made for dirt or other impurities in seeds provided for in this paragraph.

DISEASES OF THE VIOLET.

The Root Rot Disease.

In the earlier parts of this discussion, by Dr. Donald Reddick, of Ithaca, N. Y., the character and extent of the violet root rot disease, thielavia, were described. At Cornell a number of experiments have been conducted to ascertain the conditions which lead to the disease and to find, if possible, means of holding it in control. Among the conclusions reached are the following:

Spraying and Watering.

It would be desirable to prevent infections on the runners if there were any practical way of effecting it. Any of the common fungicides, used as a spray, would probably be effective, providing the spray could be applied thoroughly. Those who have sprayed violet foliage, however, advise against it on account of injury. Furthermore, it would be nearly impossible to cover the runners on the underside with the spray. New roots, too, issuing from the runners at frequent intervals, permit of carrying infection from spores in the soil to the runners without the possibility of intervention by a fungicide.

Many growers think there is a close relation between the method of watering, particularly the quantity of water used, and the occurrence of thielavia root rot. Recent experiments in England by Chittenden seem to bear out this belief. It was found there, as well as in other places, that infection does not occur readily on the roots of plants except when they are grown in soggy or water-logged soil. The writer has lately been attempting to infect the roots of tobacco and sweet peas with the thielavia fungus. Considerable difficulty has been experienced. A good many plants have developed typical lesions of the disease, but the amount of disease has not been great. The soil used in these experiments has been a rather light soil and one which drains readily. The failure to obtain infections is attributed largely to the fact that the soil can not be kept wet enough.

Crown Rot.

Only brief mention will be made of crown rot and the other diseases to be discussed. The crown rot, as the name signifies, is a rotting of the crown of plants, with the subsequent death of many of the runners. The same disease occurs in the cutting beds and is commonly known as damping off. In both cases the tissues become slimy and rot rapidly. The disease occurs in areas where plants have been too wet, often under a leak in a water pipe or under a hole in the roof during prolonged wet weather.

The disease is apparently caused by a fungus, although no one seems to have studied it extensively. The organism in its vegetative and sclerotial stages has the appearance of a sclerotinia. Possibly it is S. libertiana, a common disease producer.

Sanitation Saves Stock.

The species of sclerotinia are, for the most part, ones that take advantage of plants that are in a weakened condition. They more often exist as saprophytes and are not particularly choice about the source of food. For that reason it is doubtful whether sanitary measures recommended in the case of the thielavia root rot would prove entirely effective. Here is a case where the good health of the host plant is of importance in disease control, whereas, with the more active parasites, constitutionally sickly plants are frequently unattacked. Since the water-soaking of soil leads to an unhealthy condition and seems to be the most frequent attendant circumstance of this trouble, the matter of control is relatively simple. Aside from the removal of diseased plants, some growers seem to have checked the spread of the disease by heavy dusting of air-slaked lime in the affected region.

Leaf-Spot and Gray Mold.

As the name implies, leaf-spot diseases are characterized by certain definite spots on the foliage. There are a number of different organisms concerned, each one of which forms a perfectly distinct and definite type of lesion. The more important ones, however, are Alternaria violæ and Phyllosticta violæ. Dorsett and Galloway regard the disease caused by alternaria as the most serious violet disease, but leaf-spots of any kind have not been particularly destructive in our houses in recent years except in a few instances. In one house, however, the alternaria disease was destructive for a number of weeks. The owner of the house picked off infected leaves as fast as they appeared, but was not successful in checking the spread of the disease, so that nearly all of the foliage was lost. He complained particularly of not having the necessary foliage to surround the bunches of flowers; even greater damage was done by the loss of so much leaf surface, which decreased the vitality of the plants.

Spraying of violets for foliage troubles has met with indifferent success, according to experiments of Halsted and Galloway. If the plants are watered late in the day, the clinging drops of water should be knocked from the foliage by passing over them a long stick held at a level which will cause the leaves to bend and then spring back suddenly. Careful attention to watering and the prompt removal of spotted leaves are the precautions to be observed in combating these diseases.

Leaves and stems often turn yellow or brown and in a day or two become covered with a gray mold. This mold is a fungus of the genus botrytis, possibly Botrytis vulgaris, a common organism living mostly as a saprophyte and only occurring on living plants that are low in vitality. Whenever a leaf or stem is broken or is girdled by thielavia, botrytis is apt to appear on it to complete the destruction. The occurrence of the mold in the house is not of itself to be regarded seriously.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There is now something akin to a scarcity of flowers in the markets, and if the demand were at all robust, there would not be nearly enough to go around. As it is, with but moderate calls, prices have shown a hardening tendency. Frosts and late rains have to a large extent finished the aster crop, and, while a considerable number still come in, they are small and nearing the end. Gladioli are arriving in lessened numbers, with a proportionate drop in size and quality. Dahlias, where they escaped early frosts, are now of good quality, but somehow these flowers have never become popular here.

Roses have improved considerably in quality with clear skies and cooler nights. Beauties, Russells, Killarney Queens and Tarts are leaders in popularity. Prices on all grades show a little improvement. Carnations are not yet abundant, but are selling well, the bulk at $2 to $3, with some specials at $4. Quite a few single violets are coming in and bring 50 cents to 75 cents per hundred. Valley is of good quality, and just about sufficient for the demands. The same is true of longiflorum lilies. Chrysanthemum Golden Glow is overabundant, but there is only a limited supply of Smith's Advance and other varieties. Glory of Pacific and Polly Rose are due this week from several growers. Cattleya labiata is more plentiful and prices are easier. Oncidium varicosum Rogersii is abundant and good. More gardenias are arriving. Asparagus is in good supply and the demand is healthier. Colored foliage plants, Lorraine begonias, nephrolepis, ardisias and palms are now in good demand.

Club Field Day.

Beautiful weather prevailed September 27, for the field day of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club at the nurseries of Farquhar & Co., Dedham, and there was an attendance of 100, including many ladies. The nurseries, which cover nearly 100 acres, are filled with beautifully grown trees, shrubs, climbers, roses and herbaceous perennials. Among them are many new and rare varieties, including Wilson novelties. The display of hardy asters and phloxes was particularly fine, while the test ground for annuals contained much of interest. One of the large greenhouses, 56x200, is planted with Comet tomatoes, one or two branches on each plant being already set. Another house, of similar size, contained fine batches of geraniums, fuchsias, ardisias, gardenias, etc., for store trade. Fine cyclamens filled one house and some frames. The big stock of Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias was already nearly sold out. All the greenhouses, sheds, etc., are of concrete construction, and are built in the most up-to-date manner. A fine new propagating house is just nearing completion. There are extensive storage sheds for trees, shrubs, fertilizers, etc., all located so as to be convenient to railroad sidings.

A bountiful collation was served in the immense packing shed, following which President Kennedy called on several of those present for short addresses. Among those responding were E. H. Wilson, Thomas Roland, William Sim, W. J. Stewart, W. N. Craig and H. H. Bartsch, all of whom eulogized the Messrs. Farquhar for the great work they have been doing in building up such an establishment and in accomplishing so much for the advancement of horticulture. Mr. Farquhar, in responding, received an enthusiastic greeting.

Various Notes.

Jacob Hirsch, assistant salesman to J. M. Cohen, of the Boston Coöperative Flower Market, was married September 24 to Miss Hattie Cohen. The ceremony was attended by many members of the trade and the young couple received many gifts from their numerous friends.

Preliminary schedules for the 1914 exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society have been issued. Twelve exhibitions are provided for. The midwinter show will be held January 31 and February 1; the spring show, March 12 to 15, and the chrysanthemum show, November 5 to 8. Liberal prizes are offered at all the shows.

Frank McDermott, of Milton, who left for California October 1, was given a farewell party by 150 friends at Jamaica Plain, Mass., September 27. A handsome dress suit case was presented to him by friends from Rothesay, Scotland, who were present in large numbers. Peter McKenzie, of Brookline, another popular young man who left at the same time for the same state, was given a send-off greeting at the Clarendon hotel September 29, and to him was presented a beautiful gold Gillette safety razor set.

L. E. Small, of Tewksbury, has commenced shipping fine flowers of Pink Delight, Benora, Beacon, Gloriosa and White Wonder carnations to the Boston Coöperative Market.

The new scarlet forcing rose, Hadley, from the Waban Rose Conservatories and the Montgomery greenhouses, South Hadley, Mass., is proving popular at all the high-class stores. Its color is brilliant, and it will be more heard from in the near future.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. report a satisfactory trade during September. They are busy unpacking numerous novelties for the coming winter's trade.

The annual vegetable show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be held October 4 and 5, and the chrysanthemum show October 30 and 31 and November 1 and 2.

The next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be held October 14, the halls of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society all being rented for October 21, the regular date. M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., will read a paper on "Who is the Real Gardener?"

ordering her to not to use the name, "Zinn's Flower Shop," in connection with her business, it was announced that the two would probably come to an amicable settlement and the case was allowed to stand. MANY MAY BEETLES COMING.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture gives warning that the May beetle is expected to be unusually abundant in 1914.

Great as is the damage to florists' crops inflicted by this pest, the loss on farm crops is infinitely greater.

"A conservative estimate places the damage to corn, timothy and potatoes in Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois done by the common white grubs in 1912 at not less than $7,000,000. The damage to the same crops in other infested areas can not be figured at less than $5,000,000, which brings the total loss, exclusive of strawberries, nursery stock, lawns and miscellaneous crops to not less than $12,000,000 for one year. Injury was sustained in almost every section of the country north of the Ohio river from the Atlantic ocean to South Dakota.

"Observations seem to make it quite certain that in the northern states the total life cycle of this injurious species is three years. May beetles were unusually abundant in 1908 and 1911 and the grubs caused the greatest damage in 1909 and 1912. Those in the regions infested last year will find it of special value to do deep plowing this fall. Ordinarily the best time to plow is between October 1 and 15. The grubs will at this time have changed to pupæ and adult beetles. These pass the winter in cells, and if the cells are disturbed their inhabitants will be destroyed. It is important to remember that plowing should not be delayed until cold weather, for then the grubs will have gone down to their winter quarters, beyond the reach of the plow.

"An infested field may be thoroughly freed from grubs by pasturing it with hogs, and this method should be followed wherever possible. Hogs will root to a depth of a foot or more in search of grubs. Liberal applications of commercial fertilizer will assist grass in overcoming grubs if there are not too many of them. When a lawn is badly infested the sod should be removed and the grubs gathered by hand, after which fall plowing will probably prove satisfactory. In Europe cheap labor is often employed to gather grubs after the plow, especially where the grubs are numerous."

ITHACA, N. Y.

The floricultural work in the College of Agriculture opened in earnest with the beginning of class work September 25. Prof. E. A. White assumed his duties as head of the department September 15 and commenced the year's work with a talk to the students on "Floricultural Education" at the weekly seminar in floriculture. The scope of the work was outlined and plans laid for strengthening along all lines the work given in the university.

A large number of students have registered for courses in floriculture and the prospects are bright for a prosperous year.

Prof. A. C. Beal, who is in charge of the investigational work of the department, plans to begin quite soon a survey of the greenhouse industry of New York.

A large number of registrations are already coming in for the short courses in floriculture, which begin November 11 and close February 13. This is a most valuable feature of the college work. Aside from subjects which deal directly with the culture of florists' crops, men in these short courses may take subjects in soils, plant diseases, plant breeding, insects, landscape art, vegetable gardening, and others of like nature which touch closely the flower grower's work and interests. These courses are being strengthened yearly. They are especially valuable for young men employed in greenhouse establishments who have not had educational advantages of a broader nature. Anyone interested should send to the secretary of the College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y., for an "Announcement of Winter Courses," or write to Prof. E. A. White, of the Department of Floriculture.

WORK FOR NEW FAIR BUILDING.

A joint committee representing the various horticultural organizations of New York state which are working for a new horticultural building at the state fair grounds at Syracuse, N. Y., met in that city September 25 to organize. All the exhibitors expressed their dissatisfaction with the old building at the fair last month so strongly that authority was given William F. Kasting, president of the New York State Federation of Floral Clubs, to confer with the other organizations interested in the project. The president and another member of each organization were appointed to serve on the joint committee, which will confer with the fair commission when the latter has closed the business of the recent exposition. The committee is composed of the following delegates:

New York State Vegetable Growers' Association—President C. R. White, Ionia; Prof. Paul Work, Ithaca, head of the vegetable culture department of the State Agricultural College. Alternate—Edward Arndts, Syracuse, President of the Syracuse Vegetable Growers' Association.

Western New York Horticultural Society—President William C. Barry, Rochester; John Hall, Rochester, twenty years secretary of the society and editor of The Fruit Grower.

New York State Federation of Floral Clubs—President W. F. Kasting, Buffalo; Vice-president Ed. A. Bates, Syracuse. Alternate—Frank R. Pierson, Tarrytown.

New York State Fruit Growers' Association—President Louis L. Morrell, Kinderhook; Secretary E. C. Gillette, Penn Yan.

NEW YORK.The Market.

Indian summer arrived a week ago. The weather has been perfect, and on Saturday a cheerful atmosphere pervaded the wholesale cut flower market. Only a frost and clear, cool weather are needed to set the wheels of prosperity in motion. The week end was reminiscent of old times, in a general uplift. Prices were steadier, and, for roses and carnations, somewhat higher, especially for selected stock. From now on a steady improvement may be anticipated.

The quality of American Beauties is better, and the increased demand a factor. These have been the fulcrum whereby the whole rose market has begun its fall advance, a progress that will be slow but sure. Splendid Shawyer, Milady, Russell, Sunburst, Killarney, Hillingdon, Bulgarie and Maryland are available every day. The short-stemmed varieties are still abundant and sell at low prices. Of carnations, Matchless, Mrs. Ward, Enchantress and Beacon have now longer stems and larger flowers, and prices have advanced to $2 for the select.

Orchids are extremely abundant. There are plenty of oncidiums and labiatus, and more to follow. They make the retail windows quite attractive, but prices are down to 35 cents for the best of them. Lilies continue to hold the average of the last two weeks, but valley has again touched the 3-cents-high level, quite a break from the quotation of a week ago. A few gardenias are arriving. There are few gladioli, but of asters there is still a sufficiency, and of dahlias a limitless supply. There seems to be no desire for tuberose. Hydrangea paniculata is now perfect.

"WHO'S WHO—AND WHY"W. H. GUNTHER.

YOUNG as he looks, W. H. Gunther is celebrating his silver jubilee as a wholesale commission florist in New York. Mr. Gunther was born in Manhattan in 1861, educated there, and began his business life in the district for which New York is most noted, Wall street, having held clerkships under Russell Sage and Henry Clews. It was October 1, 1888, that he established his wholesale cut flower business, at Forty-second street and Sixth avenue. For seventeen years he was on Twenty-ninth street, just west of Broadway, and now for nearly eight years he has been on West Twenty-eighth street, where since 1906 his brother John has been a member of the firm. Mr. Gunther has two hobbies, business and baseball. He is one of the most companionable and popular men in the trade, enjoying the good will of all who know him.

The mum shipments are increasing daily. Some fine varieties are bringing $3 per dozen. There will soon be a tremendous flood of them, and there is no danger of exorbitant prices. Better values are anticipated for everything in October.

Various Notes.

The eighth annual dahlia show of the New Jersey Horticultural Society was held at Orange, N. J., Saturday and Sunday, September 27 and 28. As usual, it was a splendid success.

At the American Institute fair last week, the attendance was satisfactory, the new exhibition hall adequate for the exhibits and the display of fruits, vegetables and flowers fully up to the records of the other eighty-one years of the society's history. The principal exhibitors were Geo. L. Stillman, the Bergenfield Nurseries, Baer Bros., David Herbert & Son, Forbes & Keith, J. M. Thorburn & Co., Harold Cottam, P. W. Popp, John Lewis Childs, C. H. Totty, W. H. Duckham, Wm. Dowlen, Julius Roehrs Co., and Richard Vincent, Jr. The judges were Peter Duff, E. Reagen and John G. McNicoll.

May beetles were unusually abundant in 1908 and 1911 and the grubs caused the greatest damage in 1909 and 1912. Those in the regions infested last year will find it of special value to do deep plowing this fall. Ordinarily the best time to plow is between October 1 and 15. The grubs will at this time have changed to pupa and adult beetles. These pass the winter in cells, and if the cells are disturbed their inhabitants will be destroyed. It is important to remember that plowing should not be delayed until cold weather, for then the grubs will have gone down to their winter quarters, beyond the reach of the plow.

An infested field may be thoroughly freed from grubs by pasturing it with hogs, and this method should be followed wherever possible. Hogs will root to a depth of a foot or more in search of grubs. Liberal applications of commercial fertilizer will assist grass in overcoming grubs if there are not too many of them. When a lawn is badly infested the sod should be removed and the grubs gathered by hand after which fall plowing will probably prove satisfactory. In Europe cheap labor is often employed to gather grubs after the plow, especially where the grubs are numerous.

ITHACA, N. Y.

The floricultural work in the College of Agriculture opened in earnest with the beginning of class work September 25. Prof. E. A. White assumed his duties as head of the department September 15 and commenced the year's work with a talk to the students on "Floricultural Education" at the weekly seminar in floriculture. The scope of the work was outlined and plans laid for strengthening along all lines the work given in the university.

A large number of students have registered for courses in floriculture and the prospects are bright for a prosperous year.

Prof. A. C. Beal, who is in charge of the investigational work of the department, plans to begin quite soon a survey of the greenhouse industry of New York.

A large number of registrations are already coming in for the short courses in floriculture, which begin November 11 and close February 13. This is a most valuable feature of the college work. Aside from subjects which deal directly with the culture of florists' crops, men in these short courses may take subjects in soils, plant diseases, plant breeding, insects, landscape art, vegetable gardening, and others of like nature which touch closely the flower grower's work and interests. These courses are being strengthened yearly. They are especially valuable for young men employed in greenhouse establishments who have not had educational advantages of a broader nature. Anyone interested should send to the secretary of the College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y., for an "Announcement of Winter Courses," or write to Prof. E. A. White, of the Department of Floriculture.

WORK FOR NEW FAIR BUILDING.

A joint committee representing the various horticultural organizations of New York state which are working for a new horticultural building at the state fair grounds at Syracuse, N. Y., met in that city September 25 to organize. All the exhibitors expressed their dissatisfaction with the old building at the fair last month so strongly that authority was given William F. Kasting, president of the New York State Federation of Floral Clubs, to confer with the other organizations interested in the project. The president and another member of each organization were appointed to serve on the joint committee, which will confer with the fair commission when the latter has closed the business of the recent exposition. The committee is composed of the following delegates:

New York State Vegetable Growers' Association—President C. R. White, Ionia; Prof. Paul Work, Ithaca, head of the vegetable culture department of the State Agricultural College. Alternate—Edward Arndts, Syracuse, President of the Syracuse Vegetable Growers' Association.

Western New York Horticultural Society—President William C. Barry, Rochester; John Hall, Rochester, twenty years secretary of the society and editor of The Fruit Grower.

New York State Federation of Floral Clubs—President W. F. Kasting, Buffalo; Vice president Ed. A. Bates, Syracuse. Alternate—Frank R. Pierson, Tarrytown.

New York State Fruit Growers' Association—President Louis L. Morrell, Kinderhook; Secretary E. C. Gillette, Penn Yan.

NEW YORK.The Market.

Indian summer arrived a week ago. The weather has been perfect, and on Saturday a cheerful atmosphere pervaded the wholesale cut flower market. Only a frost and clear, cool weather are needed to set the wheels of prosperity in motion. The week end was reminiscent of old times, in a general uplift. Prices were steadier, and, for roses and carnations, somewhat higher, especially for selected stock. From now on a steady improvement may be anticipated.

The quality of American Beauties is better, and the increased demand a factor. These have been the fulcrum whereby the whole rose market has begun its fall advance, a progress that will be slow but sure. Splendid Shawyer, Milady, Russell, Sunburst, Killarney, Hillingdon, Bulgarie and Maryland are available every day. The short-stemmed varieties are still abundant and sell at low prices. Of carnations, Matchless, Mrs. Ward, Enchantress and Beacon have now longer stems and larger flowers, and prices have advanced to $2 for the select.

Orchids are extremely abundant. There are plenty of oncidiums and labiatus, and more to follow. They make the retail windows quite attractive, but prices are down to 35 cents for the best of them. Lilies continue to hold the average of the last two weeks, but calley has again touched the 3-cents-high level, quite a break from the quotation of a week ago. A few gardenias are arriving. There are few gladioli, but of asters there is still a sufficiency, and of dahlias a limitless supply. There seems to be no desire for tuberose. Hydrangea paniculata is now perfect.

“WHO’S WHO—AND WHY”W. H. GUNTHER.

YOUNG as he looks, W. H. Gunther is celebrating his silver jubilee as a wholesale commission florist in New York. Mr. Gunther was born in Manhattan in 1861, educated there, and began his business life in the district for which New York is most noted, Wall street, having held clerkships under Russell Sage and Henry Claws. It was October 1, 1888, that he established his wholesale cut flower business, at Forty-second street and Sixth avenue. For seventeen years he was on Twenty-ninth street, just west of Broadway, and now for nearly eight years he has been on West Twenty-eighth street, where since 1906 his brother John has been a member of the firm. Mr. Gunther has two hobbies, business and baseball. He is one of the most companionable and popular men in the trade, enjoying the good will of all who know him.

The mum shipments are increasing daily. Some fine varieties are bringing $3 per dozen. There will soon be a tremendous flood of them, and there is no danger of exorbitant prices. Better values are anticipated for everything in October.

Various Notes.

The eighth annual dahlia show of the New Jersey Horticultural Society was held at Orange, N. J., Saturday and Sunday, September 27 and 28. As usual, it was a splendid success.

At the American Institute fair last week, the attendance was satisfactory, the new exhibition hall adequate for the exhibits and the display of fruits, vegetables and flowers fully up to the records of the other eighty-one years of the society's history. The principal exhibitors were Geo. L. Stillman, the Bergenfield Nurseries, Baer Bros., David Herbert & Son, Forbes & Keith, J. M. Thorburn & Co., Harold Cottam, P. W. Popp, John Lewis Childs, C. H. Totty, W. H. Duckham, Wm. Dowlen, Julius Roehrs Co., and Richard Vincent, Jr. The judges were Peter Duff, E. Reagan and John G. McNicoll.

The stork arrived Friday morning, September 26, with Robert MacNiff, Jr., and the genial auctioneer is receiving many congratulations.

At the Mineola fair last week on Long Island, a daily average attendance of 25,000 rewarded its promoters. Henry A. Dreer, Inc., had a fine exhibit of water lilies, John Lewis Childs, of palms, gladioli and other seasonable flowers. S. D. Woodruff & Sons had an exhibit of bulbs and seeds. A fine assortment of evergreens and some large tree-moving machines were shown by several Long Island nurserymen.

Martin C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., was married September 25 to Miss Ida Rose Meyers, of that city.

Mr. Kennedy, of Kennedy & Hunter, reports fine success in a canvass of Long Island and Connecticut.

Alex. M. Westwood, the Pennsylvania terminal florist, is back from his Canadian holiday.

Paul Meconi is handling the entire output of the Beechwood Heights Nurseries, of Bound Brook, N. J., with orchids and gardenias as his specialties.

John Young is receiving some fine lilies from John Miesem, of Whitestone, L. I.

The Kervan Co. has added a valuable horse from the Vanderbilt stables to its many conveniences.

W. E. Marshall, the seedsman, has returned from a successful western trip.

The windows of the large new store of the Stumpp & Walter Co., on Barclay street, are now the center of attraction on that busy horticultural thoroughfare.

Chas. Schwake, for eleven years with the corporation of Chas. F. Meyer, has incorporated under the firm name of Chas. Schwake & Co., importing and exporting horticultural products. Mr. Schwake has secured several important foreign connections and is well and favorably known to the American and Canadian trade. He will make a personal canvass as heretofore. His confreres in the trade all wish him success.

C. W. Ward, who has been at home since the marriage of his daughter, left September 26 for the south.

In the nursery of 130 acres at the Cottage Gardens there are ten acres of peonies alone. Over sixty men are employed in this department. The land is worth $10,000 an acre, not to mention the stock, and the assortment, of evergreens especially, is wonderful. The greenhouse section covers 100,000 square feet. The houses are 50 x 340, devoted almost entirely to carnations. Of Matchless over 35,000 plants have been housed and September 15 the first flowers were sent to the New York Cut Flower Co. It is to be disseminated this season and it is said that already over 150,000 cuttings have been ordered. Manager Brown says he expects the total sales will go over 300,000. Two of the large houses are planted to Mrs. C. W. Ward, which is as popular as ever. There is a house of Beacon and one of Enchantress. The cut already is 10,000 weekly and soon shipments of 6,000 a day will begin. As high as 25,000 in a single day have been shipped from this carnation factory. Vivid is looking extremely well. A house of seedlings gives promise of future surprises. Mr. Ward's son is one of the office staff. Under R. T. Brown's management the Cottage Gardens have gone steadily upward and onward.

J. Austin Shaw.

The big fall show beginning October 31 and continuing until November 4, will be held in the spacious halls of the American Museum of Natural History. Schedules and entry blanks will be sent upon application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York city. The National Association of

The alarm clock went off at four o'clock in the morning.

"I fooled you that toime," said Mike with a grin, "for I wasn't asleep at all."

The florist fools himself who thinks there is any way of selling goods in the trade more effective than advertising in The Review. Also, it's the most inexpensive way in proportion to results.

"We are completely sold out and have had to send money back. The Review is, without doubt, the best advertising medium in the trade."—J. C. RENNISON CO., Sioux City, Ia.

Review readers are not asleep. Note this:

"Please tell us confidentially what you think of — —. Why doesn't he advertise in The Review if he is O. K.?"—MILLER FLORAL CO., Farmington, Utah.

The alarm clock rings in The Review office at 4 o'clock (p.m., not a.m.) every Tuesday. It is to let everybody know advertising forms close for that week's issue in just sixty minutes.

Gardeners holds its annual meeting during the exhibition, a hall having been reserved for its use at the American Museum of Natural History. For the first time in its history, the society is offering a silver cup valued at over $100. This is to be awarded for the best exhibit of twelve vases of chrysanthemum blooms, in twelve varieties, three blooms of each, stems eighteen inches long. An appeal is made by the secretary for prompt entries of exhibits.

It is announced that Maurice Fuld, formerly with the Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, has become vice-president of the Knight & Struck Co., 1 Madison avenue, and that the field of operations of the concern will be considerably extended. A complete line of flower seeds and bulbs will be added, as well as flowering plants, while heather and acacia will be featured as heretofore. Mr. Fuld will be in direct charge of the seeds, bulbs and perennials. The Knight & Struck Co. was incorporated in 1911. Thomas Knight is president and George F. Struck secretary and treasurer. H. D. Darlington, of Flushing, is heavily interested.

Charles Schwake & Co., of Manhattan, have been incorporated with a capitalization of $25,000, to deal in horticultural products. The incorporators are Wm. B. Gugel, Wm. F. O'Connor and Charles Schwake.

WHAT THE WANT ADS DO.

If a florist has an outgrown boiler or any other second-hand article of greenhouse equipment that is in good condition he can turn it quickly into cash. This is how:

Kindly discontinue our For Sale ad offering a second-hand Morehead steam trap for sale, as we have already disposed of same. We thank you for the prompt returns we received from the ad.—La Crosse Floral Co., La Crosse, Wis., September 27, 1913.

Six average words make a line in The Review's Want department and the cost is only 10 cents per line per week.

OBITUARY.

John Corbett.

John Corbett died at his home in Mount Sterling, Ky., September 29, at the age of 74 years. He was apparently hale and hearty until five weeks ago. He was born in Ireland and came to the United States when quite young, settling in Kentucky. He is recognized as one of the pioneer florists of Kentucky, having watched the progress of the business from its infancy, in that state. He was active in the business at one place for about thirty years. He was a progressive member of the trade and was well known throughout his state. He was a widower, his wife having died about twelve years ago.

Justus Geist.

Justus Geist, formerly a florist, died September 26 at the Melrose hospital, of pneumonia. He was born in Germany sixty-nine years ago, and had resided in Melrose for many years, making his home recently at 313 East Foster street. For a number of years he was in the florists' business, and had a large place on Grove street. He retired from this business because of poor health, and afterwards was a gardener for some years. The burial was in Jamaica Plain.

Watseka, Ill.—Forest L. Henry has purchased the business and plant of S. M. Wyatt.

Denver, Colo.—C. F. Maler has obtained a permit for a $4,000 greenhouse, upon which work will be started soon.

Harrodsburg, Ky.—L. D. Singer, of Frankfort, has bought the business of Mrs. Arthur Harbison and taken charge of it.

Kirkwood, Mo.—Alois F. Kopp has just finished building a range of greenhouses and is now embarked in the florists' trade.

La Salle, Ill.—Miss Ellen M. Stanton has opened a flower store in connection with her millinery business on Fourth street.

NEWS, NOTES, AND COMMENTS

Murray Hill, N. J.—Alfred J. Nason, of Nason & Sons, was married September 3 to Miss Bertha V. Roberts, and has left for a short honeymoon trip.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Alfred Hannah & Sons have purchased seven and one-half acres adjoining their property on Eastern avenue, which will be added to the plant.

Montreal, Que.—The professionals who had exhibits at the annual show of the Montreal Horticultural Society were Campbell's Florists, Hall & Robinson, P. McKenna & Sons, and C. A. Smith, of Lachine.

Baltimore, Md.—H. J. Quick is tearing down his three small houses and erecting two large and up-to-date ones in their place. Mr. Quick uses Moninger material throughout and speaks highly of all his Moninger houses.

Batavia, N. Y.—Gustav Noack made a strong showing of cut flowers, potted plants and floral designs at the fair here and won many first prizes. Nelson Bogue had a booth at which his representatives did a good business, booking orders for nursery stock.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—R. Heberling is in charge of the new establishment being opened by Mrs. Henry Alston. It is proposed to handle cut flowers and plants for the retail trade, carnations and roses being a specialty. Mr. Heberling is not only a grower but a decorator and design-maker.

St. Paul, Minn.—The estimate of the park board for the Como park greenhouses was $60,000. As Lord & Burnham's bid was $92,450 and that of the John C. Moninger Co. $96,200, Superintendent Nussbaumer is now endeavoring to cut down the specifications so as to come within the estimate.

Williamsport, Pa.—Paul A. Derr, a member of the newly incorporated Williamsport Floral Co., which purchased the business of D. E. Gorman, will merge his plant with that of the company. The store and salesroom of the new firm will be at 137 West Fourth street, in charge of Miss Rook.

St. Catherine's, Ont.—At the tenth annual autumn fruit and flower show the judges of the plant and flower sections were T. Manton and H. Simmers, of Toronto, and H. J. Moore, of Niagara Falls. Robert Walker and W. H. C. Nicholson, of this city, judged the asters exhibited by the school children.

Madison, Wis.—The Capital City Greenhouse Co. has increased its capital stock from $50,000 to $60,000 and changed the name to the Rentschler Floral Co. The officers, who remain the same, are: President and general manager, Fred Rentschler; vice-president, George Rentschler; secretary, Albert Meier, and treasurer, Jacob Kolb.

Hadley, Mass.—The Montgomery Rose Gardens supplied quantities of roses for flower day at Holyoke, Mass., September 20.

Akron, O.—The Gilbo Floral Co. has been incorporated with a capitalization of $10,000. The incorporators are M. J. Gilbo, D. Gilbo and L. H. Gilbo.

Red Bank, N. J.—Louis A. Flewka, formerly in the employ of R. G. Wilson, Brooklyn, N. Y., has opened a store in the new building at Broad and Front streets.

Toledo, O.—At the meeting of the Toledo Florists' Club, September 9, it was decided to hold a chrysanthemum show November 11, limited to members only.

Troy, Ala.—J. G. Watson and A. H. Jackson, formerly of Montgomery, Ala., have purchased the greenhouses owned by the late Mrs. Fannie Starke, and are conducting the business under the name of the Troy Floral & Nursery Co.

Tampico, Ill.—Fred C. Shank is installing the heating plant and building the office at his new greenhouses, and expects to have everything completed before cold weather comes. He has already a large number of carnations benched.

St. Joseph, Mo.—Three new houses were completed this year by the Stuppy Floral Co. They are 27 x 200, two of them being planted to mums while the third is devoted to sweet peas. John Stuppy says they will have to obtain more land if more building is done, as all of the available space is built up.

Toledo, O.—At the last meeting of the Florists' Club, in Kapp's hall, September 23, final arrangements were made for a trip by special car to the Wonsetler Greenhouses, at Bryan, O. The car will stop at Wauseon to allow an inspection of Charles Jordan's plant and at Archbold for a sight of the houses of Carl Baer, the carnation specialist.

Battle Creek, Mich.—While S. W. Coggan is in Detroit looking for a good automobile to handle his increasing trade, his employees are exercising their brains over a mum which they found on the place this year. It is the shape and color of Chadwick, but is seven inches across and was ready to cut at the unusual date of September 15.

New Bedford, Mass.—At the annual dahlia show, September 19, Mrs. H. A. Jahn had the largest display, comprising 400 blooms on four tables. Walter D. Hathaway, who won several prizes at the Boston show, had his best flowers displayed. James Garthley, superintendent of the Rogers estate, showed some fine gladioli and hybrid tea roses, as well as dahlias. John P. Rooney, gardener for Mrs. Frederick Grinnell, and John I. Gurney, of Lakeville, also had splendid exhibits.

Quincy, Mass.—Walter M. Packard is building a large greenhouse for ferns, palms, etc.

Pine Bluff, Ark.—A. A. Harper has been exhibiting a fine stalk of seeded Cuban ribbon cane nine feet tall.

Hudson, Mich.—R. J. Peterson, proprietor of the Hudson Greenhouses, is adding two houses to his plant and plans to erect a barn soon.

Bowling Green, Ky.—The residence of the late R. L. Brashear, together with a lot of florists' supplies, was destroyed by fire September 12. It proved to be a total loss.

Lynn, Mass.—At the annual flower show here John Lewis Childs, of Flowerfield, N. Y., and William Sim, of Cliftondale, showed some choice gladioli. E. F. Dwyer, of Lynn, had a 50-foot table of dahlias and perennials.

Louisville, Ky.—The prizes in the classes open to professionals in the flower exhibit at the state fair were divided among E. G. Reimers & Son Co., F. Walker & Co. and G. Robert Miller, with the first named in the lead.

Cleveland, O.—The Wilson Florist Co. has purchased four acres of land adjoining its plant at 14113 Woodworth road. The price was $12,180. Part of the land will be occupied by additional greenhouses and the rest improved and marketed for residence property.

Baltimore, Md.—A. Spath, Jr., & Son, at Roland Park, have installed a fifty horse-power Gem City return tubular steam boiler. They have also rebuilt one house, 20x75 feet, and have built an office over their boiler pit, 12x23 feet, with a lean-to, 8x23 feet, which much improves the appearance of their place.

Marion, Kan.—The Marion Plant & Flower Co. is the name of a new firm established here to conduct a general business. At the downtown store all lines of stock and supplies will be handled, while greenhouses will be built in the suburbs next spring. Fred Gower, for twelve years at Peabody, Kan., is manager of the new enterprise.

Denver, Colo.—Because the Park Floral Co. has not paid the rent since a contested new appraisal raised the amount from $248 to $2,000 a year in 1911, the state land board is preparing to order it to vacate the school land which its greenhouses occupy. The question delaying action is whether the $35,000 worth of improvements, in the shape of greenhouses, which is in excess of the limit of $600 fixed by the state law, are to be confiscated if the lease is declared forfeited, or a price on the improvements is to be set by the lessee, who in the latter case may set a figure so high as to give the lessee a practical monopoly on the land.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1913: President, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.; vice-president, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; secretary, John Young, 54 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 54 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.
Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

A GENTLEMAN who does not date his letter and signs it "N. G." asks The Review to write him about the damage done by gas escaping from street mains.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE indications are that winter window boxes, filled with evergreens, will be more largely called for this season than ever before. Hotels, banks and high class business houses are using them more generally each year.

THOSE who conduct business enterprises know by experience that while it is hardest to win the most exacting customers, yet, once won, they bring many others who know that where the exacting ones go it is safe to follow.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, chairman of the school garden committee of the S. A. F., has printed as a neat folder the report presented at the Minneapolis convention. In the closing paragraph there is this sentence: "No florist's establishment ever did a town anything but good."

THERE is much complaint of mildewed roses. Weather conditions in the last half of September appear to have been specially unfavorable to the growers who are not mindful of the old saw to the effect that "Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom" from this ubiquitous autumn scourge.

THE trade will be interested in a variegated Sprengeri now offered by F. C. Heinemann, a German seed grower, with the statement that after ten years of work the originator has succeeded in obtaining eighty per cent true plants from seeds. The leaves are white except for a green center vein. It is said that "of course the young plants are not all at once white, but after a short time of growth will gradually show this property." The full name of the novelty is Asparagus Sprengeri foliis variegatis.

GENERAL BUSINESS.

Men engaged in other lines of business will tell you it has been a rather slow summer—not bad, but nothing to get enthusiastic about. In some cases they lay it to the heat and drought, in others to tariff tinkering, to tight money, or to some other cause equally beyond individual control.

And the thinkers say conditions are shaping themselves for a good autumn and winter trade. Those usually good judges say business will be brisk in all lines; money will be easy; everybody will be busy.

Florists seldom fail to get their share of the good times.

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING.

One reason why the Classified ads in The Review pay so well is that practically every one of them makes a direct offer—tells what the advertiser has to sell and how much he wants for it. Then this is what happens:

I am all sold out of carnations and geraniums and can testify to the usefulness of the ads in The Review.—Andrew Peterson, Hoopeston, Ill., September 29, 1913.

The majority of classified ads are weak in just one particular—they contain nothing but the name of the variety offered, the size, perhaps, and the price; no description; nothing to lead a reader to order of one advertiser rather than another. The few who describe their stock in detail, if the stock makes good the claims, must be doing themselves a great deal of good.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

With a more abundant supply of roses and carnations and an ever growing number of mums, the local market is fairly well able to take care of the brisk demand that has been in effect for the last week or ten days. While there now are large quantities of roses cut, there are few left when the stores close for the day, while only the poor grades of carnations are giving the wholesalers any concern. Mums have not yet caught up with the demand and for the better grades the growers now cutting receive excellent returns. The cut of mums during the month of September was below that of last year and those growers who were able to turn in first grade flowers have found the returns above the average. October Frost, Golden Glow and Smith's Advance are the three varieties that have been most in evidence.

Beauties have been in good demand but the heavier orders have been for the shorter lengths. For the long stems there has been only a fair demand. It has been almost impossible to supply the requests for the medium and short grades, but of the grades above 36-inch there has been enough; in fact, the sellers have found it a little difficult to clean out at the prices they thought they should obtain. Prices move downward with ease, but upward with difficulty. The general average quality is excellent, large heads and good color.

Of Killarneys there are more being cut than at any time since spring. Nevertheless, prices have not declined to any great extent, on account of the excellent demand that is cleaning up the receipts in good shape. Out-of-town

YOU CAN GET HERE ALL YOU WANT OF Medium Length Beauties

STEMS 24 TO 36-INCH, GOOD STOCK IN QUANTITY.

THE BEAUTIES we offer are not the crop of ONE grower, but consist of the cuts of SEVERAL up-to-date establishments—growers who are generally conceded as being without any superiors. By arranging with these growers to bring their crops along in succession we are able to maintain a CONSTANT supply of all lengths. Plenty of extra long. And now one of our largest producers is just starting to cut his first crop, almost exclusively 24 to 36-inch stems, the length that is in greatest demand and in lightest supply at this season. You can get all you want of us. No order too large, or too small.

FANCY ROSES

Of course we can supply the length of Roses commonly offered in the market (any quantity); but what we specially want to emphasize is our ability to supply a grade not to be had elsewhere. We shall be pleased to have any orders for the less expensive grades, but if you need special fancy Roses, this is the place to get them. We specially like orders for the special and extra special grades because they always bring early repeat orders—you'll want more of them. Note the list of varieties.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

You can take any order for Mums. Daily arrivals. Principally Golden Glow, yellow, and Smith's Advance, white, but the other early sorts are beginning to come in. Can fill large orders on short notice.

CARNATIONS

You can use Carnations freely again—our new crops are of a quality that will please your customers. Nice clean flowers in large quantity, stems rapidly lengthening; most of them long enough now to please your trade. All colors.

CATTLEYAS

We have the fine fall crop of Labiata. These Orchids are second to none, and the supply will be steady for some weeks, by which time other varieties will be ready. You can count on us for Orchids.

VALLEY

You can depend upon us at all times for valley. If you run short, a wire to Amling will bring the valley you need. But a good way would be to place a standing order for regular shipments.

A FINE LOT OF ONCIDIUM SPRAYS.

EASTER LILIES

orders are increasingly numerous and in the city the fall wedding season is on, with its many social affairs. Killarneys are, of course, in larger supply than White Killarney, but there are nearly enough of the latter to go around. Richmonds are being cut freely. Yellow roses are good property and are allowed to remain in the ice-boxes only a short time. Sunburst and Aaron Ward are the two varieties being cut and it is apparent that Melody has not been planted in any larger number than last season. Mrs. Russell holds the field in the new roses for the most popular demand, but there is little effort needed to dispose of Mrs. Shawyer or Milady.

Carnations show much better quality since the cooler weather set in and in both stem and flower the market affords a good grade of stock. Good stock is not overplentiful and better prices are had, but the poor grades are not moving well. Lilies are selling well, but there is no unusual demand for them. Valley has been in special demand for the last few days and there has been some difficulty in filling orders. Cattleyas are more plentiful, but not yet in excess of the regular demand. Oncidiums are so abundant as to clear with some difficulty. Violets have arrived. Asters are on the wane and gladioli are about gone.

While wholesale demand is good, it is the consensus of opinion that local retail trade has not picked up so fast in Chicago this season as it usually does. There has, of course, been considerable improvement in September as compared with August, but not what it should have been.

Various Notes.

Two popular members of the force of the A. L. Randall Co. suffered sudden bereavements last week and have been in receipt of universal sympathy. When Otto Goerisch returned home September 23 he found Mrs. Goerisch dead on the floor. She left two infant daughters. The funeral was held from her mother's residence September 27 and was largely attended. There were many flowers. On the night of September 25 the father of William Lorman was instantly killed by a bullet from the revolver of a policeman who was endeavoring to halt a man nowise concerned with Mr. Lorman. William is the oldest of nine children.

The marriage of Edgar Fairburn Winterson, Jr., and Miss Ruth Marie Edmonds took place Wednesday evening, October 1, at the home of the bride's parents. It was a quiet affair, due to the bride's health, which was such early in the week that it was feared a postponement would be necessary. Rev. John C. Wescott read the service. Miss Elsy Winterson was maid of honor and Robert E. Edmonds best man. Miss Jane Winterson played the wedding march. Mr. Winterson is the son of E. F. Winterson and is associated with his father in Winterson's Seed Store.

C. H. Fisk evidently finds business good on the west side, for he is employing three automobiles to make deliveries. He says the machines are busy so much of the time that he could not do without any of them.

E. E. Pieser and wife have returned from a visit with Mrs. Pieser's nephew near Winnipeg. They both look as though the outing had done them world's of good. They were absent through August and September, the longest time Mr. Pieser has been away from the store of Kennicott Bros. Co. for several years.

W. J. Keimel, of Wendland & Keimel, Elmhurst, has suggested to the management of the spring show that Perle and Melody be dropped from the premium list, and place given, instead, to Sunburst and Milady. Certainly Perle is a dead letter in this market, and Melody seldom can be found, while any number of growers would be able to exhibit Sunburst and Milady.

William Dittman, of New Castle, Ind., has made arrangements with the E. C. Amling Co. to handle his output this season. Shipments began September 25. The Dittman establishment is all in Beauties.

A fire that gutted the third floor of the building at 131 North Wabash avenue imperiled the store of Bassett & Washburn September 30, but luckily the damage was confined to the rear of the building and no loss was suffered by the florists. The cause of the fire has not been ascertained, as it was discovered about 9:30 p. m., directly above the former location of E. H. Hunt, now vacant.

Mrs. N. J. Wietor returned to her home September 28 after a sojourn of several weeks in the Chicago Union hospital, apparently greatly benefited and restored to her usual good health.

Walter S. McGee is preparing to address the Chicago Florists' Club at its meeting November 9, on the subject of fertilizers. His talk is designed to show the buyers how they can know what they are getting, and whether or not they are getting their money's worth.

Tim Matchen says that September has been the best in many years for Peter Reinberg, nearly doubling last year's record for the month, largely because of a specially good crop of Beauties.

Otto W. Frese established his home at Mayfair September 30, and T. E. Waters, who has charge of the supply department of Poehlmann Bros. Co., moved into the Grace street apartments vacated by Mr. Frese.

C. W. McKellar reports that the first shipments of eastern gardenias arrived last week.

The E. C. Amling Co. reports that the first Rhinebeck violets of the season arrived September 25.

F. J. Fiedler, recently orchid grower on a private place in San Francisco, is in town with his bride. He came east to get married and thinks he will stay.

W. E. Leganger, traveler for the A. L. Randall Co., was in a bad wreck on the B. & O. near Cleveland the other day. He lost considerable cuticle from one arm, but thinks himself lucky to have escaped so easily, as two were killed.

The E. Wienhoeber Co., on Elm street, had an order for bouquets for a Winnetka wedding September 27 that made no little trouble. Nothing would do but cosmos, in three colors. There was plenty of cosmos in the market before the unexpected frost September 22, but none after that. The flowers were located by long distance telephone in southern Indiana.

In last week's issue of The Review it was reported that Lubliner & Trinz had found a ten years' home on Wabash avenue and in the real estate columns of the Sunday papers this sentence appeared: "Willis & Frankenstein have leased, for the Washington Shirt Co., to Lubliner & Trinz, the florists, the store and basement at 41 South Wabash avenue for a term rent from October 15 of $65,000." That's $541.66 a month.

Johnson & Chronis say business has gradually increased for the last three weeks at their store at Lake avenue and Forty-seventh street. Weddings began with the last of September and table decorations were also in demand. The two White delivery cars have now been in service eighteen months and Mr. Johnson is more than well pleased with the money invested in them.

J. C. Craig is back from an extended trip to the Pacific coast and other points. Funeral work has kept everyone busy at the Wabash avenue store.

A. L. Vaughan spent September 25 in Kankakee, Ill., and says that the latter city can well afford to be proud of some of the fine retail stores there, as well as the growing establishments.

Erne & Klingel find the shipping business on the increase and, in supplies especially, the books show a gain over last season.

The Sunday Record-Herald had a fine full-page story on the front of its woman's section September 28, with pictures, devoted to the work of three sisters, one of whom is Mrs. Ida M. Latshaw, manager of the Libertyville plant of the Meredith Flower and Vegetable Co. One other sister is a physician, the other an artist. None is young, but each is a hard and capable worker. The Record-Herald story largely was an interview with Mrs. Latshaw.

With the new refrigerator in commission the old icebox at the Bassett & Washburn store is being overhauled and remodeled. The first October Frost were cut September 29.

Frank F. Storck, a druggist at Twenty-ninth street and Cottage Grove avenue, has found an opportunity to enter the florists' trade. His new store will be located at 2901 Cottage Grove avenue and is expected to catch a large part of the trade going to Michael Reese hospital.

A. Henderson has been suffering with a cold for several days and was forced to give up work for the afternoon of September 29. The fall bulb shipments are heavy and the force is busy with deliveries.

The Cook County Florists' Association bowlers met in the store of Zech & Mann after closing hours September 24 and formed a league for the coming season. Four teams were listed and the first games were scheduled for October 2. Owing to the sudden death

The only available gladioli are being shipped in from farther south. These are of excellent quality. Dahlias are not popular in this city, due, no doubt, to the fact that but few are on the market, and these badly damaged through shipment.

Many field grown carnations are shipped in daily, but, on the whole, they are not of much use, having suffered from thrips. The indoor blooms are exceptionally fine for so early in the season and sell readily at good prices. Some Philadelphia blooms are causing quite a sensation. They have splendid long stems, which bear the fine blooms well. Some extra fancy ones brought $4 per hundred last Saturday. The supply of roses is fairly good in all grades and varieties at the present writing. The leaders are Killarney, Rhea Reid, Sunburst and Maryland. Some few Mrs. Chas. Russell and Midady are available and are popular with local buyers. Mock roses shipped in from Mount Clemens are well grown and bring fancy prices.

Valley was in unusually heavy demand last week, and although shipments were heavy, the supply ran short of the demand. Many large orders from out of town are being filled. The supply of snapdragons is limited and the few available are rapidly cleaned up. Lilies are a scarce article at present. Orchids may be obtained locally on short notice. This flower is slowly but surely getting a foothold here and the demand for it is more steady each year.

Asparagus, adiantum and other greens are in fairly good supply, and the demand for them is heavy. Southern smilax is now being carried in stock for immediate delivery.

Various Notes.

The outlook is exceptionally good for a fine crop of chrysanthemums here this fall. A visit to the larger growers shows their plants in the pink of condition, with promise of a heavy cut. Pompons and singles will also be more plentiful than heretofore. A choice lot of mum plants will also be available.

A. J. Stahelin's range of movable houses was moved into position last week without the breakage of a light and no hitch in the proceedings. Mr. Stahelin is shipping in some fine Asparagus plumosus cut from his old range, which is almost entirely devoted to this green.

Chas. Fell, manager of the Century Flower Stand, is the proud father of twin girls, born last week.

The PERFECTION Extension Decorating Stand

THE BEST STAND EVER INVENTED

THESE stands are made with patented automatic lock, which eliminates the set screw and its inconveniences and uncertainty. With this lock, all that is necessary to change the height of the stand, is to lift the head to any desired height, where it automatically locks. To lower simply steady plant and touch release and stand lowers, locking wherever pressure is removed from release. The lock, although automatic in its action, is very simple, with only one moving part and nothing to wear or get out of adjustment. The action is instantaneous and unfailing, saving time, annoyance and damage to plants. Plants can be turned around while stand is locked without affecting height.

We furnish these stands with either or both heads illustrated in this advertisement, heads being detachable and interchangeable.

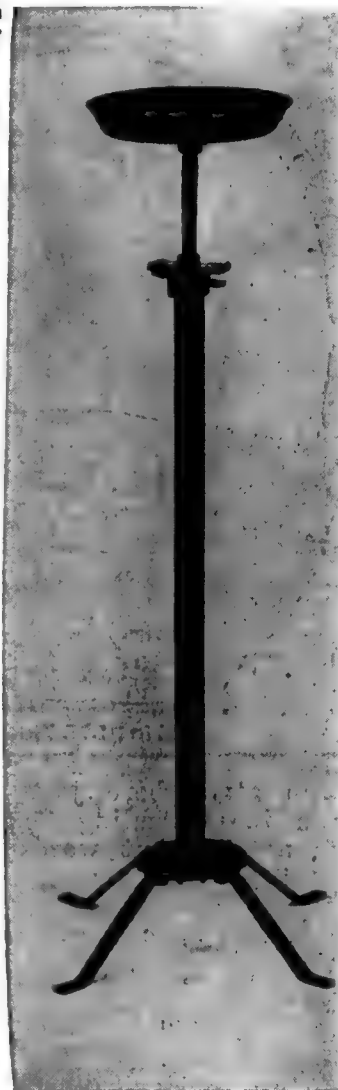

The Tilting head is offset so that in tilting the plant is carried backward, bringing the center of weight directly over the stand and making it unnecessary to fasten tilter in desired position.

Finished in green enamel with gilt lined pans.

The Market.

As I am writing this report it is raining—just a gentle all-day rain, which, if it had come two months ago, would have been worth millions to the country. It is welcome even now, as it is the first general rain that we have had here for three months and more. Last week we had a mere touch of frost, but not enough to do any damage. With the return of cooler weather, those who were away all summer have returned and, as a result, business has picked up. Stock is becoming plentiful and the quality is better than at last report. Carnations are still scarce, with a good demand. The Dutch bulbs are mostly in. We were led to expect inferior stock this year, but so far I have seen none that were not as good as usual, unless it might be that the Roman Hyacinths are a little smaller.

Roses are especially good for the season. Radiance is making a name for itself. Mrs. Russell surely is making good, if it holds out through the season as well as it has done so far, it will largely replace all but the best American Beauties. There are a few mums now, but they are of rather inferior quality. Asters, however, are exceptionally fine. Dahlias are almost nil, because of the drought. The asters were grown inside. Valley is in steady supply and the demand cleans up all that is good. The same is true of lilies. Our growers mean to have a steady supply, with none to spare.

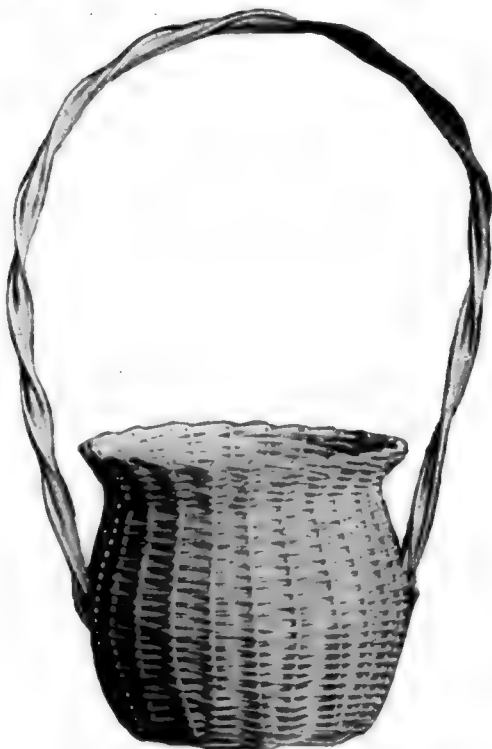

Various Notes.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

The last week of September has seen the greatest sale of dahlias in the history of the eastern market. There was a decided improvement in the demand and a shortage in many varieties of staple flowers. This combination made an opening for the dahlias. The quantities of dahlias sold would not have been believed possible a few years ago. Many of them brought excellent prices, and the average prices were satisfactory. Dahlia John Wana-maker headed the list. It brought the highest price that has ever been paid for dahlia blooms in the open market here. Many dahlias were shipped out of town during the week.

Roses are not in heavy supply. White roses are quite scarce. Mrs. Charles Russell has come to the front rapidly. This variety promises well. Cattleyas are plentiful and selling well at reduced rates. There are some oncidiums, dendrobiums and vandae. Valley continues the surprise of the market; with production above normal, it is extremely scarce. Carnations are getting better. Callas and single violets have come. Montmort, pink, and Comoleta, yellow, have been added to the three early chrysanthemums named before, Golden Glow, Smith's Advance and October Frost. The demand for them is brisk.

The Show at Gimbel's.

A two-day dahlia show, September 30 and October 1, was held on the main floor of the department store of Gimbel Bros. There were said to be 10,000 dahlia blooms in 375 varieties in the exhibition. They were given ample space and were tastefully arranged with autumn foliage and grasses by Philip Freud, who is a master in the art. The dahlias were brought by special motor car from the farms of David Herbert & Son, Atco, N. J., and Henry F. Michell Co., Andalusia, Pa. The arrangement under which the show was held is that orders are to be taken for the dahlia roots, by Gimbel Bros., and filled by Henry F. Michell Co. It really seems that no one who wants dahlias should be without them next season.

A Unique Dahlia Show.

The bright minds that control the destinies of the House of Dreer have planned that the production and improvement of the dahlia should play an important part in the season's work. Some seven years ago the dahlia was introduced at Locust Farm and later at Riverview. James C. Clark was assigned to the care and cultivation of the plants and, most important of all, to keeping the varieties true to name. To Mr. Clark's untiring energy and devotion to his work are due the splendid results that have been achieved after overcoming many difficulties. So marked has been the success with the dahlia that a show was decided upon for this fall; not an ordinary, everyday show, where the flowers are cut and laid on tables or put in jars of water, but a real show, where the habits, character of growth and all the qualities of the plant as well as of the flower may be seen and compared, one with the other. To this end Henry

THE PHILADELPHIA CUT FLOWER CO., 1517 Sansom St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

A. Dreer, Inc., issued about 15,000 invitations, besides making public announcement in the daily press, for a grand dahlia show to be held at Riverview from Saturday, October 4, until Saturday, October 11, excepting only Sunday. Those accepting this invitation are asked to take any train on any of these seven days from the foot of Market street over the Pennsylvania ferry and train to Riverton, whence transportation will be provided to Riverview.

The sight at Riverview is truly beautiful. The immense fields of cannas are gorgeous in their autumn beauty. The approaches to the service building of the new ranges are most effectively laid out. The service building itself is to be filled with choice blooms of hardy phloxes, delphiniums and other seasonable stock, properly labeled, for the name of Dreer stands for correct nomenclature.

But the dahlias! They present an appearance truly imposing. Quantity, quality and variety are here. The educational feature of the show lies in 820 dahlias, averaging fifteen plants of each variety, all correctly labeled and arranged alphabetically. They are all growing under the Skinner system of irrigation and afford a rare chance for comparison. Another part of the grounds is devoted to the varieties that are grown in large numbers to satisfy a heavy demand. Here is Delice, considered the best pink cut flower dahlia of the day. There is Geisha, the Japanese dancing girl, the showy blooms borne aloft on long stems. Near by are the three dahlias that Mr. Clark considers as the most promising cut flower trio in sight: Tricolor, the name being descriptive; Galathea, a lovely pink, and Thais, white, shaded with lavender. All belong to that class of hybrids lying between the decorative and cactus types, a class that Mr. Clark believes will give our finest dahlias in the near future.

Much more could be said, but this too brief description will suffice to show what may be seen at Riverview next week and to give some idea what may be learned by comparison and by chatting with the experts there.

Myers & Samtman.

It is the highest aim of the horticultural writer to be of service to his profession. Sometimes the service takes the form of business notes, as in the market report, or in cultural information. Sometimes the aim is merely to amuse. Whatever it be, the purpose must be clearly defined and varied from time to time or the week's work will drift into mediocrity and its real mission will be lost. These lines will serve as a key to the following paragraph.

The firm of Myers & Samtman has risen steadily to a position of national importance. The firm combines to an unusual degree sound business principles with skillful cultural methods. There are, of course, some of these principles and some of these methods that cannot properly be told in print any more than the confidences of a friend can be related to a company after dinner. There are others that can be told, and a few of these will suffice to show the possibilities in our profession today.

The first object of the firm has been to find out what the market requires and then to produce it in paying quantities. Every known aid has been employed to this end, the newspaper, the railroad, the telegraph, the express; when one market fell another was substituted. This could readily be accomplished by keeping in advance of the times by producing what is wanted, with quality and in quantity. There are certain points in the preparation of the stock that are considered of paramount importance: The fertility of the soil, the quality and varieties of young stock, the character of the houses, time of planting, feeding, watering, ventilating, timing of the crops. Nothing is left to chance. Every detail is carefully planned. Every expense is calculated, with its probable value in bringing about the final result. "Because others do it" is never accepted as a reason. The work of brain and muscle, not emulation, are depended upon.

You say that Phil has told you nothing? Well, if you really mean that, these lines have been offered in vain.

M. Rice Co. already is experiencing the mid-season rush. Night work was begun in the factory this week, one month earlier than has been customary. Phil.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Tradespeople say that the Industrial Exposition is accountable for the wretched amount of business done during the last two weeks. The florists have certainly noticed the marked decrease in business; trade has been almost at a standstill. A personal visit to the flower stores has found all in about the same plight. Had it not been for Saturday's business, the selling of nearly all of the asters for "the blessing of the graves," the week would have been one of the worst this year. However, we are not discouraged; the busy season is coming and preparations are already under way. There have already been several small functions to cater for, and orders are being booked ahead. Funeral work has been slack this week also, and the stock which arrives daily is not consumed fast; much of it goes into the waste.

Asters are on the wane, several thousands being disposed of for Sunday's use, and after being cut so close, only a few now remain. Chrysanthemums are arriving in better condition. The yellow varieties are larger and not so soft. Smith's Advance, white, are good on arrival, but are so soft that they last but a short time as cut stock. Carnations are still scarce, and there is not a sufficient quantity to fill orders. There is a noticeable improvement, both in color and size of blossom. Easter lilies are still scarce, as are also lilies of the valley. There are a few good pansies arriving. Gladioli are almost gone now. Roses are in fine condition, but have not sold at all well. Boston and Whitmani ferns have been moving quite readily of late. Hundreds of 2½-inch kentias have been sold at 10 cents each at the 5 and 10-cent stores. Dracenas and crotons are selling slowly. Dagger ferns, Asparagus plumosus, Sprengerii and smilax are in good supply.

Various Notes.

Visitors this week include Chas. S. Ford, of A. Herrmann, New York; Morris Cohen, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, and H. S. Toyama, of Mogi Momonoi & Co., Japanese importers, New York. All salesmen report business as exceptionally good, and each is taking good orders for the season's trade.

H. E. Wilson had an unusually large wedding to cater for last week. Nearly 1,000 roses were used. The bridal chamber and hallway were a brilliant mass of long-stemmed American Beauty roses as the foreground to a large bank of palms and ferns. The staircase and colonial pillars were wound with asparagus. The other rooms were decorated with Sunburst and My Maryland roses in profusion. The bride's table was decorated with an immense basket of White Killarney roses and sixteen small baskets of roses and valley.

George B. Hart has placed a good-sized McCray ice-box in the front part of his store.

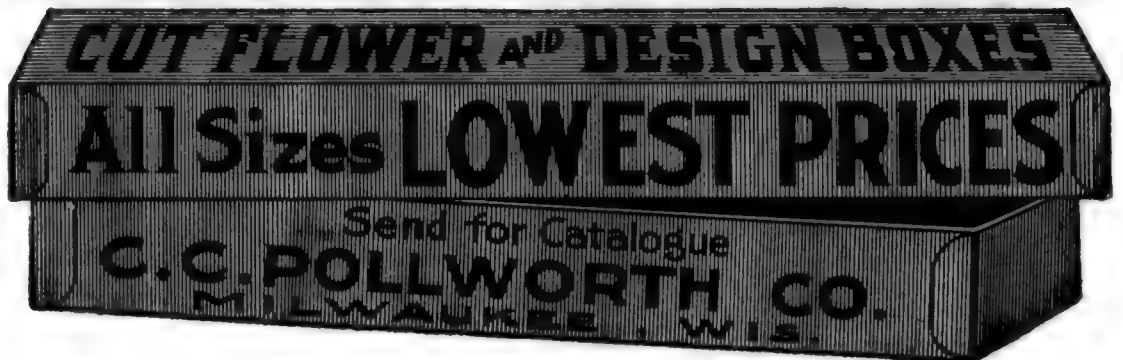

The general committee of the Rochester Florists' Association, at a meeting held at Powers' hotel, Thursday evening, September 25, voted to abandon the flower show which was to be held in November. The decision came as a complete surprise to all but the downtown florists, whose vote decided the issue. Committees had been appointed, and the heads had gone so far as to enlist the help of the state conservation commission, the park board, the chamber of commerce and others who have large conservatories. The reason for calling off the show this year was said to be the belief that the public was not enthusiastic enough to support such an event oftener than once in two years. It was urged that the undertaking is at all times a bad financial risk, since the sum represented in the displays is seldom equaled and never exceeded by the receipts of the show, and that to undertake such a risk every year is not wise.

The Market.

Cool, sunny weather has made flowers of all kinds plentiful. However, the supply does not exceed the demand, for improved conditions in trade have increased the demand to a marked degree. All kinds of roses continue to improve, and the crops are large. Milady, the debutante of the season, is finding great favor with flower buyers. Chrysanthemums are arriving in large quantities this week, but by October 10 the supply will be just about well begun. Violets are with us again, and as usual the first ones find a ready sale. Carnations are on the market, but in small quantities only. They are still rather small. Asters are small and poor. Harrisii lilies are scarce, as are callas. Beauties are only fair, the sale of them likewise. Tritomas, lark-

Mr. Grower:

I have had 18 years' experience in gathering forest products. Aside from Cut Ferns, we get Ginseng from the woods, and have set out large amounts in years past and now have as fine a Ginseng garden as exists under cultivation. You are the very best class to grow this paying crop. I can supply you with stratified seeds and plants, from yearlings to 3-year-olds, right from the very best garden, which is now paying larger returns from ginseng roots than any flower crop that ever was sold. Write for full particulars. E. H. HITCHCOCK, Glenwood, Mich.

spurs, snapdragons, coreopsis, gaillardias and cosmos are still being cut outdoors and are disposed of quickly. Jerusalem cherries are about the only potted plants to be had at present.

Angus Croft is now with N. F. Higgins, in the store on State street.

James Morrison was injured last week by being hit by a motorcycle just as he was alighting from an automobile. His foot was badly cut and bruised, but no bones were broken. It will be some time before he will be able to be around again.

Meacham & Hassell's new store front is finished, which gives them a large display window, with a smaller one at the right of the entrance. It makes the store much more attractive.

The Flower Shop, on Worthington street, has a small but attractive store in the new quarters. An error was made last week in reporting that the new quarters were in the basement. They have a lower deck display window, but the store proper is on a level with the street.

Miss Emerson is confined to her home with typhoid, but her condition is improving. E. C. A.

Princeton, Ill.—The W. E. Trimble Greenhouse Co. has completed five more greenhouses, making a total of nineteen.

Cameron, Mo.—Ralph Ward's new greenhouse is nearing completion. When it is ready for use, Mr. Ward will grow both flowers and vegetables.

Belle Fourche, S. D.—Theodore Wiles, proprietor of the Belle Fourche Greenhouses, now has a full supply of stock from his own houses and no longer ships in his stock.

Directors—R. H. Garrahan, Kingston, Pa.; W. S. Weiant, Newark, O.; Richard Hittinger, Boston; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich.; W. J. Ritterskamp, Princeton, Ind.; T. C. Johnson, Norfolk, Va.

Local arrangements for the convention have been in charge of the officers and committeemen of the Toledo Fruit & Vegetable Growers' Association:

President—George Bayer.

Vice-President—Stanley Keller.

Treasurer—Fred Johnson.

Hall and Exhibits—F. T. Johnson.

Finance—Louis F. Miller.

Reception—Stanley Keller.

Entertainment—William Conrad.

Banquet—Edward Bayer.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The outdoor flowers have practically gone; the heavy rains of ten days ago, followed by frost-tinged nights, robbed the beds of their beauty, so that the florists are again coming into their own in the supplying of exotics. Asters have completely disappeared from the benches, but in their place has come the advance guard of the queen of autumn. The early chrysanthemums, in yellow and white, are showing fine. A few business openings, an occasional social function and several weddings and funerals have kept things on the move, and the demand just about cleans up the supply. Prices are about normal, with few fancy or novelty offerings.

The Horticultural Show.

The September show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in the vestry of the Mathewson Street Methodist church last week, and was an improvement over similar events of the last few years. Dahlias and asters constituted the chief features. The commercial class embraced about half a dozen exhibits, but these were of a better quality than heretofore, although the number of blooms was not so large. Mrs. H. A. Jahn, of New Bedford, Mass., had a fine, large collection not in competition. Lewis A. Jillson, of Lakewood, won first prize on a collection of 100 blooms of colored dahlias; Sisson & Thurston, of Newport, were awarded firsts for fifty cactus dahlias, twelve peony dahlias, fifteen red dahlias of any variety and a vase of ten each of single cactus and peony dahlias. W. D. Hathaway, of New Bedford, Mass., took firsts on twenty-four decorative dahlias, twelve decorative dahlias, twelve show and fancy dahlias, twelve pompon dahlias and a vase of fifteen pink dahlias, and seconds on fifty cactus dahlias, twenty-five cactus dahlias, twelve cactus dahlias, twelve peony dahlias, 100 colored dahlias and a vase of fifteen white dahlias of any variety. William Steele, of Auburn, was awarded first on a vase of ten decorative dahlias, and seconds on twenty-four and twelve decorative dahlias.

Various Notes.

George L. Stillman, of Westerly, was awarded first prizes at the Kingston fair for the best collections of cactus, pompon, decorative, single, show and fancy, peony and art dahlias.

Frederick A. Geisler, of Bristol, is visiting relatives in the vicinity of Narragansett Pier.

James B. Canning furnished the decorations for the openings of the Outlet Co., in this city, and the New Idea Store, at Pawtucket.

James Hackins, of Central Falls, has just registered a twenty-two horsepower Ford automobile with the state board of public roads.

Eric Bonevier is reported as convalescing at the Rhode Island hospital, where he has been for a few weeks.

E. A. Chipman, of Woonsocket, has adopted the novel idea of presenting with each bridal bouquet ordered of him a fern and dish for the prospective home.

One of the largest wedding decorations of the early season at the Narragansett hotel last week was furnished by T. J. Johnston & Co.

Charles H. Hunt has purchased a lot of land on the south side of Mystic street.

M. F. Bachman was in the city last week, representing the Plantlife Co., New York.

The Continental Nurseries, of Franklin, had an extensive exhibition of evergreens at the recent Uxbridge fair.

William Appleton & Son had the decorations at the millinery opening of the Boston Store last week.

John J. Lomas, who recently started at 83 Fifield avenue, reports a steady growth in his business during the summer. W. H. M.

La Crosse, Wis.—Carl Schaefer, of the La Crosse Floral Co., was the judge at the school children's annual flower show.

Montgomery, Ala.—The Morning View Floral Co. will move from its quarters on Dexter avenue to 20 South Perry street.

Schenectady, N. Y.—At the annual flower and vegetable exhibition by public school children, Julius Eger and J. H. Frederick were the judges.

Fairfield, Ia.—According to present plans, E. H. Montgomery will tear down his old houses next year and rebuild, adding to his plant at the same time.

Fairmont, W. Va.—Fleming's Flower Store, now under the management of Miss Emsie Smith, has moved from the Colonial theater building to the Watson building.

Muskegon, Mich.—L. Wasserman has purchased a tract of land south of Muskegon Heights, where he will erect a large greenhouse and put part of the land under cultivation.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1912, to December 31, 1912, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,

The Market.

Since the coming of cool weather, business is beginning to boom and flowers are coming in much better shape. The local chrysanthemums are of good quality, in yellow and white. Roses, too, are better and have increased in price. American Beauty roses are in fine form. Single violets have made their appearance and, though poor, they are in good demand. There is an increased demand for valley, due to the many weddings. The cattleya crop is coming in nicely and is welcome. There is some little demand for Dendrobium Phalenopsis, but the supply is so short that it cannot be met. Gardenias are scarce and calls from out of town have not been filled. Snapdragon is beginning to be seen, but there is little call for it. The early demand for carnations is good and the stock is much better than it has been.

Various Notes.

A new icebox is being installed at the store of J. A. Philipps, Fourteenth and Harvard streets, N. W., and work has been begun on the erection of a balcony which will extend around the entire blank wall. The old flooring has been replaced by one of tileine, a material superior to cement. When Mr.

Philipps returns from Ohio, where he has been visiting for some weeks, he will hardly recognize the store and an additional surprise will be offered in the shape of a branch establishment at 3211 Mt. Pleasant street, N. W. This store will be located in a rapidly growing district and should meet with success practically from the start. It has not yet been decided whether the stand in the Arcade market will be reopened, due to the opening of the Mt. Pleasant street store.

An important meeting of the Florists' Club will be held October 6, at 1214 F street, N. W.

Mr. Miller, with J. H. Small & Sons, has returned from an extended tour of England, France, Germany, Holland and Belgium, during which he was accompanied by his wife and son. He is quite enthusiastic over the miniature roses which are now being pushed in the making of corsage bouquets abroad.

Robert Pyle, of the Dingee & Conard Co., West Grove, Pa., accompanied by Mr. Mulford, of the Department of Agriculture, and William F. Gude, as national representative of the S. A. F., inspected the site of the proposed rose garden last week at the Arlington Farms. Although but two acres will be devoted to the project at the start, the probability is that it will be greatly enlarged as the work progresses. Mr. Pyle expressed himself as highly pleased with the site and stated that, in his opinion, within a few years this spot would be the Mecca of many thousands of tourists who annually visit this section, and that it would be the equal of any rose garden in the country. Mr. Mulford is at present preparing the necessary plans and these, when completed, will be sub-

The Southwestern Market.

Business in general has improved greatly during the week, but reports say there is nothing steady as yet and the weather will have to become much cooler to bring this about. The wholesale market the last week had plenty of stock in the first and second grades. The fancy grades cleaned up almost daily in all of the markets, with prices quite reasonable.

Roses are showing great improvement in color and stem. The Killarney varieties are in the great majority. Richmond, Sunburst and Maryland come next. Some extra fine Beauties can be had any day. Carnations in the fancy and first grades are scarce. There are plenty of short-stemmed ones coming in daily. The scarcity caused even these to clean up at from $1 to $2 per hundred. A few violets are coming in, but they are still too small and pale to demand any price. A few fairly good mums of the Golden Glow variety are coming in, which sell well. Easter lilies, valley and orchids had a good demand all through last week. Asters are still coming in, but only the best grades bring anything like a reasonable price. Gladioli, tuberose stalks and a lot of other outdoor stock are still coming in. Fancy ferns are down to $1 per thousand. Good cut asparagus in bunches is always in demand in this market.

Various Notes.

Fred Anthon, who recently opened a flower store at 5642 Delmar boulevard, is moving this week to 955 Goodfellow avenue, which he claims is a better location.

George Madson, of the Alton Floral Co., and August Dormann, superintendent of public parks, of Alton, Ill., spent a day in the city the last week, visiting the trade and the Missouri Botanic Garden.

Frank McCabe, Robert Newcomb, Guy Reburn and Arnold Ringier, well known Chicago travelers, spent a few days here last week calling on the trade.

The dollar boxes of cut flowers advertised by Grimm & Gorly last week seem to have made a big hit with the public.

C. A. Kuehn received a carload of wild smilax last week, which was placed in cold storage.

Alex. Siegel, who was one of the last of the florists to return from their summer trips, says that the force in charge of his place did a fine summer business, and that the transient trade at his busy corner is picking up since the cooler weather set in.

A. Werner & Bros., of Clayton, commenced last week to cut fancy grades in Richmond and Killarney. From all appearances their big rose houses are going to supply the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. with an abundance of fancy rose stock this winter.

At some of the wholesale houses last week signs were displayed offering fancy ferns at $1 per thousand, which cleaned up their stock early.

William Holtz, one of the force at Angermueller's, has been laid up all of the last week on account of sickness. This caused the boss to spend more time in the cut flower department.

Charles Young, of C. Young & Sons Co., says their shipping orders were quite heavy last week, and especially so in the fall bulb department.

The Mullanphy Flower Co. is preparing for the opening of the downtown branch at Seventh and Locust streets. Fixtures are now being installed, and, if ready, the store will be open by October 1.

Henry Berning had some splendid consignments of fancy Beauties during the last week, and also an abundance of other roses of good quality.

Frank Windler, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., says that the fancy stock in Richmond, Sunburst and Killarney moved well daily last week. A large shipment of supplies was received during the week.

Prof. H. C. Irish came down from Ames, Ia., to spend a few days with his family, and returned Monday, September 29.

R. J. Windler and the Schoenle Floral Co., who are close neighbors at Grand and Shenandoah avenues, had some extra fine window displays of fall designs. J. J. Windler says his brother,

The Metropolitan Floral Co. has a force at work preparing for the decorations for the automobile show, which will be held at Forest Park Highlands next week.

According to the personal news of the society columns in the daily press, there will be a large number of October brides, which should start the business off in fine shape for the beginning of the social season.

The Ladies' Home Circle will hold its next meeting at the home of Mrs. Emil Schray, at 4100 Pennsylvania avenue. The date is set for Wednesday, October 8.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its October meeting Thursday, October 9, in the Odd Fellows' hall. The new officers say the meeting will be called promptly at 2 o'clock. Chairman Windler, of the trustees, says that W. S. Wells will be the speaker for this meeting. J. J. B.

Business was exceptionally heavy last week. Funeral and wedding work showed a decided increase at almost every store. The United Fashion shows were also a source of good business for the florists of this city in the decorating line, as nearly every dry goods, clothing and general retail store used some kind of decorative plants in the windows and a great many stores decorated the interiors as well. cups were offered for the best displays in the windows.

The cool weather has been a great help to the growers, and the stock that is being cut shows a decided improvement over that of two weeks ago. Carnations are looking much better and the demand is much heavier than the supply; consequently they are selling at a good price. Roses are fine, but are a little too plentiful and do not bring a big price as yet. There are still a few good asters and gladioli in the market. The supply of mums is short and they sell rapidly.

Various Notes.

E. D. Ellsworth and family are back from their summer home at Forest Lake, after an exciting accident. His three children were boating on the lake about 100 feet from the shore, when the boat capsized in twelve feet of water. One of the children, 7 years old, was able to catch hold of the boat, while another, 11 years old, was rescuing one 3 years old. It was twenty minutes before help could be obtained. It was considered remarkable for an 11-year-old youngster to hold on his back a 3-year-old baby, keeping the child above the water for twenty minutes.

The Peterson Floral Co. reports business as starting up nicely. They are putting their place in good shape for the winter.

Biedermann & Son report that business for the summer, as a whole, showed a decided increase over that of last summer, especially in funeral work.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. had a heavy run on out-of-town funeral work.

T. J. Noll, formerly with Arthur Newell, is now in business for himself at 1109 Grand avenue, taking up the wholesale and commission work, in which there is plenty of room for him. The members of the trade wish him a big success. A. H. McDonald is now with Mr. Newell, having taken Mr.

Noll's position. Mr. McDonald reports that business was exceptionally good last week.

R. S. Brown & Son say that business is improving fast. They have taken in all the stock from the fields and everything is in good shape.

W. J. Barnes had a busy week. He used over 800 plants in the decoration for the Emery, Bird & Thayer Dry Goods Co. for Fashion Show week.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. reports that business in the decorating line has increased considerably.

Henry Kusik & Co. say that business is more than sufficient to consume the stock that they receive. They are especially short on carnations and mums.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE new tariff duties, which will go into effect this week, will be found on page 18 of this issue.

THE cold storage lily of the valley is well cleaned up, so that the arrival of the new crop is awaited with special interest.

A NEW firm, known as the Spainhower Seed Co., will be started soon at Albany, Mo., by Chris Spainhower, to deal mainly in farm seeds.

NOT many Harrisii bulbs of the short 1913 crop still are out of their pots, but yet there are enough so that anyone who wants some can be supplied.

ACCORDING to the latest statistics there were seeds of an invoice value of $25,639 in bonded warehouses, awaiting the day when the new duties will be in force. It is said the quantity so held up has largely increased in the last week.

A CHARTER has been filed by the Bu-fin Pure Seed Co., Wilmington, Del., with a capital stock of $1,000,000 to grow and deal in seeds of all kinds. The incorporators are Herbert E. Latter, W. T. Maloney and Oscar J. Reichard, all of Wilmington.

CHIEF of F. C. Heinemann's novelties for 1914 is Begonia hybrida gigantea Duplex, but he has another called B. hybrida crispa marginata, in two colors. A new feathered poppy is bright carmine on white ground. Cecily is a Drummondii phlox of compact growth, now offered in five colors. A white Tom Thumb myosotis has come as a companion to the blue form introduced by Heinemann some years ago.

THE PRICE OF ROMANS.

The writer notices an article in The Review for September 25, page 52, about Romans. In spite of all the howl and cry, and the contraction of orders, the big bulk of the crop was consumed at high prices. True, there was a surplus late in the season—we bought a large quantity ourselves at a reduction of exactly forty-five per cent of the early price.

We quite agree with the English that the prices early were entirely too high, but their reasons are warped.

The fact is there are sixty to seventy small growers producing the big bulk nowadays and the four or five exporters are obliged to pay them a higher price than ever before, because of the advent of the Dutchman in the field.

The Hollanders during the last few years have visited the smaller growers and impressed them with the fact that they were not getting enough for their product. This, together with an unusual demand for large sizes in a dry season, is responsible for the prices.

August 5 the writer was in Toulon among the exporters and at that particular time there were no Paper Whites to be had practically, size 13 up, at any price, but September 5 we got plenty at a very great reduction in price.

This is due to the fact that growers hold back their stock sometimes with the expectation of getting higher prices. It is all due to the agitation among the small growers, which the Hollanders themselves are responsible for.

We assure you the blame in that article is placed in the wrong place—the French bulb exporters are not making a fortune in the business. Quite the contrary, it's the small grower who is getting more for his crops than ever before.

As proof of this, we all know there are reliable men in the district who are, and have been for some time, buyers on a commission basis for American and English firms. They also paid high prices in competition with the Dutchmen, to get their orders filled.

Too many different buyers after the goods direct is what is really responsible for the high cost. Some of these Hollanders had orders at "market price" sufficient to protect them, and in such instances florists find they have been charged plenty.

Ralph M. Ward.

THE GRASS SEED SITUATION.

"Although the temperature has been more favorable during maturity of the grasses around here than in recent years," writes Gustav Schott, of Aschaffenburg, Bavaria, "the crops have not been quite satisfactory with regard to their quality. Australia, Denmark, England and France have obtained far better results in this respect. In America nearly all grasses have suffered from an abnormal heat and it is reported that the crop expectations will be far below the average, especially of Agrostis stolonifera, stocks of which are nearly cleared out and nothing of importance will be carried over for the new season, so prices will be extremely high. Agrostis capillaris promises to be a good crop on our side.

"Aira flexuosa and Aira cespitosa have yielded middling crops. Alopecurus pratensis came in under good circumstances and the available quantity of seed will figure out to last year's crop; the quality is expected to be much better. Anthoxanthum odoratum is an average crop of good quality, whereas the crop of A. Puelli seems to be quite a failure.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

WHEN WRITING ADVERTISERS

"Avena elatior has been affected by heavy storms during time of maturity. A. flavescens will be marketed at a normal price. The same applies to Bromus pratensis and B. mollis. B. inermis will be a short again.

"Dactylis glomerata did not turn out so well as it was expected in Australia and especially not in America. On our side a crop of poor quality has been harvested and prices have advanced to a point which I fancy is not justified. Denmark has increased the acreage again, and therefore will be able to fill the market. Cleaning will cost a little more, because of a larger percentage of light seed. France also will have nice lots of seed and Austria will meet at least a part of its own demand.

"Festuca ovina has been in limited demand. The seed is bright and of good germination. Of F. tenuifolia a good crop of fancy quality has been saved. F. rubra and F. heterophylla have yielded satisfactorily on our side. Australia at first reported a record crop, but later it was known that the outturn would be far below the estimates. Several shippers had difficulty in filling contracts on hand, and prices have advanced. America as our chief supplier of F. pratensis has not yet put any important quantity of new seed on the market. It is said that the yield is rather disappointing there, and high prices are to be expected. Denmark has been able to strengthen the price for its homegrown seed, which is a fair crop but light in weight. F. elatior is a good crop.

"Of Poa pratensis the new crop in America is a small one and of poor quality, but sufficient yearling seed is held over to fill the requirements and to keep prices on a normal level. The same applies to P. compressa. Of P. trivialis enough seed will be available and quality satisfactory. The increased demand will count for the higher price now prevailing for that variety. P. nemoralis also is a good crop.

"Of Phleum pratense the crop in the United States will be materially short of the quantity produced last year. Old stocks are getting small and the new crops expected by other countries will not affect prices. We will see an advance before long.

"The weather so far has been favorable for clovers and if it continues we will have a larger quantity of good homegrown seed at our command than we had during the last years; however, it is yet too soon to form any definite idea."

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Fashion show week always calls for a large quantity of the cheaper decorative stock and this year was no exception. But there was plenty of all kinds to go around and some left, thus showing how difficult it is to tell just how things will go. As the demand and supply increase, the element of gambling enters more and more into the flower business and it becomes more difficult to say just what will be on hand for certain days or times. Chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful every week, and if the weather holds good there will be immense quantities of outdoor stock in the market by the time these notes appear. Roses, both indoor and outdoor, are plentiful, but the recent heat wave was hard on the foliage of the outdoor stock. Orchids and valley have both been scarce at times and other flowers have had to be substituted. Carnations are improving, both in length of stem and in color, especially the outdoor stock. There is still an abundance of centaureas. Quite a number of asters made a belated appearance.

The stock of ferns has improved. Bostons, Whitmani and the pretty Asplenium Nidus-Avis are shown in quantity. There are no flowering plants worth the name and there are only a few coleuses in the foliage class. Greens are not any too plentiful.

Various Notes.

George Watson has been suffering from severe stomach trouble and has been unable to be around for several days.

The first Dutch bulbs of the season were shown by the Germain Seed & Plant Co. in the windows September 19, the earliest shipments having arrived in splendid condition. Reports as to poor quality in hyacinths had reached town, but those shown by this up-to-date firm were surely not lacking either in size or quality. All the popular varieties were shown. In addition to the hyacinths, Golden Spur and Emperor narcissi and Keizerskroon and Murillo tulips were especially good.

At the Los Angeles Flower Market large quantities of orchids have been handled of late, the stock being mostly from northern growers. F. Sperry is letting out his belt considerably these days; southern California evidently agrees with him.

Frank Lichtenberg reports big advance orders for October weddings and says he has never had a better summer, notwithstanding the loss of business consequent on removal. Mr. Lichtenberg is enjoying far better health than formerly.

Darling's Japanese window for the fashion show caused quite a sensation.

The H. N. Gage Co. is busy boxing up large quantities of bulbs for winter forcing.

S. Murata returned recently from his vacation and reports an excellent time. Shipping business keeps up well here.

We thought at first it was a new circus coming to town, but it proved to be C. Winsel's auto truck, advertising his Dutch bulbs. Good business, Charlie.

Mr. Wing, at the sign of The Violet, is now the only retailer on Fifth street.

Rossi Bros. have moved to Broadway, between Third and Fourth streets.

Alterations in the hall and stairway at 414 Broadway have given D. Stahatos more room. He surely gets away with the flowers. The trained dog is quite an attraction.

Finer plants of Cocos plumosa than those being shipped from the Dieterich & Turner place at Montebello have seldom been seen or grown. The large new house of roses is in splendid shape for the winter.

Sam Slack, formerly with the Geo. Wittbold Co., Chicago, and more recently of Montebello, has taken charge of the growing end of the business for Boyle & Darnaud, San Diego.

Funeral work and weddings have kept the staff busy at J. W. Wolters' store, on Hill street.

Out at Eagle Rock, in the rich alluvial soil there, M. J. Bridgeford grows probably the finest Liliun rubrum that comes to this market, and I recently had the chance to inspect some of his bulbs that have flowered this season. They are simply magnificent; great, solid, heavy roots, better than anything that has been imported from Japan for many years. They should produce splendid stock again next year. There is certainly no depreciation in quality here, but the reverse, and Mr.

Bridgeford is to be heartily congratulated.

Wallace Boyd is back at his post at O. C. Saakes'.

An eastern grower of some experience told the writer after seeing the roses at Tom Wright's plant at Gardena that he had never seen anything to come up to the roses there. Congratulations, friend Brown.

H. R. Richards.

PASADENA, CAL.

The regular meeting of the Pasadena Horticultural Society was held at the Board of Trade rooms, September 19, with President McGilvray in the chair. There was a good attendance of the members and a number from Los Angeles. Of the latter three new members were initiated, Duncan Murdoch, Charles Winsel and H. R. Richards. There is a decided drawing together of the two societies, which is a great desideratum and makes for good feeling all around. After the general business, questions were taken up and an interesting discussion took place. A communication from Hollywood was read, asking for the assistance of the society in the holding of a show there, and it was decided to make an exhibit there and help in every way possible. The matter of exhibiting at the San Francisco world's fair came up, and Secretary Kennedy was instructed to write and obtain full particulars as to space, etc.

The stock at the Clemence Nurseries looks fine, as it always does, and Mr. Clemence is to be congratulated on the excellent headway he has made in a

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business has shown a wonderful improvement in the last few weeks, but as long as the weather remains pleasant, there will be a variety of outside flowers, which will lessen the demand. Stock of all varieties is plentiful. Chrysanthemums are not overplentiful, yet it is rather early to handle them in quantities. Roses are coming in nicely, Hillingdons, Maids, Killarneys and Richmonds being the leading varieties. Carnations, with good flowers and vigorous stems, are becoming more plentiful. Asters have about run their course. While the flowers are good, the stems have shortened considerably. Violets have at last made their appearance, but the quality is only fair and they prove poor keepers. Orchids and valley have had a steady call on account of the many prominent weddings of late. With the advance of fall, there has been a good demand for palms and ferns.

The Dahlia Show.

The Portland Dahlia Society held its first show at the Library building, September 24 and 25, this being the outcome of the efforts of the dahlia growers of this city, who organized last July. Much credit is due President Ray Gill and Secretary E. H. White for the success of the show, which was open to professionals and amateurs alike. There were no awards in the professional class, by agreement, as competition was keen. In the amateur class, there were many prizes awarded, which were donated by the members of the society.

Exhibitors from Tacoma had the finest varieties of the cactus type, while Portland excelled in the peony type. Ashland, Ore., also competed in all types. The Portland Seed Co., Gill Bros., the Routledge Seed & Floral Co. and the Willamette Dahlia Co. were the largest exhibitors. About 1,000 varieties were shown. The judges were C. B. Beckstead, E. E. Gill and Peter Adams. Zimmerman Bros. also made a display of annuals and perennials.

It is the object of the society to make the show an annual event and to make the dahlia the fall flower to vie with the rose for honors, for which this city is well known.

Various Notes.

The Martin & Forbes Co. is growing the Gorgeous carnation this season. This is a beautiful flower of American Beauty color, the cut and quality exceeding expectations, and it bids fair to be a popular variety.

R. L. Scott has several houses of choice ferns, for which he finds a ready market.

C. A. Epperson, formerly of the Routledge Seed & Floral Co., has opened an office at Fourth and Main streets, and intends to handle high-grade bulbs and nursery stock. He also intends to do landscape work.

Harry Bamford returned September 20, via California, from an extended trip to Europe, and expresses himself

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Retail trade is gradually improving as the season advances. The weather has been unusually fine during the last week, and that helps considerably. The stock of flowers, on the whole, is not plentiful; in fact, Saturday morning, September 27, found the retailers fighting for stock, which is a good indication. The trade looks forward to a little extra stimulus from the Jewish holidays.

Mums seem to be coming in nicely as far as quality is concerned, but the supply is a trifle short and the retailers are always dubious as to how they are going to meet their orders. A new crop of carnations is coming in, but the stems are extremely short. Carnations are selling for 50 cents per bunch on the wholesale market. Violets stand at 75 cents per dozen and are not delivered to the retailers, as in former years. The bunches are small; the flowers are of poor quality and hardly last three or four hours. There are some fair Killarneys and American Beauties, but they are not in particularly good supply. Cattleyas are scarce, perhaps more so than last week. Though a good number of blooms of early labiata have been brought to the market, the demand is so great that it quickly absorbs the supply. Phalenopsis and other white orchids are at a high premium and are almost unprocurable. The many social functions and big funerals have made heavy demands on valley, and it is high-priced and difficult to obtain. The first good cyclamens arrived last week. Celestial peppers are also procurable. Lilium rubrum is on the wane and the scarcity is greatly felt. Asters are practically unprocurable.

Various Notes.

Mark Ebel, of Sacramento, is visiting in San Francisco and taking short joy rides down the peninsula, accompanied by his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Serveau.

Patrick Orr, of the Fairmount Floral Co., has left for Oroville, where he will spend several weeks in order to recuperate.

nights, making the stock in the greenhouses look exceptionally well for this season. A few locally grown chrysanthemums are beginning to arrive, but there will be no large quantity for a time yet. Asters of fine quality are still plentiful and are to be had at a reasonable price. Frost has slightly damaged outside stock in low places, but not enough to kill outside flowers. New carnations are beginning to come in and are of splendid color and firmness, but the stems are a little short. Short-stemmed roses are plentiful, but good stock is scarce. Early fall weddings have kept society busy, and many pretty decorations for teas and parties have been furnished by the florists.

Various Notes.

The new greenhouses of the Spokane Greenhouses, Inc., located at Marshall, a few miles from Spokane, are now completed and filled with stock for the coming season. They are of semi-iron construction and are large and bright, with plenty of air space. The soil seems especially adapted to the growing of roses, and the firm expects to produce some fine stock for the market.

Donart & Lewis, of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, have added a new house to their already large range and will continue to grow a good many winter vegetables in connection with their flowers.

Scott Bros., of Moscow, Idaho, took in the fair and visited the various greenhouses around Spokane. They report their business as quite satisfactory.

The Rosery Flower Shop, recently opened by Mr. Langstaff, formerly with the A. J. Burt Co., has been nicely fitted up and is now ready for the flower season.

N. R. Wollan, a rose and carnation grower of Post Falls, Idaho, was a visitor in the city recently.

The Spokane Florist Co. reports a most satisfactory business during the summer months and that the fall business has started in better than ever. The company has had some fine dinner table decorations and this week will do the large decoration for the Labaree-McAdams wedding at the home of Ex-senator George Turner.

H. G. Evans, with the A. J. Burt Co., left last week for the coast, and a new man from Chicago came to take his place as decorator with the firm.

Reimers' Floral Art Shop has been showing some extremely pretty lilies in the window and reports trade as good.

Hoyt Bros. Co. has been showing a great many dahlias during the last week and is booking orders for spring planting.

Thos. Christensen has rented the greenhouses formerly owned by the Inland Nursery & Floral Co. and will grow vegetables.

Patrick Leavey is adding a 100-foot house to his range, in which he will grow violets and pot plants.

H. L. Olsson is sending some fine Golden Glow and October Frost mums to market and reports that he will have some fine stock during the coming season. C. T. K.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

TEXAS NURSERYMEN CONVENE.

The Thirteenth Annual Meeting.

The Texas Nurserymen's Association held its thirteenth annual meeting September 23 and 24, at Waco, Tex. At the first session a motion was passed to make all future meetings executive, the rule to be applied especially to the exclusion of newspaper men. At this session also $140 was raised to provide for an exhibit at the convention of the National Nut Growers' Association at Houston, Tex., next November.

As at all meetings of the kind throughout the country, the main topic was the legal situation in regard to nursery inspection. With a view to the preservation of shade and ornamental trees, the association passed a resolution recommending the appointment of tree wardens by the towns and cities.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—J. S. Kerr, of Sherman.
Vice-president—W. B. Munson, of Denison.

Secretary and treasurer—J. M. Ramsey, of Austin.

On the auditing committee were appointed the following: J. H. Arbenz, of Sarita, chairman; C. C. Mayhew, of Sherman, and M. S. Shemburger, of Tyler. The resolutions committee consisted of the following: W. B. Munson, of Denison, chairman; John T. Sneed, of Tyler, and J. S. Kerr, of Sherman.

The executive committee will select the place of the next annual meeting and report later.

The Program.

The program for the two days was as follows:

Calling to order by the president.
Invocation, John F. Sneed, Tyler.
Address of welcome, M. Falkner, Waco.
Response to address of welcome, E. Pomeroy, Donna.
President's annual address, O. K. Phillips, Rockdale.
Report of secretary-treasurer, J. M. Ramsey, Austin.
Appointment of committees.
"Government Demonstrations with Nuts and Fruits at Boerne and Beeville," by G. A. Schatzenberg, Boerne.
"Figs, Oranges and Other Citrus Fruits," by J. H. Arbenz, Sarita.
"The Shade Tree Situation Reviewed," by J. B. Baker, Fort Worth.
"Propagating Pecans in the Nursery," by H. J. Martin, Port Arthur.
"Increase of the Florists' Trade in Texas," by Tom Wolfe, Waco.
"The Present Supply of Nursery Trees of Peach, Plum, Apple and Pear for the Coming Season," by J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie.
"Hardier Species of Stocks for Fruit Trees, and How They May Be Obtained," by E. W. Kirkpatrick, McKinney.
"Which Is Best for Our Texas Climate, Budded Roses or Roses on Own Roots, and Why?" by W. A. Yates, Brenham.
"Right Prices for Greenhouse Products," by E. Farley, Denison.
"What the Department of Agriculture Is Doing to Suppress Injurious Insects and Scale in Texas Orchards," by Sam H. Dixon, Houston.
"Four Great Opportunities: The Texas State Fair, October; American Pomological Society, November; National Nutgrowers, November; National Corn Show, February." Discussion led by J. S. Kerr, Sherman.
"The Status of the Movement for a National Inspection Law," by E. P. Bernardin, Parsons, Kan.
"The Labor Problem," by M. G. Black, Mt. Pleasant.

"The Membership Problem and How to Solve It," by Will B. Munson, Denison.

Echoes from the American Association meeting and Southern Nurserymen's Convention, by those who attended.

Reports of committees.
Election of officers for ensuing year.
Adjournment.

Nurserymen Present.

Present at the convention were the following:

J. H. Arbenz, Sarita; M. G. Black, Mt. Pleasant; J. L. Quicksall, Waco; W. J. Schulze, Bangs; Will B. Munson, Denison; M. S. Shemburger, Tyler; P. T. Shemburger, Tyler; George W. Weaver, Swan; E. T. Heinson, Algoa; Sam J. Baker, Bay City; J. M. Thompson, Waco; S. P. Ford, Tyler; W. W. Needham, Waco; A. C. White, Tyler; E. P. Bernardin, Parsons, Kan.; Sam H. Dixon, Houston; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Mayhew, Sherman; W. G. Blackman, San Antonio; M. Falkner, Waco; John F. Sneed, Tyler; H. I. Martin, Port Arthur; F. W. Ballantine, Dallas; Tom Wolfe, Waco; J. M. Ramsey, Austin; L. J. Tackett, Fort Worth; O. K. Phillips, Rockdale; L. Bloxom, Chilton; E. W. Kirkpatrick, McKinney; John S. Kerr, Sherman; J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie; V. D. Aeri, Waco.

STARK TRIAL ON.

On a change of venue from the Pike County Circuit court, the Stark family case was put on trial September 22 in the Circuit court of Audrain county, at Mexico, Mo. The case is receiving a great deal of publicity, because of the magnitude of the interests involved and the character of the controversy. A dispatch to a Kansas City paper said:

"The case of William P. Stark vs. Stark Bros. Nursery & Orchard Co., Edgar W. Stark, Lloyd C. Stark and Eugene Duncan, which went to trial in the Audrain County Circuit court today, promises to be one of the biggest and longest trials ever witnessed in the local court. A receiver is asked for the largest nursery company in the world, involving property worth more than a million dollars. The case was brought here from the Pike County Circuit court on a change of venue."

CALIFORNIANS WILL MEET.

Program of Annual Meeting.

The California Association of Nurserymen has issued the program for its third annual meeting, which will be held at the new Fresno hotel, at Fresno, Cal., October 16 to 18. The first two and a half days of the meeting will be devoted to business and addresses; the afternoon of the third day will be given over to pleasure trips and will end with a banquet and general good time at the Country Club. An exhibition that is expected to outdo all previous ones will be staged in the main court of the hotel. All exhibits are to be sent to Charles A. Chambers, 1824 Tulare street, Fresno, Cal., so as to reach him by October 15. Thursday

 "Healthy Competition in the Nursery Business," by W. R. Wood, of the Roeding & Wood Nursery Co., Los Angeles.

LANCASTER, PA.The Market.

Business conditions showed considerable improvement last week, although good flowers are scarce. Carnations are getting better and can be had in all colors. My Maryland, Golden Gate, Bride and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses are good and we find enough to go the rounds. Chrysanthemums are arriving in fine shape, three colors: Smith's Advance, Golden Glow and Unaka. These varieties are all ready sellers and it gives the retailers a chance to make a display of mums in both the shop and window. Good dahlias are scarce, as most of the flowers coming in are brown on the backs.

Various Notes.

Albert M. Herr is cutting some good carnations and the plants all look strong and healthy. The varieties are Beacon, White Enchantress and Rosette.

Rudolph Nagel is cutting the best mums in this section. His Unaka are fine, large flowers, with good foliage and 4-foot stems. Chrysolora also is looking good and the buds are showing color.

Schroyer's windows are neatly arranged, with fancy ferns and plants of auratum lilies. He is cutting some good carnations.

The Rosery has one display window filled with dahlias, the other with novelty twig baskets containing air plant, etc.

Frank A. Suter is cutting heavily of dahlias, the cactus varieties proving ready sellers.

The Keystone Nurseries, of B. F. Barr & Co., have been kept busy during the month of September, with landscape work.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y.

The Oyster Bay Horticultural Society held its September meeting in the Board of Trade rooms, Friday evening, September 19, with President Duthie in the chair. Frank Gale was the only one recommended to active membership; David Palmer, Ernest Schmidt, Frank Humphrey, Fred Kirkham and Arnold B. Pearson were elected to active membership. A letter from Theodore Roosevelt enclosing check for honorary membership was read. The schedule for the chrysanthemum show to be held October 31 was adopted with but few alterations from the original reading. Judges for this and the autumn show were appointed. John McIntosh was appointed to fill the place of Floyd Bowers on the executive committee. William Devine and John McIntosh were appointed managers of the show to be held October 2 and 3.

The judges of the exhibits at this meeting were Fred Kirkham, Frank Kyle and James Duckham. The society's prizes were awarded to Frank Petroccia for twelve cactus dahlias, six onions and six peaches. A basket of onions exhibited by Mr. Petroccia were given honorable mention. Certificates of merit were given to James Duthie for four vases of dahlias and to Joseph Robinson for his seedling dahlia. At the next meeting the exhibits are to be of one cauliflower, a vase of cosmos and three pears of any variety.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

During the last week a considerable increase in trade has been noticed, especially in funeral work. The extreme scarcity of stock is about over and roses and carnations are coming in more plentifully. A few mums are also making their appearance. There is a scarcity of greens and it is a hard matter to pick up such stock even in small quantities.

Various Notes.

The Stewart Dry Goods Co. has opened a cut flower department on its main floor. Miss Emma Pulford, for many years with Nanz & Neuner, is in charge.

Fred Haupt has started carnation sales at 25 cents per dozen, for Saturdays only.

Jacob Schulz has his greenhouses in good shape. The mums are unusually good and the prospects are bright for a large cut of choice blooms.

The regular monthly meeting of the Kentucky Society of Florists was held at the residence of Robert Miller. It was one of the banner meetings of the R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co.

WHITE MARSH, MARYLAND

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh has had a week of delightful fall weather, which has helped to increase the quantity of stock coming in, but the shortage of carnations and chrysanthemums continues. A few dahlias have been used in this market this season. The retailers are busy arraying their places in their fall dress and another week will probably see most of them fully prepared for the season's trade. There were a number of extensive funeral orders last week. The general feeling is that we may confidently look forward to a busy winter, as orders are already being booked for many social affairs, and these orders, some retailers say, are larger than for several years. According to reports, September, while fair, was not beyond the average in the amount of business done.

Various Notes.

W. H. Carney has reopened the wholesale cut flower store at 122 Sandusky street, formerly occupied by J. B. Murdoch & Co. This makes four wholesale houses in this city, and there will undoubtedly be some hustling for business this winter.

C. Godwin & Sons, of Bridgeville, Pa., have been cutting some fine Smith's Advance chrysanthemums, which have found a ready market.

Pittsburgh and Allegheny county celebrated their one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary last week by holding parades of some kind every day. Friday was the day for the automobile and truck parade, in which the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. received first prize, for the most beautiful and original decorated truck. Some honor goes with this, as keen competition prevailed. The John Bader Co. also was represented in the parade by a floral truck.

Fire destroyed the large barn of P. S. Randolph & Sons, at Verona, Pa., last week.

Randolph & McClements executed an order last week for a floral blanket which contained several thousand pink roses, besides valley and orchids.

Clarke.

Florence, S. C.—De Witt House, who does a general florists' and nursery business under the name of the Palmetto Nursery, formerly the Florence Nursery, says "times is sure hard this season here."

Bloomington, Ill.—Leo Wellenreiter, of Danville, Ill., expresses satisfaction with the business done here since June 1, when he opened a retail store in partnership with Mrs. C. V. Hale. Mr. Wellenreiter has greenhouses and nursery at Danville. Mrs. Hale came from St. Louis to enter the employ of the Phoenix Nursery Co., in its retail flower store, where she spent six months prior to starting in business on the partnership account.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Mums now are arriving daily, quality good for this date. Dahlias are scarce; there was a short crop this season compared to other years. Asters are out of the market. Good roses and carnations are coming in and are eagerly picked up. Valley is scarce. Green goods are plentiful. Last week trade was quiet in the retail way, which was not without its advantages, as the wholesale market is cleaned up each day as fast as the stock arrives.

Various Notes.

The ladies are organizing. There is to be a meeting soon, of wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts of the local florists, to arrange for a permanent organization of ladies to entertain visiting ladies when they come to Cleveland with their husbands, fathers, brothers and sweethearts to attend the flower show in November, also the Carnation Society meeting in January. It is a move in the right direction. The ladies are sure of the hearty support of the local trade.

Early frosts have done considerable damage in this locality, except in sections bordering on the lake, which are always the last to suffer. Cosmos is not yet in bloom, and does not promise a full crop, unless the frosts hold off a few weeks.

The James Eadie Co. has secured the contract for supplying Hotel Statler with cut flowers and decorative stock for the ensuing year.

Dutch bulbs are arriving fast and the quality is unusually good. The bulbs seem a trifle smaller than other years, but are firm and clean.

Remember the regular October meeting of the Florists' Club Monday evening, October 13. Important business in connection with the coming flower show is to be brought up. F. A. F.

Tremont, Neb.—Chas. H. Green is completing another greenhouse, 32 x 120, to be used for carnations.

Paterson, N. J.—At the third annual flower show of the Paterson Floricultural Society, September 20 and 21, in the classes open to commercial growers only, Thomas W. Head, of Bergenfield, N. J., took first prize for the best collection of dahlias and John Lewis Childs, of Flowerfield, N. Y., first prize for the best collection of gladioli.

John Lappe, Maspeth, L. I., N. Y.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. Some of many reports: "The pansy plants all look like good, healthy, stocky plants, and we feel will come up to all expectations." Henry J. Hass & Son, Newport, R. I. "I would like to get 4000 or 5000 of your pansy plants. I saw a house of pansies from your stock last winter and they were the finest I ever saw." Harry W. Stewart, Rhinebeck, N. Y. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery, by express in good condition guaranteed. Cash.

L. W. Goodell, Pansy Park, Dwight, Mass.

PANSIES, strong, stocky plants, thin sowing of the choicest giants, great variety of colors, plants now ready, $2.50 per 1000. Cash. Satisfaction guaranteed. Green Ridge Floral Gardens, 1706 Dickson Ave., Scranton, Pa.

Pansy plants of my largest flowering mixture of show varieties, unsurpassed quality, good size, stocky plants, $3.00 per 1000; 5000 lots, $2.50 per 1000; 500 at 1000 rate. Gustav Pitsonka, Pansy Farm, R. F. D., Bristol, Pa.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

FLOWER POTS

We are trying to save you money through this advertisement. Our plan is to furnish you the best of ware at a very low price. It costs money to call on you personally. Let's get together on the mail order proposition and you save the difference. There are other reasons why you will want our pots. We are very fortunate in the quality of our clay, and you will be delighted with the ware. Our large output and advantages of cheap fuel, with our clay at our back door and the railroads at our front door, with little cost for selling, enables us to quote you very low prices. A sample order will convince you. Samples and prices on application. Whether you use car lots or smaller quantities, it is to your advantage to write us.

Greenhouse Heating.

THE FUEL MARKET.

Belated buying, shortage of cars and labor trouble are strengthening prices on coal. Anthracite demand is now normal for this season of the year. The colder weather of the last week forced the starting of fires in apartment houses. Also, West Virginia railroads proved to have a less abundant car supply. The two things brought a stronger tone to an easing smokeless coal market, with the result that mine run is now selling at $1.40 to $1.50 at the mines, with the emphasis upon the latter figure.

PIPING AN INDIANA HOUSE.

I am building one greenhouse, 20x115 feet, running north and south. The gutters are seven feet high and the ridge twelve feet from the ground. Both ends are glass, and there are four feet of glass in the sides, the remaining three feet being boarded up. I want to heat this house with hot water and am thinking about purchasing a seven-section Ideal boiler. I should like to know how to pipe this house so that I can keep up a temperature of 60 degrees in cold weather; the coldest we have here is about 5 degrees below zero. I shall put my boiler in the cellar and will be able to give the pipes any kind of fall. Do you think it necessary to have a generator? This boiler is to have 2,225 feet of radiation. Will it carry another house of the same size and also a small store room, 15x20 feet?

W. F. R.

About 1,200 square feet of radiation will be needed to heat the house described to 60 degrees, so that a boiler with a rating of 2,225 square feet would have to be crowded pretty hard to heat two houses of this size to 60 degrees. If 52 degrees would be enough for one of the houses, for which 1,000 square feet of radiation would answer, the boiler could be used for the two houses with a good degree of economy.

For piping, run one 2½-inch flow under each ridge and one upon each eave plate. Connect each of the side flow pipes with a coil of four 2-inch return pipes and the other flow pipe with five returns under the benches. It will be well to have the highest point in the flow pipes as nearly over the boiler as possible and connect each with the pipe leading to the expansion tank.

Run each of the pipes with a fall of one inch in fifteen or twenty feet. The circulation is in no way benefited by running the pipes with a considerable pitch. On the other hand, the pipes should be kept as high as possible above the heater, and hence the less fall given the pipes the better; all that is required is enough to keep the air from pocketing. While a slight reduction in the amount of piping

PAINTING HOT WATER PIPES.

I notice that for painting hot water pipes you recommend lampblack. I should like to have mine white. Would white lead, linseed oil and turpentine, with plenty of the last-named, make a good mixture?

The paint suggested would make an excellent covering for heating pipes. The point we were endeavoring to emphasize in the article referred to, is COAL OR NATURAL GAS?

Which would be cheaper to burn in this section of Missouri, natural gas at 30 cents per thousand square feet or steam coal at $2.90 per ton in the bin? We are about ninety miles south of Kansas City and have 50,000 square feet of glass. What would it cost to equip the boilers for burning gas?

E. F. C.

The comparative cost of natural gas and coal at the figures given would be slightly in favor of the coal, but the gas can be burned with little attention, and if a steady pressure can be obtained the saving in labor for firing, removing cinders, etc., will make it more economical in the end. The cost for piping, burners, etc., for burning gas is not great, but will depend upon the style of burner, the number and size of boilers, etc. Local gas fitters should be able to give quotations.

HOT WATER CIRCULATION POOR.

I have two houses 100 feet long, one twenty-four feet wide and the other thirty-two feet wide. I have torn out the glass that formerly separated the houses. How many 2-inch pipes will be required to keep the houses at the proper temperature for tomatoes in northern Illinois with a hot water system? At present the 32-foot house has sixteen 2-inch pipes; the 24-foot house has twenty-two 2-inch pipes fed by a 4-inch main. Two coils are of six pipes each and two of five pipes each. Each coil is attached to a header, to which the water is supplied as shown in the sketch. (Sketch shows upright feed pipe attached to lower end of header connected with pipes lying one above another.) Under no conditions am I able to heat more than three pipes in each coil; there is no circulation in the others. I have been advised to change the headers in this manner. (Sketch shows header in horizontal position, the pipes dropping a few inches before running horizontally.) Can you suggest any method that will give me the benefit of all the pipes?

E. C. S.

The sketches submitted give little idea how the pipes are arranged, except that the coils are vertical, i. e., the pipes lie one above another, and that the feed pipe comes down from above and connects with the bottom of the header. Nothing is furnished to show where the main is located, the height of the returns above the heater, or the size of the feed pipes leading to the coils.

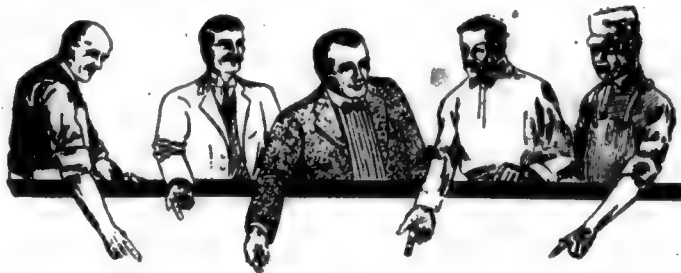

While a 4-inch flow pipe is large enough for the house 24x100 feet, it would be better to use four 2½-inch pipes as flows in this house, carrying one on each eave plate and one on each side of the ridge under a purlin. Sixteen 2-inch returns will be sufficient if the 2½-inch flows are used, but eighteen will be needed if the 4-inch flow is retained. At any rate, the feed pipes to the coils should be 2½-inch, and they should enter the upper end of the headers.

For the house 32x100 feet, five 2½-inch flow pipes and four coils of five

CAST IRON BOILERS—FOOL ECONOMY (false ratings, fuel waste, danger of breakdowns by cracking of sections, dealers' commissions on sales)—OR KROESCHELL BOILERS—FUEL ECONOMY (honest and "true blue" boiler ratings, safety, quick heat, factory-to-user prices).

Kroeschell Replaces 4 Cast Iron Boilers

Previous to 1909, Mr. Schultz, of Menominee, Mich., heated his entire plant with cast iron boilers. It had been claimed that cast iron boilers are superior to the Kroeschell. Mr. Schultz is now heating 18,000 sq. ft. of glass with the Kroeschell which was installed in 1909, and they are required to fire same only twice a night. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We do not have the least trouble to maintain about 60 degrees in the coldest weather. Your Kroeschell Boiler is the best I ever had. Before I heard about your boiler I had four cast iron boilers, and I would not part with the Kroeschell for a hundred cast iron boilers now."

(Signed) CHARLES SCHULTZ.

July 21, 1913, Menominee, Mich.

Kroeschell Replaces 2 Cast Iron Boilers

The Marysville Floral Co., of Marysville, O., installed a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler in 1905. Previous to this time they used cast iron boilers. The following letter speaks for itself:

"Has the Kroeschell given entire satisfaction? Yes! We had two cast iron boilers, but yours proved by far the best. Your boiler has already outlasted the two cast iron boilers by five years, and all the expense that we have been put to was a smoke dome."

(Signed) MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO.

July 21, 1913, Marysville, O.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron Boilers

The range of C. Peterson & Son, at Escanaba, Mich., was formerly heated by cast iron boilers. Last season this firm installed their first Kroeschell, a No. 6, which is now heating 13,000 to 14,000 sq. ft. of glass. They state that they fire these boilers three to four times during the night in zero weather. Under date of June 28, 1913, they write as follows: "

"The Kroeschell Boiler has given better satisfaction than any other boiler we have ever had. For years we have fired many different boilers, and really never could get one that we might say was entirely satisfactory—there was always something wrong—but now since we have tried the Kroeschell, we have solved our boiler proposition. We have a (—) cast iron sectional boiler here, only used two years, and we wish we could get rid of it and put in another Kroeschell in its place."

Escanaba, Mich., June 28, 1913.

2-inch returns will be required. If the 4-inch flow pipe is retained, it should be supplemented with two 2½-inch flow pipes on the plates. The main return pipes should be of the same size, or at least of the same capacity as the flow pipes. Unless the top of the boiler is as low as the returns, a mercury generator should be used on the system.

HEATING A NEW JERSEY HOUSE.

I have a small even-span greenhouse, running north and south, with the potting shed at the north end. The walls are made of cement blocks and contain no glass. The house is ninety feet long, eight feet eight inches wide and six and a half feet from floor to ridge. The height to the plates is four feet. I should like to heat this house with

Pull Out Proof

IT'S ALL very well to do a lot of big direct talking about big direct fire surfaces. But proof-talk is the only talk that really talks.

Here's a Burnham proof. If you were strong enough to grip each side of the fluted direct fire surface on a Burnham Boiler, say two feet across, and pull it out straight, you would have six straight feet of the most direct kind of direct surface.

That's one of the reasons why the Burnham coal bills are so reasonable.

Send for catalogue and other reasons why you should use Burnham Boilers.

hot water, and have a boiler rated at 450 feet of radiation. Would two 4-inch flow pipes under the west bench and one 4-inch return under the east bench heat the house to 50 degrees? The location of this house is southern New Jersey.
G. McK.

It will require about 300 square feet of radiation to heat the house described. The boiler, having a rating of 450 square feet of radiation, should be amply large, and two 4-inch flows and one 4-inch return would furnish the radiation needed. However, I should prefer to run a 2½-inch flow pipe upon than would be needed, but it could be controlled by placing a valve upon one return in each of the coils.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Trade has been exceptionally good the last week. This has been the week of the store openings, and a number of the florists have been working overtime. There has been a great deal of funeral work, the flower market being cleaned up daily. Stock has been hardly plentiful enough to go around. Quantities of short roses are coming into this market. Short Beauties are arriving in quantities and move well. Carnations are in fair supply, but are still short-stemmed. There have been a few mums coming in, but there is no great demand. There are still plenty of dahlias to be had. The aster crop is over.

Various Notes.

The October meeting of the State Florists' Association is to be held at Smith & Young's, on East Ohio street, Tuesday, October 7, at 8 p. m.

L. F. Benson has built another greenhouse at his residence on Park avenue. It will not be long before Mr. Benson will have all his ground covered there.

The last few days have brought ideal fall weather, in contrast to the week before, which was warm and wet. Frost has already got in its work and dahlias are about the only outdoor flowers now. Funeral work has been brisk during the last week. Roses are of good quality and are in good demand.

Various Notes.

James Mortimer has resigned his position with John Coombs and has joined the force of H. R. Comley, at Boston, Mass.

Page F. Potter, of the Bon Ton Flower Shop, has recovered from a severe attack of blood poisoning. This firm will add a Ford truck to the delivery outfit.

J. McManus, of the Spear & McManus Co., has returned from an auto trip to the White mountains, while D. A. Spear is now on a similar trip.

Last week's market was fair. There was a demand that took up everything of quality. The call from out of town is good. This week should prove a busy one, because of the Jewish holidays. The retailers were busy the first part of the week, placing orders for all they could get in the way of flowers for Wednesday and Thursday.

The rose supply is larger and the stock is of a good quality. All seasonable varieties are offered and are finding a fair market. The Killarneys and Taft deserve special mention. The supply of Beauties is somewhat short. Carnations are much more plentiful than they have been. The stems are lengthening slowly. The stock is in good demand and has been moving at moderate prices. Easter lilies are in ordinary supply and enjoy a fair call. Valley sells well. The first early mums have made their appearance, but are not yet a factor in the market. Orchids are offered. The aster receipts are more limited each day and the quality has deteriorated rapidly. Gladioli are small. The dahlia offerings are not so large as in other years.

SAGINAW, MICH.

The Market.

Trade has been good and the outdoor flowers are being missed, as almost everything is at an end except gladioli, which still are in fair supply. Asters and other flowers have been ruined by the heavy rains and cold weather. Mums are selling well for so early. Carnations are greatly improved in length of stem and size of flower and clean up every day. Roses have improved in quality, with a big demand for white.

Various Notes.

The Roethke Floral Co. has everything in good running order for the winter. The barn to take the place of the one lost by fire about four weeks ago is nearly finished.

Charles Frueh & Sons say mums are selling as fast as they open. Business is extremely satisfactory in their new downtown location.

Grohmann the Florist reports business as good as can be expected, with all short flowers worked up clean.

Zorn & Gaertner had an unusually heavy run on asters this season and say they could have sold more if they had produced them.

Desner & Fisher say business is fair and that everything looks good for a big trade this winter.

At the state fair at Detroit the Stevens Gladioli Co., of Saginaw, took first premiums on display of gladioli and on display of dahlias. Many wholesale and retail orders have been booked. The bulb harvest will be something over two millions.

J. B. Goetz Sons are cutting a large supply of roses, which find ready sale in and about Saginaw. Boston ferns are a specialty here and they have several houses of them in fine shape.

Harry Balsley, of Detroit, was a visitor last week.

The Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society holds its next monthly meeting October 6, at 4 p. m., at Zorn & Gaertner's. The subject of importance will be a paper on soils, by Wm. Robertson. A large attendance is expected. A lunch will be served. Gee.

Devon, Pa.—At the Devon flower show, September 19, the majority of the prizes were distributed among the following: Thomas Holland, gardener for Mrs. J. G. Cassatt; George Zinn, gardener for Mrs. W. C. Bullitt; Michael Norris, gardener for Powell Evans; David Aiken, gardener of Barclay Farm; A. Lindroth, gardener for Rudolph Ellis; W. Robertson, gardener for John Pepper, and George Weyman, gardener for Mrs. George McFadden. Special mention was given to Henry A. Dreer for a collection of phlox and to the Henry F. Michell Co. for a collection of seeds and bulbs.

Buying a Piano and a Greenhouse

ANOTHER TRUE STORY WITH A MORAL

LAST EVENING one of our fellow town's folks phoned me to come over and "see their new piano." Not hear it, but see it.

I went. A more gorgeous case I never saw. The grain of the wood stood out like a map.

The lid and music-rack was a patented slidable-downable-upable affair that all the members of the family, each in turn, showed me how it worked. It had four pedals. This was considered a truly great advantage; I being informed that most self-respecting pianos had only two. The keys had a particularly peculiar slant. Just why they slanted was not important.

Nothing had been said of its musical tone—so I ran my finger up and down the keys and found the tone to be just what you and I would have expected.

It made musical sounds—not tones. As a piece of cabinet work and sample of jimcrack skill, that piano was a wonder.

As a musical instrument it was a flat failure. On my way home, I couldn't help thinking how some growers bought their boilers and greenhouse just like those folks bought their piano.

They allow themselves to put too much importance on the jimcrack-important things and too little on the vital ones.

What do you care whether a boiler has a certain fandangle grate or not—what you want to know is: Will that boiler heat your house economically?

What do you care about this or that particular unimportant fitting that some concerns talk so loudly about using in their greenhouse construction?

What you want to know is: Will the construction itself give you the best growing house possible and last you longest possible with least possible repairs.

First be sure you are sure of securing the vitally important things. It's time enough then to consider the jimcracks.

Our construction is weak on jimcracks.

But it's strong on the strong points that go to make your investment an enduring, paying one.

Put it down in your notebook that pianos, boilers and greenhouses require great care in their buying.

Send for our Commercial Greenhouse Catalogue. "We go anywhere for business."

The Market.

Ideal summer weather prevailed here last week and brought about a plentiful supply of stock, which was met by a volume of business that spoke well for the early autumn trade. Frost September 22 occasioned some hustling on the part of florists who had planned on outdoor stock to supply an abundance of flowers for their decorative work last week, which was exceedingly heavy. However, the greenhouse flowers fulfilled their mission well, the chrysanthemums arriving in large numbers and of excellent quality. Monrovia was elegant and Golden Glow and October Frost held about equal places in rank. Milady, Killarney and Ward roses were used extensively in the wedding decorations and bouquets. Orchids are becoming more plentiful and Beauties are being used extensively. Carnations are perceptibly larger and finer.

Various Notes.

The Bradley Flower Shop has had a fine showing of Beauties and catleyas lately.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey anticipate a heavy crop of chrysanthemums this season. They are cutting a number of fine orchids from their plants.

The greenhouses of Frank Knecht & Co., on South Fairfield avenue, are making a good showing. Some excellent yellow chrysanthemums are being cut and their carnation stock is good.

The Flick Floral Co. has been busy for the last two weeks with a number of decorations and openings for large stores. Among them was the department store of Wolf & Dessauer, the largest store in northern Indiana. Several cases of wild smilax and quantities of oak foliage, in both the green and russet, were used, with autumn flowers in great quantities. R. R. F.

New Haven, Conn.—John H. Slocombe was a heavy prize-winner at the annual exhibition of the New Haven Horticultural Society, September 17. Others who took honors were George H. Walker, of North Dighton, Mass.; Richard Bell, of New Haven; George L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. I.; Walter Shaw, of New Haven, and Forbes & Keith, of New Bedford, Mass.

YOU MAY WANT TO SELL. BUILD SO YOU CAN SELL.

Suppose, Mr. Greenhouse Man, you want to sell your property after a few years—how about that? If it is built of Cypress, the recognized wood for greenhouse construction, you will not have to meet the objection of the proposed purchaser that the building will not last—that it is not standard-built. You will not need to go into an argument to try and convince him that the substitute wood is as good as the recognized standard wood—CYPRESS.

In other words, Cypress is so firmly established as the definitive greenhouse wood that a structure built of it is as standard as gold dollars. A Cypress greenhouse will sell—it is an asset. Everybody knows what Cypress stands for in greenhouse construction; if anybody knows what the substitute woods stand for, we would be glad to hear from him.

It seems to us worth while for you to accept the verdict of time, test and all worthy experience in greenhouse work and build of Cypress, the greenhouse wood. That is your only course for securing a real asset in the undertaking.

If you built with anything but Cypress and ever want to sell, you would need to hunt around and find some purchaser who was wholly ignorant of the universal standard practice in greenhouse construction—which is Cypress from ridge-pole to foundation, with "Pecky" posts, benches and standards. You wouldn't be able to sell to anybody who knows Cypress or who knows anybody else who knows. These suggestions are worth while, even though you don't expect to sell out. They simply mean making the most of your investment, for your own sake.

STIR UP THE ANIMALS

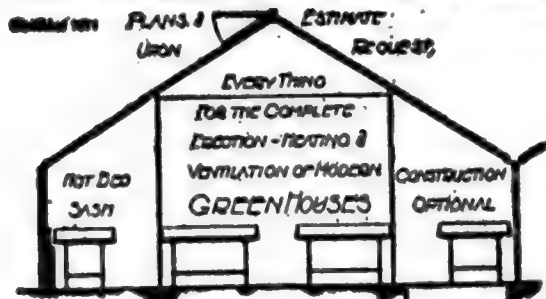

In the meantime, you will do well to send us your compliments regarding the Cypress Pocket Library, and draw on these 37 free volumes for what you can use. They're tremendously free—a postal or letter to our office will be followed by a noise that sounds like somebody sending the booklets you ask for—in a hurry. Try it pretty soon. Vol. 1 treats of the wood in general and contains a list of the 37 volumes. Vol. 3 is the GREENHOUSE BOOK. Vol. 36 is a book about home Carpentry; Vol. 37 is the big Silo Book.

You Need This Big New Book

FOR IT TELLS ALL ABOUT

EVERYTHING FOR THE GREENHOUSE

The largest and finest Greenhouse Catalogue ever sent out to the trade. A book that contains full and complete information about all the many kinds of material used in greenhouse work. It is an encyclopedia of greenhouse material and you will find it valuable for reference. In addition to the lists of material there are about 100 pages of useful tables and complete instructions for erecting greenhouses, installing ventilating apparatus, setting boilers, etc.

384 PAGES BOUND IN FULL CLOTH

The cover is a beautiful full vellum de luxe and is a pretty shade of green. The book is 6½ x 9 inches and just fits the book shelf. It is printed on plate paper with blue black ink, so it is easy to read. A carload of paper was used for this first edition and was made to order at the mills. Don't delay writing for your book. Do it now and you will have the best book of the kind ever printed. It is worth money to you.

Dollar a Dozen Roses

Good standard roses to sell at this price are a help to any store.

Of course there are customers that are willing and want to pay more, but in most stores a large percentage of people that come into a store are pleased if they can get good roses at a dollar a dozen. In fact there are a lot more people would go into flower stores, if they knew they could get good roses for a dollar a dozen. Too many people think it is not possible to get good roses at that price—people that don't want to spend more, so don't buy at all.

We feature for all this month good roses at $4.00 per 100, so they can be retailed at a dollar a dozen. Getting them direct from the grower, so perfectly fresh, and carefully packed in a wooden box, there is scarcely any loss, and nearly a hundred per cent profit at the above price. They are White and Pink Killarney, Richmond and Wards. Good strong, clean stock, not a speck of mildew or spot, and stems 15 to 20-inch.

MAGNIFICENT BEAUTIES

We are just commencing to cut a new crop of as fine Beauties as were ever grown. Perfect, large foliage clear down to the ground—not a bit of black spot or mildew, big deep-color buds. They are truly a fine sight and we invite florists to come here to see them. We have many other things of interest to show also.

Notice the low prices on these fine Beauties.

CHOICE KILLARNEYS AND ALL OTHER ROSES

It is hardly necessary for us to call your attention to the fact that we are always in a position to fill your order for Pink Killarneys, Beauties, White Killarneys, Mrs. Shawyers, Aaron Wards, Sunburst, Richmonds.

For quality we could say a good deal, but it would be more satisfactory and convincing if you were to send us your order. We will make good.

MUMS

In the yellows and whites they are fine, big flowers, and while the supply is not exactly large, we can take care of you.

CARNATIONS

The very best grades, and we have them in large quantities of the best varieties. Pink, red, white—long stems. Try us on these.

FERNS — GREENS — VALLEY — LILIES

We find our fern trade growing each day, because we keep them with the stems in two inches of water—they are always fresh and strong.

COLONIAL BOUQUETS

FOR THE AUTUMN BRIDES

The Retail Florist Who Builds a Big Business Must Supply Ideas for One Patron While Executing the Ideas of Another

ONE of the curiosities of business is the difference in customers. But if it is true that variety is the spice of life, we should be glad one patron is absolutely devoid of ideas as to what is wanted, while another is so full of some preconceived notion that nothing else will be considered. If they were all alike, flower selling would be a most uninteresting occupation. As a matter of fact, customers are like flowers—roses, for instance. At first glance they all look more or less alike, but when you come to study them each has its individuality, its little differences that tell how it should be handled.

The retail florist can not divide his customers into two classes: Those who know exactly what they want and those who will take up any suggestion that is offered. Indeed not; there are innumerable variations between the two extremes.

The florist who has in his own make-up the ability to grasp other people's ideas, and execute them, always finds it easy selling when the customer comes along with the demand for the carrying out of a definite decorative scheme, and the retailer who is himself fertile in ideas finds little trouble in fixing up the patron who is ready to accept any reasonable suggestion. But the abomination of us all is the person who does not know what is wanted and who lacks the ability to make a choice and settle on any one of the ideas suggested. Such a person is extremely difficult to please; you all know the type; the kind that can not decide, that goes over the ground time after time, and then comes back next day to declare a change of mind. With such a customer it is a mistake to offer too many suggestions; the more choices there are the longer it takes to get one of them accepted.

Making Things Match.

These are the days when things must match. When milady demands that her lap dog be in harmony with her motor-ing furs, and her hat of the same hue as the hosiery that shows through the slit in her skirt, is it to be supposed she will be any less exacting in the matter of her flowers?

And herein lies a hint for the florist: If particular people demand that their flowers fit into some specific scheme of dress or decoration, a sure way to be right with the people who do not know what they want is to inquire into the plans for other accessories and then match up with the flowers. The customer will accept the suggestion as being logical and will be pleased with the result, for it will be good. If the lady wants flowers for a luncheon but can not make up her mind what, "they are all so beautiful," find out if she is using the pink dishes and suggest pink roses; that will get her mind off a lot of other things and centered on something definite. Also, she will be better satisfied and her guests will think better of the flowers than if it turns out that she is using the blue dishes and you have sold her something that works a color-clash.

The other day a florist, a milliner and a dressmaker had a tough time of it on a wedding order—they all had to use cosmos and the trouble came in getting the same shades of pink in the embroidery of the dresses and in the artificial flowers on the hat that the florist would use in the bouquets. In that case it was up to the other fellows to match the flowers; usually the florist has to do the chasing.

The Fad for Things Colonial.

Nowadays the colonial wedding is in vogue. As like as not the happy couple are making their home in a colonial house, or a colonial apartment building, with colonial furniture and colonial silver. Of course, the bride and her maids, having their heads full of things colonial will want colonial gowns—and colonial flowers.

Some florists call them old-fashioned bouquets. But, oh, dear! How hopelessly old-fashioned and behind the times such florists are! Colonial bouquets, to be sure! No matter what William said, there's a lot in a name—at least, a lot of selling value. Florists would not hurt their business a bit by knowing the names, the right names, of the plants and flowers they try to sell, and by coining good, easy-sounding, up-to-date names for the things somebody else hasn't already named.

But to go back to the colonial bouquets, they are an extremely handy thing for the florist—easy to sell, easy to make, easy to attract attention with, sure to please the customer and sure to return a nice profit to the florist if he charges anything like the right price. Indeed, the florist can clean up better money on colonial bouquets than he can on the conventional shower bouquet of valley and still not charge so much. It is not necessary to use so much expensive stock. The flowers for a first-class colonial bouquet must each be perfect, but they do not need to be long-stemmed, and the quantity used is not large.

Making the Bouquets.

Colonial bouquets are easy to make; they do not require even a small part of the skill necessary to achieve a first-class shower bouquet of valley. One simply selects his center flower, removes the stem, wires it, and surrounds it with row after row of the other flowers to be used, a row of each kind. Ordinarily it is better to wire the flowers, as with their own stems the handhold of the finished bouquet will be so large it will be unwieldy for the lady who is to use it. When the flowers are all tied into the bunch the edging of green is put on in a similar manner and the bouquet is slipped into one of those lace holders that the ribbon men of late have so refined that in their fancy delicacy the flowers regain a part of what they have lost by having their individuality smothered in the mass. If the shower is used it is attached to the bouquet before the holder is put on, so that the streamers come out between the flowers and the holder. If the bouquet scarfs are to be used they are attached back of the holder after it has been put in place. The flowers must fit down closely onto the lace holder, but the bouquet should not be drawn down into it to the point of doing injury to the effect.

The Shape and Color.

To make a good colonial bouquet the shape of the top of the bouquet must be kept constantly in mind. It must not be too flat; neither must it run to a point. The accompanying illustrations will serve as a guide, for they show the work of one of the leading New York retailers.

One of the fine things about colonial bouquets is the ease with which the color of the costume can be matched. The bouquet shows circles of various colors—indeed, these arrangements have sometimes been called rainbow bouquets, which isn't a bad name, either—and since almost any kind of flowers can be used it is possible to have one kind of color match the dress. The holders and scarfs ordinarily are white, although some of the ribbon houses supply other colors, or can do so on special order. Indeed, it is the deftness of the textile workers that has made possible this bouquet and many other successful things the florist daily turns into money.

The Use of Ribbon.

The colonial bouquet pictures emphasize one of the tendencies of retail flower selling—that toward the lavish use of ribbon, in which term it is intended to include chiffon and other textile accessories. Here and there the ribbon salesman finds a retailer who is discouraging the use of fabrics with flowers, but even these few are finding a constantly increasing demand for fur-belows on their flowers, and are succumbing to the pressure. Other retailers, finding ribbon well received, are using it lavishly. Of course, there is an undesirable extreme to which the unrestrained are apt to go, but as a general rule there is no good reason why the florist should not use all the ribbon his customers care for—providing he charges for it as he should. Some say the florist is not in business to sell ribbon; that he should go into the dry goods business for that. It seems a specious argument. The florist is in business to sell everything that goes with flowers—if he can make a profit on it.

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR SHOW.

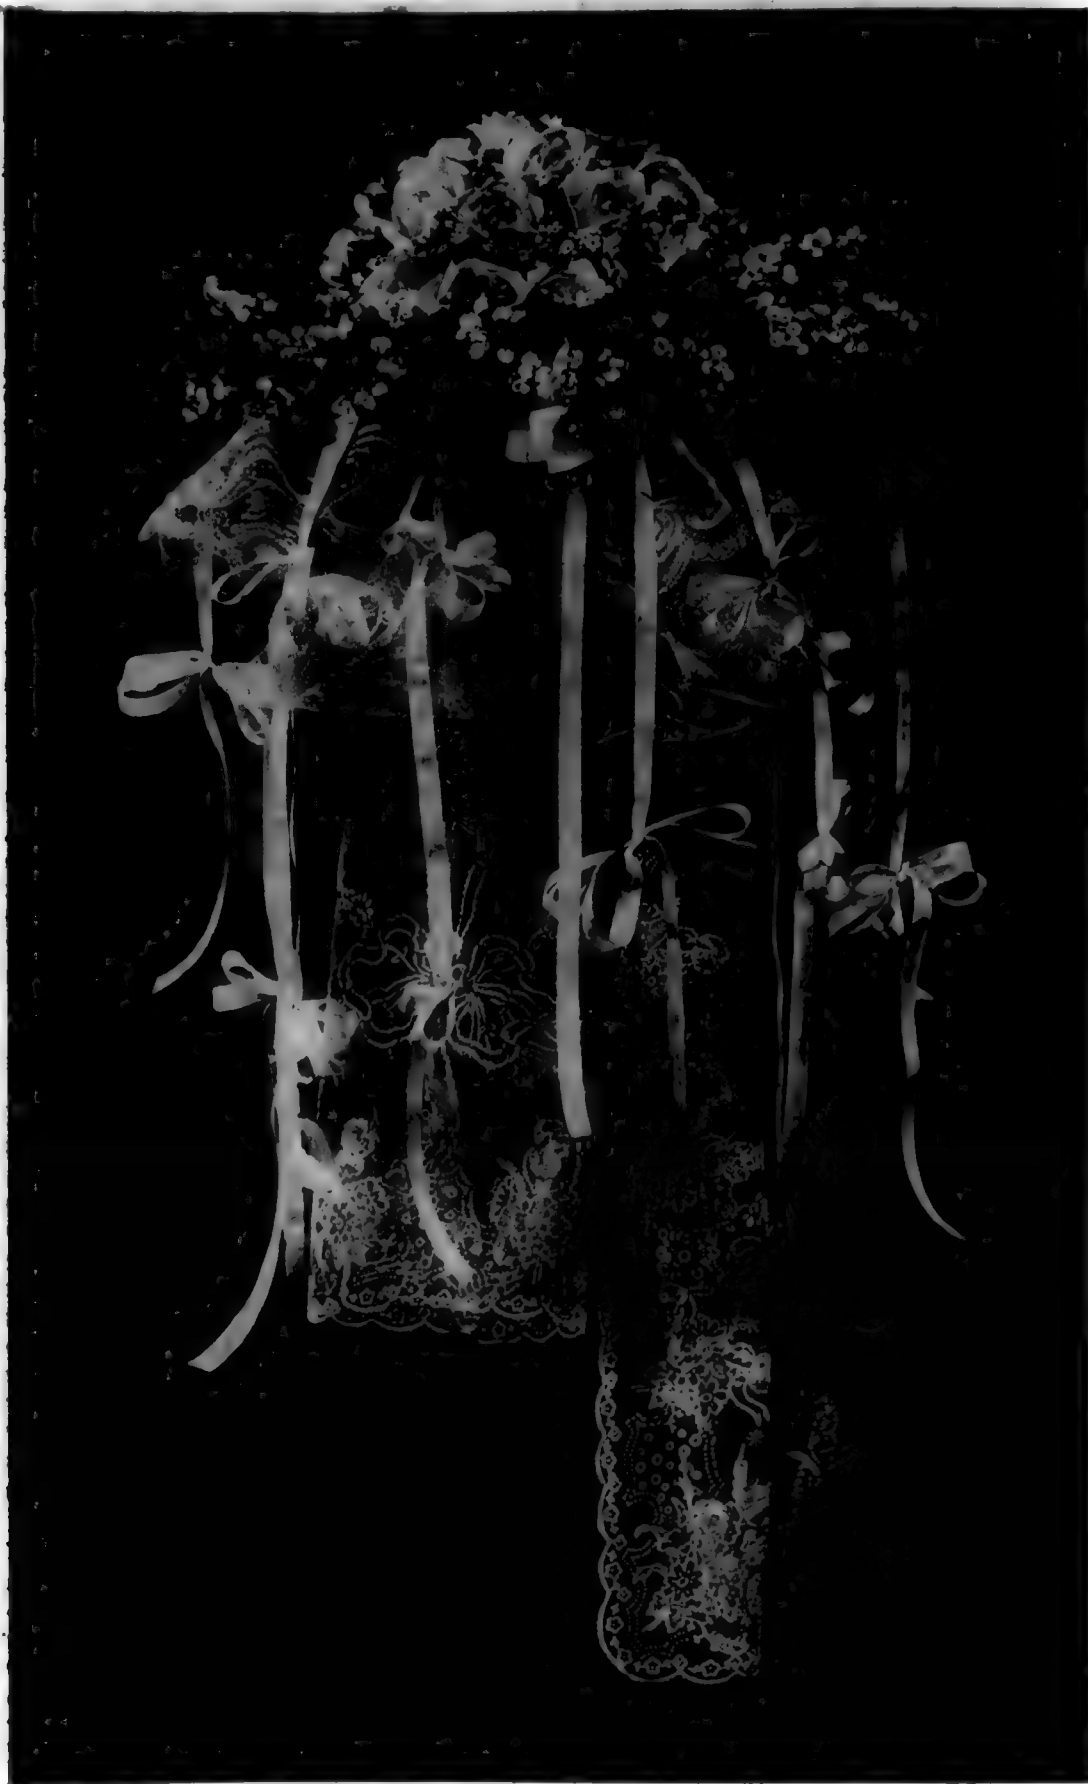

About the Usual Display.

The flower show at the Illinois State Fair opened October 6, the roses and carnations being staged the following day. Good quarters were provided in the Dome building and the show attracted much attention. It is about on the same scale as in recent years, but it is noticeable that there is a steady improvement in the quality of stock shown. Orchids come to the front stronger every year. This year there were eleven exhibitors, about half local and half out of town.

Roses.

The showing of cut blooms of roses was remarkable; it was such as formerly could not be seen outside a big city. Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, made a big show and took many firsts, but had competition in all entries. The awards were:

Fifty American Beauties—Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, first; A. C. Canfield, Springfield, Ill., second; A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill., third.
Twenty-five American Beauties—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; A. T. Hey Floral Co., Maywood, Ill., third.
Fifty Richmond—A. C. Canfield, first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second; A. C. Brown, third.
Fifty Mrs. Jardine—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Springfield, Ill., first.
Fifty Bride—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.
Fifty Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; A. C. Brown, third.
Fifty White Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; A. C. Brown, third.
Fifty new variety rose, last season's introduction—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; A. C. Brown, third.
Fifty Kaiserin—A. T. Hey, first; A. C. Brown, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Fifty My Maryland—A. T. Hey, first; A. C. Canfield, second; A. C. Brown, third.
 Best six varieties, twenty-five blooms each, American Beauties excepted—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Canfield, second; A. C. Brown, third.

For second day's rose awards see page 88.)

Carnations.

The carnations were excellent for so early in the autumn and especially after so unfavorable a season, but the quantity was not what it has been some other years. The awards were:

Fifty white—A. C. Canfield, first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second; W. H. Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., third.
 Fifty flesh pink—Chicago Carnation Co., Chicago, first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second; A. C. Brown, third.
 Fifty light pink—A. T. Hey, first.
 Fifty dark pink—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Chicago Carnation Co., second.
 Fifty rose pink—A. C. Brown, first.
 Fifty scarlet—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Chicago Carnation Co., second; W. H. Gullett & Sons, third.
 Fifty White Enchantress—Chicago Carnation Co., first; W. H. Gullett & Sons, second; A. C. Brown, third.

Fifty variegated—A. C. Brown, first.
 Best four vases, fifty blooms each, four distinct varieties—Chicago Carnation Co., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second; W. H. Gullett & Sons, third.
 Best 100 blooms, any color, any variety, seedlings admissible—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Chicago Carnation Co., second; A. C. Brown, third.

Retail Work.

Not many metropolitan shows bring out the competition in designs that is seen at Springfield; the out-of-town exhibitors have spurred the local cut flower workers to the point of staging a splendid display. The awards were:

Standing cross—A. T. Hey, first; W. H. Gullett & Sons, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, Pekin, Ill., third.
 Wreath on easel—A. C. Brown, first; W. H. Gullett & Sons, second; A. T. Hey, third; Geo. A. Kuhl, fourth.
 Set piece—W. H. Gullett & Sons, first; A. T. Hey, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.
 Dinner table arrangement—Geo. A. Kuhl, first; Fred Walviavan, second; A. T. Hey, third.
 Basket of chrysanthemums—W. H. Gullett & Sons, first; A. C. Brown, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third; A. T. Hey, fourth.

Basket of cut flowers—W. H. Gullett & Sons, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; A. T. Hey, third; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, Springfield, Ill., fourth.
 Bouquet of roses—A. T. Hey, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; W. H. Gullett & Sons, third; A. C. Brown, fourth.
 Bouquet of various flowers—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; W. H. Gullett & Sons, second; A. T. Hey, third; A. C. Brown, fourth.

 Corsage bouquet—Geo. A. Kuhl, first; A. T. Hey, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third; W. H. Gullett & Sons, fourth.

Miscellaneous Cut Flowers.

The showing of miscellaneous cut flowers was not large, but it was of notable quality. The awards:

Collection of single dahlias—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; Fred Janssen, Springfield, Ill., second.
 Collection of double dahlias—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; Fred Janssen, second.
 Collection hardy perennials—A. T. Hey, first.
 Collection of asters—A. C. Canfield, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; Fred Janssen, third.
 Six orchids in bloom—Janssen Seed & Floral Co. and Poehlmann Bros. Co., each bronze medal.
 Collection of chrysanthemums—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. T. Hey, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.
 One hundred valley, cut blooms—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. C. Brown, second.
 Fifty chrysanthemums—A. C. Brown, first; A. T. Hey, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.
 Display of cut orchids—A. T. Hey, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; Poehlmann Bros. Co., third.

Miscellaneous Plants.

The showing of pot plants was probably the best thus far seen at the Illinois fair. Special mention should be made of the ferns of W. H. Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill. The palms also were notably good. The awards were:

Collection of stove and greenhouse plants—A. C. Canfield, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., fourth.
 Twelve palms, single—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; A. C. Canfield, third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., fourth.
 Six palms, single, three varieties—A. C. Canfield, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., fourth.
 Two palms, made up—A. C. Brown, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., fourth.
 One palm, single—A. C. Canfield, first; A. C. Brown, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., fourth.
 One Cycas revoluta—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.
 Four araucarias—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; W. H. Gullett & Sons, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.
 Twelve crotons—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.
 Best ornamental or foliage plant—A. C. Canfield, first; A. C. Brown, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.
 Twelve begonias, flowering, in variety—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; A. C. Canfield, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.
 Ten cyclamens—W. H. Gullett & Sons, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second.
 Two orange trees, in fruit—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.
 Twelve ferns, distinct—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Geo. A. Kuhl, second.
 Six ferns, distinct—W. H. Gullett & Sons, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.

The attendance of out-of-town florists during the week is quite large, but the visitors do not all come any one day. It is suggested that Tuesday be florists' day each year and that an effort be made to get everybody there together.

VETERAN FLORIST RETIRES.

John White, one of the oldest florists of Pittsfield, Mass., has retired from active business, after forty years at his greenhouses on New West street. He has leased them to Thomas Moore, who has been in his employ for twenty-two years, and Mr. White will help him more or less. He also intends to travel.

Mr. White was born May 24, 1841, in Banbury, England. At the age of 14 he entered upon his duties as apprentice, to learn gardening in the gardens of the Rev. W. C. Holbach, in Warwickshire, England, remaining there four years, during which time he learned landscape gardening and indoor and outdoor horticulture. He then went to Warwick, where for three years he was superintendent of the gardens owned by Mr. Greenway, a noted banker. The next ten years he spent in the employ of Sir George Phillips, at Western House, Warwickshire, and on the famous estate of the Duke of Sutherland in North Staffordshire, where he was obliged to pay a premium for the privilege of filling a responsible position. At Frampton Hall, the residence of the Rev. John Turner, he had full charge of the gardens for two years. Leaving there, he went to the royal nurseries, where he remained twenty months before coming to the United States in 1872.

The following year he took charge of the Pleasure Park Association greenhouses in Pittsfield, and when these were sold, established greenhouses for Mr. Mielliz and conducted them for two years. At the expiration of that time he engaged in the florists' business with H. C. Hume on the Burbank property. In 1876 they bought of Theodore L. Pomeroy the present location of the greenhouses on New West street, containing one acre of land near the center of the city. Here they continued until 1886, when Mr. White acquired full control. At that time Mr. Kalser was the only other florist in the town, and he was later succeeded by Foster I. Drake. Mr. White did a considerable business throughout the county and had six teams on the road all of the time. At present his greenhouses cover 200,000 square feet and are equipped with modern devices. Mr. White belongs to Crescent lodge of Masons, Berkshire Royal Arch Chapter, the Knights of Honor and the Order of United Workmen.

BEDDING AT GIRARD COLLEGE.

Girard college occupies a prominent position in the world of education in the east, or, we might say, in the country, for, while Pennsylvania boys are given the preference over the boys from other states, still many boys from distant states owe their education to this college. Too much stress cannot be laid on the benefit that the Girard college boys derive from their training. The splendid system of education, the drills and discipline, the abundant opportunities for manly sports, all are invaluable. The college grounds cover nearly forty-six acres in the city of Philadelphia. They are inclosed by high walls, making the college as distinct from the city as though it were in a quiet suburb. There are many buildings, surrounded by lawns, drives, walks and playgrounds. Especial attention is paid to the trees and flower beds and the horticultural department includes practical lessons to some of the students.

The ornamental planting centers in the grounds lying between the Library building and the south entrance. The crotons are the feature of this planting. The college colors, steel and garnet, form the keynote of the color effect in the foliage beds. The two principal beds, one on either side of the walk from the gate to the library, are formed of crotons. They are circular and of great size. Two-year-old plants of Baron de Rothschild form the raised center of one. Around Rothschild, in quarters, so to speak, are four other varieties of crotons: Dayspring, Edwin Lonsdale, Faciata and Craigii. Outside these crotons are gracefully curved Abutilon Savitzii, every other oval containing a specimen Pandanus Veitchii in the center, while the alternate ones hold a graceful Phoenix Roebelenii. A broad band of Achyranthes Lindenii borders the entire bed. The opposite bed differs in the arrangement of the crotons. The garnet is shown in the achyranthes, the steel in the abutilon. The rich color of the croton increases the effect.

There are many other interesting beds. One of Acalypha tricolor with a specimen Pandanus Veitchii in the center was notably handsome. The beds bordering the walk to the library are planted with Geranium John Dryden, a single variety with flowers that rival the doubles in keeping qualities. The only other geranium that is largely planted is a seedling resembling Marquis de Castellane. The bed of Ficus elastica edged with Anthericum variegatum is unusual and pleasing. Shrubbery has been planted on the sides of this theater-like scene. In front of the shrubbery is a line of Canna Florence Vaughan, in front of the cannas a line of Salvia Bonfire, the edging of Coleus Golden Bedder. The effectiveness of the planting is enhanced by the fine qualities of the crotons. The plants are all highly colored, even, and with clean foliage to the base, a sure sign of croton health and vigor.

The gardener at Girard college, Charles W. Cox, has had his hands full for a long time. Poplar trees that were unsightly and none too clean were removed. Unnecessary walks have disappeared or are to go; seven acres of walks in forty-five acres of grounds are too many, Mr. Cox says. Then there are the playgrounds. There are three or four of them, all of large size. The authorities at the college have decided that grass will not do, so all the playgrounds now are of bare soil. Mr. Cox is busily engaged with a large force of men in grading one of these playgrounds. The grade is being raised with soil from the excavation for a new college building, just commenced. This building, by the way, is on the site of two greenhouses, so that the plant-producing space has been curtailed. But Mr. Cox is confident that he has enough glass to produce the necessary stock. His greenhouses contain some interesting chrysanthemum seedlings and much fine stock. Among the crotons is a promising seedling, Mrs. William P. Craig, left him by his genial predecessor.

PEONIES IN COPPER COUNTRY.

The following appeared in the Gazette, published at Houghton, Mich., September 29:

"One of the industries of the great Michigan copper country and one that has attracted very little attention, even from local people, is the growing of peonies for the cut flower market. There are very few people in Calumet or in the neighborhood of the peony beds, even, that realize what an industry this is, that realize that right here are being grown plants that are to supply hundreds of thousands of the most beautiful and expensive flowers grown in America. Nevertheless this is a fact and Calumet is gradually to become famous as the home of the perfect peony.

"Right now thousands upon thousands of peony plants are being set out in this community. A year ago E. E. Pieser, of Chicago, one of the leading and best known peony growers in the country, leased from the Tamarack Mining Co., at Calumet, several acres of land and planted the plot to peony plants. Mr. Pieser did not meet with great success with his first year's planting. The plants were not taken, shipped or planted under the proper conditions, it is said, and later were not given the proper care.

"This year, however, a larger and more expensive planting, a planting of perfect plants, is being made. Mr. Pieser already has 32,000 peony plants here and they are rapidly being put into the ground. Another carload of the plants is now on the way to Calumet and will be set out as soon as they are received.

Charles W. Cox, Gardener at Girard College.

"One plot of the big peony garden of Mr. Pieser contains four acres. This has been prepared and the planting almost completed. The other plot is much larger and the planters have an almost unlimited space. The soil, it is stated, is perfect for the growing of the plants and needs little special treatment.

"The plants are being grown for cut flowers, as mentioned above. As soon as the buds commence to show color they are cut and are packed, like sticks, in boxes and shipped to the market, to Milwaukee, Chicago, Washington, New York city, Philadelphia and other big cities, where they will 'ripen' or mature and will be sold at prices ranging from 10 cents to $1 each.

"There is big money in peonies for the man who manages them right, for the man who knows how to grow them and who can put the necessary spirit and love for flowers into his work."

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

MUMS DAMPING OFF.

We send a sample of Yellow Chadwick which all seem to go blind. Last year some of the white Chadwick did this, but this year they are all right. These are rather late planted, but have had good care and good soil, but no extra feed. All the other varieties under the same treatment and in the same house are all right. Can you suggest the cause?
J. B. O. S.

I am unable to state what is the trouble with these Yellow Chadwick. One fact is apparent, the bud has damped, but why it should do this, unless the buds are growing close to the glass and the sun has burned them, I can not say. The leaf does not indicate any exceptional feeding. If the subscriber has been closing up his house nights, resulting in the moisture settling in the buds, the bright sun on them in the morning would cook them. This is about the only explanation I can offer and the reader is perhaps able to tell from the way he has been handling them if this is the case.

If the buds immediately under the ventilator are affected, this would indicate that the moisture comes in from the night air and the morning sun does the damage. Are the Yellow Chadwick growing tall and right up to the glass? If so, this may account for their damping when the other varieties in the house are all right. If neither of these suppositions are correct, I am afraid I can not help.

DODDER PLANT, OR CUSCUTA.

Enclosed you will find a piece of a chrysanthemum stem which is covered with some kind of growth. It spreads rapidly and has no roots in the ground at all. Kindly tell me what causes it and what will stop it, as it has a tendency to kill the plants.
A. F. B.

The growth mentioned is nothing more or less than the dodder plant, or cuscuta, as the botanists call it. This is a parasitic growth that attaches itself to the plant. The life history of this parasite, if I recall it correctly, is that it starts from a seed which germinates in the ground, but as soon as the parasitic plant begins to grow, which it does almost immediately, it attaches itself to its host plant and the root connected with the ground dies off. The dodder establishes itself firmly on the plant and derives its sustenance therefrom.

Every year I receive letters from different sections of the country mentioning this evil and wanting to know what can be done regarding it. However, I have never known personally of the dodder being in any place in such quantity as to cause serious trouble. The only remedy I know of is to pull out the plants affected with the growth and burn them; then the seeds are destroyed also and no further trouble will result.
Chas. H. Totty.

ATTACKED BY TARNISH BUG.

Enclosed you will find a branch of a Nellie Pockett chrysanthemum. By close inspection you will see little swellings along the stem; you will also notice the abnormal growth of the stem itself. About one-third to one-half of the plants of this variety, as well as Enguehard, Glory of Pacific, Golden Glow, Ivory and Gold Mine, are affected with this growth, and we should like to know what causes it.

We strongly suspect a little fly, specimens of which you will find enclosed. Sometimes it is colored like the ones enclosed and sometimes it is green, with a V-shaped mark on its back. This fly appeared about the beginning of August and was flying around the tops of the plants, but only a few are left now. Our theory is that the fly in some way pierced the stems or laid its eggs there, in the course of time injuring the plants and causing this kind of growth.

We had for two years the best mums in this part of the state, and as the growing is now done along the same lines as formerly and the plants look healthy and vigorous, we cannot see any reason for blaming the culture, especially as some plants in another house are all right, only a little late in budding, but we did not notice the fly there. Please let us know your opinion and suggest a remedy, if there is any.

R. & S. F. S.

The plant submitted had been punctured by what is known as the tarnish plant bug. This insect punctures the stem and seems to poison the plant, so that it produces only blind wood instead of a healthy shoot. It is a bad pest in some sections; so bad, in fact, that some growers have temporarily discarded mums on that account. It is difficult to say what will be of any service in disposing of these bugs. A nightly spraying of one of the nicotides during the growing season is about the best thing, as this makes it unpleasant for the bugs, but it is expensive work.

Of the insects submitted, the two with the orange backs and black spots are what are known as ladybugs, which are among the best friends the chrysanthemum grower has, as their larvæ spend all their time consuming the black and green fly. The other bug enclosed is the tarnish bug, which I have already mentioned, and which is the cause of all the trouble.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Azaleas.

The imported azaleas, which have just come to hand, are in exceptionally fine condition this season, being of a splendid color and remarkably well budded. They should be taken out of the cases as soon as possible after arrival, and, after the balls have been well soaked in tubs of water, the plants can be stood close together temporarily, in coldframes or cold greenhouses. The work of potting them should be rushed as much as possible. It is slow work, potting azaleas properly, and they cannot be overhauled like soft-wooded plants. The soil should be well shaken and packed down the sides of the pots, and, after the potting is done, there should be a good basin left for water. Stand the plants anywhere clear of frost. If it is desired to get some varieties, such as Firefly or Hexe, Mme. Petrick or Deutsche Perle, in good shape for Thanksgiving or Christmas, the plants should be put in heat now.

Miscellaneous Hard-Wooded Plants.

The lifting and potting of all hard-wooded subjects, such as acacias, ericas, camellias, boronias, etc., should be completed as soon as possible. These plants are not harmed by a light frost, but it is not advisable to expose them to a lower temperature than 30 degrees, as injury to the flower buds might result. All varieties of hard-wooded plants must be firmly potted. In regard to compost, while some varieties, notably ericas and boronias, prefer it of a peaty nature, all will do well in loam, especially when a good proportion of leaf-mold and plenty of sand are added to give it porosity.

Canterbury Bells.

There are no finer spring-flowering plants for the country florist than Canterbury bells. Campanula Medium is the botanical name of these most useful plants. Now is the proper time to lift and pot plants from the field. As a rule, 7-inch and 8-inch pots will suffice, but extra large plants will need 8-inch and 10-inch pots. The finest specimens I ever saw were in 14-inch pots and measured four to five feet across. Plants of this size are all right on private estates, but commercial growers will find the smaller sizes more profitable.

If the seed of Canterbury bells was sown not later than June 1, the plants are sure to be vigorous and will flower well. Each year, however, many growers put off sowing until too late. It is true that they get nice little plants, but few of them will flower. Give these plants a generous compost, stand them outdoors in an open, sunny spot and leave them there until sharp frost endangers the pots. Pink and white are the favorite colors. Doubles are not desirable. Single-flowered plants stand up the best; next to them, the calycanthema or cup and saucer varieties. Gentle forcing for an early crop can commence about the middle of December.

Freeseias.

The earliest batch of freeseias should have received some supports before this time. Some growers use pieces of birch brush among the growths; others use thin bamboo and run tiers of string around the plants. Green string only should be used. Whatever supports are used, they should be given early, for if left too long the growths will lie down and the spikes are then much more liable to come crooked.

Freesia flowers are always a welcome addition at Christmas, and, given a temperature of 55 degrees at night and a light, sunny shelf from this time on, a fair proportion of the early planted ones should be on time. Good spikes of Purity, which is far the best variety, will make $6 to $8 per hundred at wholesale in Christmas week without any trouble. Only half these prices are obtainable later in the season, unless the stock is fancy. A last planting can now be made; this will furnish flowers from the end of February onward.

Bougainvilleas.

Bougainvilleas lifted from the open ground, or carried over summer in pots plunged outdoors, should not be given a warm house for some considerable time yet. A few may be started in heat and will give a fairly good crop of flowers for Christmas. The color of this plant, however, is not of the shade that buyers are especially looking for at the holidays, and it pays much better to time the plants for Easter, in which case keep the plants with azaleas and other hard-wooded subjects until New Year's. Never mind if the temperature gets down near the freezing point; it will not hurt the bougainvilleas. Any florist who has not yet grown bougainvilleas would do well to give a few a trial. They are profuse bloomers and have wonderful lasting properties.

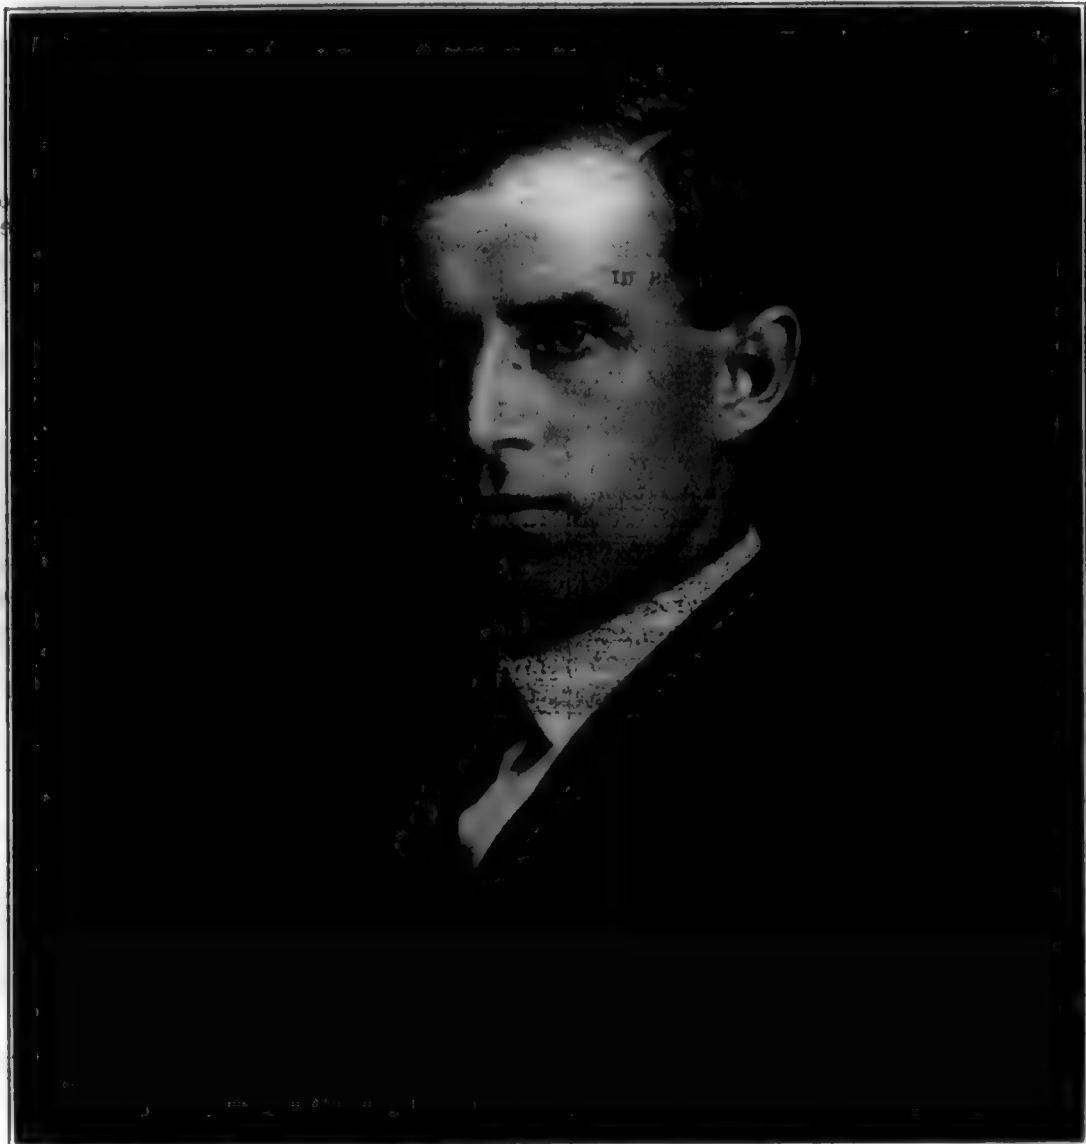

Cinerarias and Calceolarias.

The growth of cinerarias and calceolarias is now rapid. The calceolarias hang fire decidedly during the hot months, but are forging ahead satisfactorily now. The best place for either of these two varieties of plants for some time to come is in coldframes. Keep them potted along before the roots become cramped and make the soil a little richer at each successive shift. It is too late now to sow seeds of either of these greenhouse annuals. Any who have put off sowing until this late date would better buy young plants from some of The Review's advertisers. It is not yet too late to insert cuttings of Calceolaria rugosa, or of that splendid variety, C. Stewarti. These will root readily in any cool propagating house and will make nice spring-flowering plants.

Schizanthus.

Sow a further batch of Schizanthus Wisetonensis, or one of its many so-called improvements, now. These will make useful plants in spring. At Easter, when really nice plants are in demand, schizanthus should make a welcome addition. The earliest batch should now be in 5-inch pots, and will require a shift later into 7-inch before

"WHO'S WHO—AND WHY"

GEORGE BURTON.

GEOGE BURTON, who was elected vice-president of the Philadelphia Florists' Club October 7, is one of the successful young men of the trade. A grower of marked ability, he has specialized on the most difficult rose, securing crops just when needed, the quality and quantity of which have surprised the eastern market. He is a man of progressive ideas; the latest instance is his assumption of his father's position and responsibilities, an act impossible to any one who lacked confidence. A motor truck has just commenced taking the cut of Mr. Burton's two places from Chestnut Hill to Philadelphia, ten miles away.

they flower. They are gross feeders and should have a tolerably rich soil; they should also have liquid manure regularly when once they are established in their flowering pots. Grow schizanthus cool all the time for best results. It is sometimes advised to give them 50 degrees at night. This is much too warm; 40 to 45 degrees is much better.

CANTERBURY BELLS.

Kindly inform me how to handle Canterbury bells. I have some in 4-inch pots, plunged in the ground. They are from last spring's sowing. Should they be kept in the greenhouse or outdoors over winter?

F. H.

Canterbury bells, if sown last spring, should now be fit for 8-inch or 9-inch pots. You made a mistake in carrying your plants over summer in pots. Had they been planted out in good soil, they would be fully quadruple their present size. Of course, 4-inch pots are much too small to flower them in, and you should now shift them into 6-inch pots. Stand them on a bed of coal ashes in a coldframe. Leave them exposed to the weather for some weeks yet. A few degrees of frost will do them no harm, but cover with sashes when cold becomes keener. They can be buried in perfectly dry leaves and kept over winter in frames if desired. They can be started in gentle heat for spring flowering any time after the middle of December. For Easter, start early in January.

C. W.

PROBABLY THE SAME PRIMULA.

What is the difference between gigantea and grandiflora primroses?

D. W. D.

There is probably no difference at all. Both are supposed to indicate the large-flowered types. Some seedsmen prefer one adjective, some the other. The buyer must not be too much carried away by the terms grandiflora, gigantea, superba, mammoth, gold medal strain, extra selected, etc., when applied to flower seeds, as frequently those with the most awe-inspiring names and laudatory adjectives prove disappointing.

This fly appeared about the beginning of August and was flying around the tops of the plants, but only a few are left now. Our theory is that the fly in some way pierced the stems or laid its eggs there, in the course of time injuring the plants and causing this kind of growth.

We had for two years the best mums in this part of the state, and as the growing is now done along the same lines as formerly and the plants look healthy and vigorous, we cannot see any reason for blaming the culture, especially as some plants in another house are all right, only a little late in budding, but we did not notice the fly there. Please let us know your opinion and suggest a remedy, if there is any.

R. & S. F. S.

The plant submitted had been punctured by what is known as the tarnish plant bug. This insect punctures the stem and seems to poison the plant, so that it produces only blind wood instead of a healthy shoot. It is a bad pest in some sections; so bad, in fact, that some growers have temporarily discarded mums on that account. It is difficult to say what will be of any service in disposing of these bugs. A nightly spraying of one of the nicotineides during the growing season is about the best thing, as this makes it unpleasant for the bugs, but it is expensive work.

Of the insects submitted, the two with the orange backs and black spots are what are known as ladybugs, which are among the best friends the chrysanthemum grower has, as their larvae spend all their time consuming the black and green fly. The other bug enclosed is the tarnish bug, which I have already mentioned, and which is the cause of all the trouble.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Azaleas.

The imported azaleas, which have just come to hand, are in exceptionally fine condition this season, being of a splendid color and remarkably well budded. They should be taken out of the cases as soon as possible after arrival, and, after the balls have been well soaked in tubs of water, the plants can be stood close together temporarily, in coldframes or cold greenhouses. The work of potting them should be rushed as much as possible. It is slow work, potting azaleas properly, and they cannot be overhauled like soft-wooded plants. The soil should be well shaken and packed down the sides of the pots, and, after the potting is done, there should be a good basin left for water. Stand the plants anywhere clear of frost. If it is desired to get some varieties, such as Firefly or Hexe, Mme. Petrick or Deutsche Perle, in good shape for Thanksgiving or Christmas, the plants should be put in heat now.

Miscellaneous Hard-Wooded Plants.

The lifting and potting of all hard-wooded subjects, such as acacias, ericas, camellias, boronias, etc., should be completed as soon as possible. These plants are not harmed by a light frost, but it is not advisable to expose them to a lower temperature than 30 degrees, as injury to the flower buds might result. All varieties of hard-wooded plants must be firmly potted. In regard to compost, while some varieties, notably ericas and boronias, prefer it of a peaty nature, all will do well in loam, especially when a good proportion of leaf-mold and plenty of sand are added to give it porosity.

Canterbury Bells.

There are no finer spring-flowering plants for the country florist than Canterbury bells. Campanula Medium is the botanical name of these most useful plants. Now is the proper time to lift and pot plants from the field. As a rule, 7-inch and 8-inch pots will suffice, but extra large plants will need 8-inch and 10-inch pots. The finest specimens I ever saw were in 14-inch pots and measured four to five feet across. Plants of this size are all right on private estates, but commercial growers will find the smaller sizes more profitable.

If the seed of Canterbury bells was sown not later than June 1, the plants are sure to be vigorous and will flower well. Each year, however, many growers put off sowing until too late. It is true that they get nice little plants, but few of them will flower. Give these plants a generous compost, stand them outdoors in an open, sunny spot and leave them there until sharp frost endangers the pots. Pink and white are the favorite colors. Doubles are not desirable. Single flowered plants stand up the best; next to them, the calycanthema or cup and saucer varieties. Gentle forcing for an early crop can commence about the middle of December.

Freeseias.

The earliest batch of freeseias should have received some supports before this time. Some growers use pieces of birch brush among the growths; others use thin bamboo and run tiers of string around the plants. Green string only should be used. Whatever supports are used, they should be given early, for if left too long the growths will lie down and the spikes are then much more liable to come crooked.

Freesia flowers are always a welcome addition at Christmas, and, given a temperature of 55 degrees at night and a light, sunny shelf from this time on, a fair proportion of the early planted ones should be on time. Good spikes of Purity, which is far the best variety, will make $6 to $8 per hundred at wholesale in Christmas week without any trouble. Only half these prices are obtainable later in the season, unless the stock is fancy. A last planting can now be made; this will furnish flowers from the end of February onward.

Bougainvilleas.

Bougainvilleas lifted from the open ground, or carried over summer in pots plunged outdoors, should not be given a warm house for some considerable time yet. A few may be started in heat and will give a fairly good crop of flowers for Christmas. The color of this plant, however, is not of the shade that buyers are especially looking for at the holidays, and it pays much better to time the plants for Easter, in which case keep the plants with azaleas and other hard-wooded subjects until New Year's. Never mind if the temperature gets down near the freezing point; it will not hurt the bougainvilleas. Any florist who has not yet grown bougainvilleas would do well to give a few a trial. They are profuse bloomers and have wonderful lasting properties.

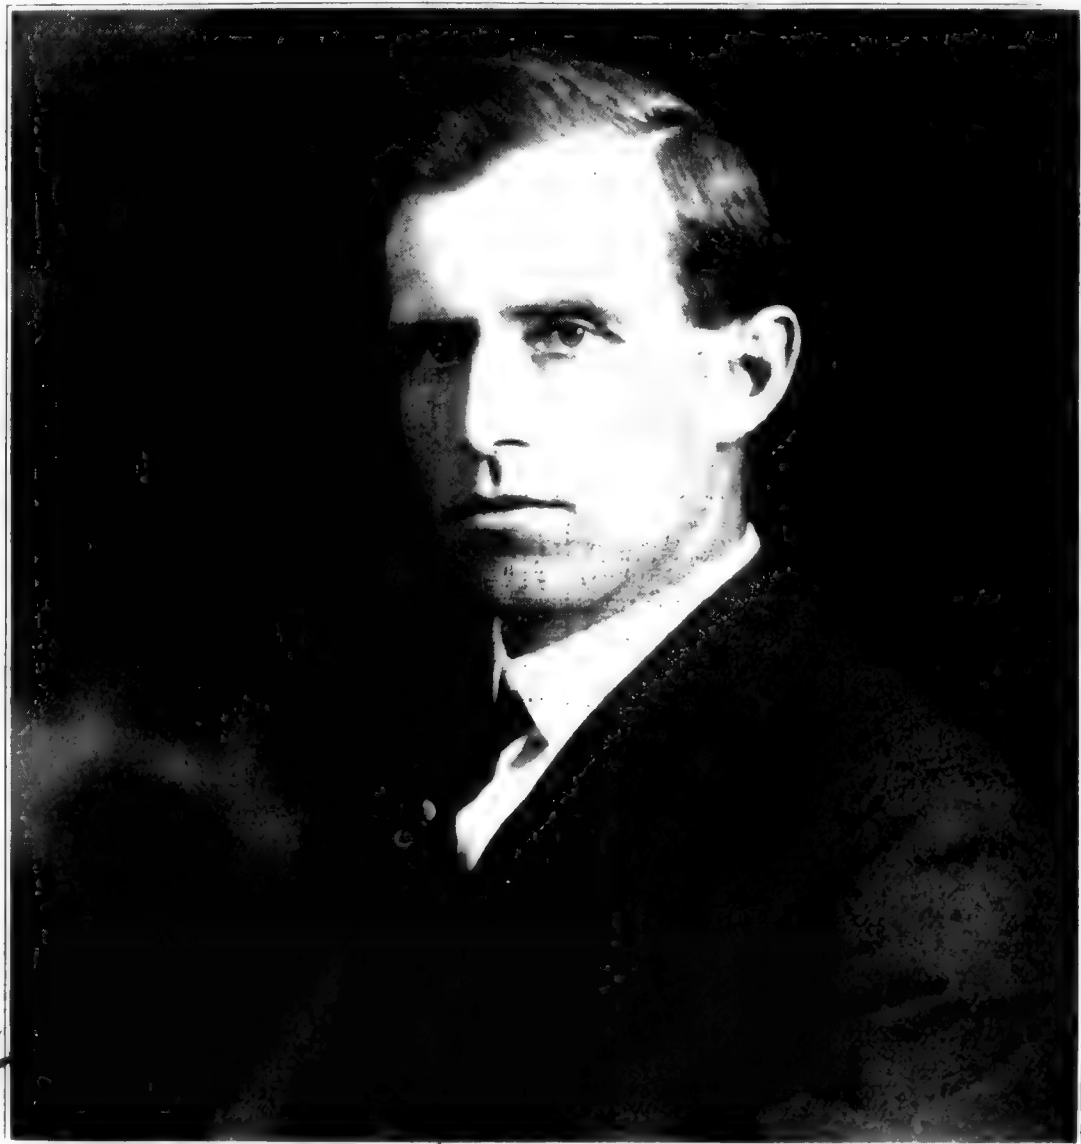

Cinerarias and Calceolarias.

The growth of cinerarias and calceolarias is now rapid. The calceolarias hang fire decidedly during the hot months, but are forging ahead satisfactorily now. The best place for either of these two varieties of plants for some time to come is in coldframes. Keep them potted along before the roots become cramped and make the soil a little richer at each successive shift. It is too late now to sow seeds of either of these greenhouse annuals. Any who have put off sowing until this late date would better buy young plants from some of The Review's advertisers. It is not yet too late to insert cuttings of Calceolaria rugosa, or of that splendid variety, C. Stewarti. These will root readily in any cool propagating house and will make nice spring-flowering plants.

Schizanthus.

Sow a further batch of Schizanthus Wisetonensis, or one of its many so-called improvements, now. These will make useful plants in spring. At Easter, when really nice plants are in demand, schizanthus should make a welcome addition. The earliest batch should now be in 5 inch pots, and will require a shift later into 7 inch before

"WHO'S WHO—AND WHY"

GEORGE BURTON.

G EORGE BURTON, who was elected vice president of the Philadelphia Florists' Club October 7, is one of the successful young men of the trade. A grower of marked ability, he has specialized on the most difficult rose, securing crops just when needed, the quality and quantity of which have surprised the eastern market. He is a man of progressive ideas; the latest instance is his assumption of his father's position and responsibilities, an act impossible to any one who lacked confidence. A motor truck has just commenced taking the cut of Mr. Burton's two places from Chestnut Hill to Philadelphia, ten miles away.

they flower. They are gross feeders and should have a tolerably rich soil; they should also have liquid manure regularly when once they are established in their flowering pots. Grow schizanthus cool all the time for best results. It is sometimes advised to give them 50 degrees at night. This is much too warm; 40 to 45 degrees is much better.

CANTERBURY BELLS.

Kindly inform me how to handle Canterbury bells. I have some in 4-inch pots, plunged in the ground. They are from last spring's sowing. Should they be kept in the greenhouse or outdoors over winter? F. H.

Canterbury bells, if sown last spring, should now be fit for 8-inch or 9-inch pots. You made a mistake in carrying your plants over summer in pots. Had they been planted out in good soil, they would be fully quadruple their present size. Of course, 4-inch pots are much too small to flower them in, and you should now shift them into 6-inch pots. Stand them on a bed of coal ashes in a coldframe. Leave them exposed to the weather for some weeks yet. A few degrees of frost will do them no harm, but cover with sashes when cold becomes keener. They can be buried in perfectly dry leaves and kept over winter in frames if desired. They can be started in gentle heat for spring flowering any time after the middle of December. For Easter, start early in January. C. W.

PROBABLY THE SAME PRIMULA.

What is the difference between gigantea and grandiflora primroses? D. W. D.

There is probably no difference at all. Both are supposed to indicate the large-flowered types. Some seedsmen prefer one adjective, some the other. The buyer must not be too much carried away by the terms grandiflora, gigantea, superba, mammoth, gold medal strain, extra selected, etc., when applied to flower seeds, as frequently those with the most awe-inspiring names and laudatory adjectives prove disappointing. C. W.

MONTANA FLORISTS ELECT.

At the fourth annual meeting of the Florists' and Nurserymen's Association of Montana, held in Helena last week, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, M. Kranz, of Great Falls; vice-president, J. P. Ring, of Helena, and secretary and treasurer, E. A. Calmettes, of Helena.

There was a large attendance from all parts of the state. The matter of getting a better hall in which to exhibit at the state fair was considered and it was decided to take up the question with the fair management and also to try to persuade the management to increase the premium list, so as to create more interest in the displays. If these steps are taken the florists will exhibit at the fair next year. After the meeting the members were entertained at luncheon by Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Mills, of the State Nursery Co., who also provided automobiles to take them to the fair.

BIG FALL SHOW AT CLEVELAND.

The date of the autumn flower show at Cleveland has been set for November 13 to 15, a week later than the show at Chicago under the auspices of the Chrysanthemum Society of America and the Horticultural Society of Chicago. The Wigmore Coliseum, which is shown in the accompanying illustration, is the building in which the show is to be held, and as it has an immense floor space, 64,000 square feet, there will be plenty of room for a big show. The Cleveland florists are planning a big show, too, one fit to occupy so large a building. The inside of the building is well adapted to the purpose, being well arranged so as to admit of the displays being made in the most effective fashion.

The Wigmore Coliseum is not yet completed, although the work is so nearly finished that the building will be ready in plenty of time for the show. H. P. Knoble says: "It was built for a large garage to be used for car storage purposes by people shopping in the downtown districts, and to be used by business men for the storage of their cars during the day time. The floor space of 64,000 square feet is broken up by 100 round columns, the building being of concrete construction. The part in which we are going to hold the show is just in the course of construction, having been added about a year later than the rest of the building. This building when finished will make as fine an exhibition hall as can be desired. It is so large that we feel it will be a matter of considerable interest to the florists all over the country."

The Cleveland florists will have the advantage in their exhibition of new and fresh surroundings for the displays, thus further adding to the excellence of their show. "Exceptionally fine" is the phrase they use to describe the coming show.

HEAVY PLANT SHIPMENTS.

The Antwerp boat that reached New York September 29 brought a heavy shipment of plants, indicating that the import season in this line is in full swing. The consignments were as follows:

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The revival of the flower business showed itself plainly last week, when the retailers crowded around each shipment at the wholesale market, eager to buy anything that looked good. These conditions should prevail from now on, if the weather continues cool so that the florists can make window displays of cut flowers. This week should be a busy one, as many social functions will take place. The wholesalers were not so crowded with stock last week and everything was cleaned up daily except roses, which are fine and are coming in large quantities from both local and outside consignors. The prices of these have not advanced much. Killarneys are in the majority, though there is a fine supply of long Beauties.

Carnations were scarce all the week, and any good blooms with fair stems brought as high as 4 cents. Shorts brought 2 cents and were cleaned up daily at these prices. Local growers say that carnations will be scarce for some time, or at least until mums begin to come in heavily. Violets are beginning to come with good color and fair stems; some of the wholesalers had several thousands of them and it seems likely that this market will be well supplied with fancy Californias this winter, with Kirkwood furnishing the bulk of them. Mums have been coming in, but hardly enough to fill orders with. Another week or ten days will see plenty of the early varieties. Some fancy cut dahlias are coming in and sell well. The valley coming in now is really fancy and demands $4. Easter lilies clean up daily and are of high grade. Asters are over for this season. Smilax is not yet overplentiful. Asparagus in bunches and strings meets with a big demand; so do fancy ferns.

Various Notes.

O. H. Amling, secretary of the Albert F. Amling Co., Maywood, Ill., was a visitor last week in the wholesale district.

Henry Emunds and W. Guy, of Belleville, Ill., spent a day in the city last week. Mr. Emunds says that he has a large stock of roses of his new yellow canna, Queen Helen, a sport of King Humbert. His mum plants are in fine shape for a big crop this season.

Harry P. Schaad, for the last few years with Conrad Bergstermann, has resigned his position and will open a place of his own at the corner of Cherokee street and Iowa avenue October 15, in a new building, just completed.

Martin Moran, of the St. Louis Seed Co., says that the company is making preparations to move into its new building, on Washington avenue near Broadway, which will be one of the most complete retail seed establishments in the city.

The County Growers' Association held its regular monthly meeting October 1. President Vennemann took charge of the meeting and the attendance was large. Treasurer Pilcher reports the association well off financially.

Frank Buckshadt, who until recently was with Vandervoort's flower department, has resigned and taken a position with the Grand-Leader flower department. It is reported that two other large department stores will open flower departments this winter.

Edward Buechel, head of the Riessen Floral Co., has his hands full this week as chairman of the executive committee of the German centennial celebration, which takes place this week. A better man for this position, where hustling is required, could not be found.

The Sanders Nursery has completed the improvements at the Clara avenue retail store and has everything in fine shape for a busy season. Oliver K. and Frank Sanders have charge of this branch.

A. F. Waldmann has a fine lot of mum pot plants in his greenhouses at Pine Lawn, and will put them on sale at his retail store, 5897 Delmar boulevard. He reports that the cut flower trade has improved greatly in the last week.

The Kalisch Bros. Floral Co. says that trade showed a good increase last week. Their fine show of cut stock and decorative plants is a great attraction at this busy corner.

M. F. Widmer, of Highland, Ill., called last week, and his roses are in first-class shape. His cut is being consigned to C. A. Kuehn's. His range of 25,000 feet of glass will be enlarged next year.

Guy Reburn, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, left October 2 for other fields, taking with him a big bunch of orders received during his short stay here.

C. Young & Sons Co. furnished the decorations in the Coliseum for the great Veiled Prophet's ball, which took place October 7.

Albert Windler, president of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., has a hobby in the growing of dahlias for his own pleasure. He has about 100 varieties, which are now in full bloom at his home in the south end.

The Kelley Floral Co., at Eighteenth and Olive streets, has a branch of the Western Union Telegraph Co. in its store. Ed Kelley says the season's business has opened up well.

Miss May Richeson, until recently with Barnard & Murphy, has resigned and is now with the Bourdet Floral Co., in charge of the retail department. F. Westeman, who until recently was with the Bourdet Floral Co., has taken a position in D. Geddes' flower department, at Vandevoort's.

W. S. Wells, lately with the Missouri Botanic Garden, has bought the store of M. Ostertag, at 4065 Chouteau avenue, and will at once reopen the place as a first-class flower shop.

The Mullanphy Flower Co. had the formal opening of the new downtown store, at Seventh and Locust streets, October 1, and gave away roses and carnations. This attracted a large crowd, which was hard to handle, especially at the noon hour.

Adolph Jaenicke, who has charge of the Howard estate, reports that R. Thomson is just completing two greenhouses and that next spring a large conservatory will be built, for which Mr. Thomson also has the contract.

The Florists' Club's publicity committee of twenty-five will hold its first meeting as soon as Chairman R. J. Windler returns from Chicago.

J. J. B.

Fred Bressler, the "iron man" of the Municipal League, pitched the Grimm & Gorly ball team to a double victory over the Home Mutual Aids and thereby won the city championship title for the florists at Robison Field October 1. The Grimm & Gorlys won the first game, 10 to 6, and the second game, 11 to 3.

DAHLIAS AT RIVERVIEW.

The accompanying illustration shows a portion of the display of dahlias, etc., in the service building at the Riverview nurseries of Henry A. Dreer, Riverton, N. J., during the outdoor flower show in progress this week. The display of cut blooms enables visitors to make a closer inspection of the individual flowers than can be made in the fields, where the cultures of dahlias are composed of over 800 varieties, many of which have not as yet been introduced.

Besides the dahlias there are over fifteen acres of cannas, which now show a blaze of color that is almost dazzling. Hardy perennial phlox at Locust Farm are in great form and the large blocks, of various colors, make a sight long to be remembered. Hardy perennials at the Riverton nursery are also attracting much attention, as many of the late flowering varieties are now in bloom. Other attractions, such as the water lily ponds, rock garden, hardy shrubs, evergreens, grasses, etc., together with the extensive greenhouses containing decorative plants, etc., are all attracting much attention. Many automobiles laden with enthusiastic flower-lovers are constantly arriving, besides hundreds of visitors who come by train and trolley.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh has had nearly a week of rain and generally unpleasant weather, but business has been going along about as usual. Stock is not overplentiful. Chrysanthemums, especially, seem to have been holding back since the earliest ones came in. Lilies have been scarce and have been bringing good prices. Valley also was short in supply all last week, but seems more plentiful again. Roses are improving every day and becoming more abundant.

There is not much excitement among the wholesale houses and it does not take them long to take care of all the business that comes to hand. The retailers have their fall improvements made and their places are looking fine. They report trade as good, with still better things in sight. The growers have their fall work pretty well cleaned up, and, as they are beginning to cut something, have a more satisfied look.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Lamborn and Mr. and Mrs. Zang, of Alliance, O., who were in Pittsburgh on a motoring trip with some friends, spent part of a day at the greenhouses of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., at Bakerstown, and were delighted with what they saw there.

All of the superintendents of the leading Pittsburgh and Allegheny cemeteries attended the convention of cemetery superintendents at Buffalo a week or two ago and got their eyes opened to many improvements in cemetery affairs. They were royally entertained.

Mr. Adams, superintendent of Forest Hill cemetery, Boston, and Mr. Kern, assistant superintendent of Spring Grove cemetery, Cincinnati, were guests of our local cemetery managers a few days ago and went home satisfied that all is not smoke and darkness in the Iron City.

Harry Hellior, recently assistant gardener at D. T. Watson's place, at Leetsdale, has been appointed head gardener for Hartley T. Given, at Penn and Wilkins avenues.

W. A. McAlpine, of Boston, Mass., was a Pittsburgh visitor last week.

Miss McKinley, of Randolph & McClements, had her vacation so early this year that she has forgotten it and is taking another week, to get rested for the busy time that is coming.

Automobiles have so cut down distance that it is nothing unusual to look out and see Joseph N. Thomas, of Greensburg, Pa., at the door with a load of palms and ferns. Though thirty miles out from the city, he delivers the load in his car and saves the packing and express charges. Clarke.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The biggest October rain storm on record came last week to New York and vicinity, over five inches falling in one day. Subways were flooded, streets impassable and over $2,000,000 damage was reported. Business of all kinds was at a standstill. The florists' industry was one of the greatest sufferers. The end of the week, however, found conditions again normal, and Indian summer is again in all its glory. The storm and the Jewish New Year were the only incidents of interest. The cut flower market was dormant until the holiday. Retailers seemed to be well satisfied with the extra demand which then materialized.

There is nothing new to be said of roses. All the specialties are arriving in fair supply and gradual improvement in quality is now assured. The market seems to digest everything worth while. Among the retail houses a cheerful spirit is evident and every store is liberal in its window decoration. Beauties, Milady, Shawyer and Russell are the big four, and this quartette will make much music during the coming season.

Every window now is radiant with chrysanthemums. It is remarkable how quickly the flood has begun. Stock is excellent and prices are satisfactory. Lilies and valley have not changed in values, last week's quotations still holding. Carnations have improved daily until now fine, long-stemmed stock is abundant. Prices range from $2.50 per hundred down.

Orchids of all varieties are abundant and the best seldom sell at over $25 per hundred. The low ebb gives no sign of turning. Asters and gladioli have practically retired. Dahlias were widely ruined by the storm. Cosmos is of excellent quality.

Various Notes.

The October meeting of the New York Florists' Club will take place October 13. Chairman Miesem expects to stage a fine exhibit of mums. Ladies' night will be celebrated in November.

M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., will lecture before the Boston Florists' Club on the evening of October 14, on "Who Is the Real Gardener?"

Chas. F. Raker, formerly of Vincennes, Ind., is now located at Cambridge, Mass., where he has purchased fifty acres of land and is building a range of modern greenhouses.

E. Allen Peirce, of Waltham, Mass., and Louis J. Reuter, of Westerly, R. I., were New York visitors October 4. Both these gentlemen were at Madison, N. J., last week, as the guests of Charles H. Totty.

On October 2 the office furniture and fixtures of the late firm of Wm. Hagemann & Co. were sold at auction, together with large quantities of bulbs. Some great bargains were secured by enterprising buyers. The firm had a large number of bulbs in cold storage in Chicago.

John Wilk, formerly with Vaughan's Seed Store, has opened a store at 155 West Thirty-third street, near the Pennsylvania Terminal Station, with a warehouse for his French and Dutch bulbs and seeds at Hoboken, N. J. The location is excellent and not far from the headquarters of the uptown seed house of Kennedy & Hunter.

Harry Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia, was a recent visitor, as breezily optimistic as ever, with, he says, a big season assured and novelties innumerable.

John M. Baker, of Morristown, N. J., the sweet pea specialist and winner of high premiums at the last flower show, was in the city October 4.

Weeber & Don had an interesting window last week, with their ripe strawberry, America, as the attractive feature. The firm reports a phenomenal demand for English mushroom spawn. Jas. W. Sterling, of Scotland, is a late addition to their force of salesmen.

Anthony Ruziska, foreman at Traendly & Schenck's greenhouses at Rowayton, Conn., was in the city October 4.

Mr. Redstone, of Hitchings & Co., reports a successful season and a roseate outlook.

M. Leyden, of Cold Springs, L. I., was a recent visitor.

Harry A. Bunyard is back from his vacation, laden with fish stories, and a severe cold. Fall business at Boddington's is already booming beyond the firm's expectations.

Hermann's Seed Store, on East Thirty-fourth street, has an interesting assortment of bulbs in bloom of the air plant, scheherazade, which Manager Wagenfohr calls Wonders of the Orient, in a neat pamphlet he is distributing.

The most attractive windows nowadays in lower New York are those of the seed houses. Their cut flower exhibits of specialties in mums, dahlias and gladioli are especially noteworthy. There is considerable competition among the firms, whose large windows make elaborateness possible.

Attendance at the auctions during the delightful Indian summer season is never large nor satisfactory. Some great bargains were picked up last week by wideawake retailers in decorative kentias.

October 31 is the date of the first of the many flower shows in New York city that will be staged the first week in November. This exhibit will continue five days under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York, at the Museum of Natural History.

J. Austin Shaw.

Wallace, Idaho—Emil Tomsche is building a greenhouse, in which he expects to grow vegetables for the local market.

GLASS-MAKERS' WAGES RAISED.

This was in a press dispatch from Cleveland, appearing in many daily newspapers October 4: "The National Association of Window Glass Manufacturers has granted 5,000 employees an increase of ten per cent for all workers. The new wage scale will continue in force for thirty-two weeks, the usual length of time."

Just think of it! An advance of ten per cent the very day the cut in the tariff took place—the reduction in protection that a few months ago they told us would send the window glass trade to the demnition bow wows! On the face of the first returns it might be thought that the cut of seven-eighths of a cent per pound in the duty on window glass was not so deep as it should have been.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Cooler weather and a number of small weddings during the last week have had marked effect upon business here, and the supply has been just short of the demand. In consequence, there was a slight stiffening in price on first qualities and novelties. Carnations have not yet attained a high standard of quality and roses are a trifle off. Early chrysanthemums find a moderate demand at 15 to 50 cents apiece retail, white and pink being leaders.

Various Notes.

Sweeney Bros., 446 Cranston street, are remodeling their office and greenhouses, making extensive alterations.

The Westminster Greenhouses, 1205 Westminster street, have been making numerous alterations and improvements about their range and offices.

T. J. Johnston & Co., have just purchased a handsome new automobile for delivery purposes.

Henry C. Neubrandt, who has been with W. S. Pino for several years, has left his employ to engage in other business.

Robert Shoch, representing the M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia, was a business visitor in this city last week.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., and Charles H. Hunt, were among the visitors to the big agricultural fair at Brockton, Mass., last week.

The Providence Horticultural Co. is busy on outdoor work, preparing trees and shrubs for the winter.

John Lindbloom, with the Hope Greenhouses, is confined to his house by a bad strain caused by overlifting.

William E. Chappell has had several decorations for social functions at the Masonic Temple during the last week or so.

James B. Canning left his large delivery car a few days ago while he was delivering several large palms for a wedding decoration. Some boys started the machine, causing a bad wreck. Several hundred dollars' damage was done to the car and palms.

Louis J. Reuter, of Westerly, was a business visitor in Boston last week.

Simon Blazer, for the last two years with T. O'Connor, has resigned and his place has been filled by John McCaffrey.

William Cohen, who has been with Joseph Koppelman for several years in his retail department, was presented with a handsome solid gold watch and chain a few days ago by Mr. Koppelman, in recognition of faithful service.

Eric Bonevier, of the Butcher Greenhouses, who has been confined at the Rhode Island hospital for several weeks by typhoid fever, is slowly convalescing and expects to be discharged in a short time.

Mr. Nickeljohn, of Scranton, Pa., was a caller upon the local trade last week.

George L. Stillman, of Westerly, continues to win numerous prizes at the dahlia exhibitions in the New England and middle states. In addition to the excellent showing recently made at the dahlia exhibition at New York, he was awarded the bronze medal at the Floricultural Society's show at East Orange, N. J., for the best display of cactus dahlias.

The will of the late Mrs. Sarah G. Hogg, widow of Walter S. Hogg, a former florist of Providence, was filed a few days ago and disclosed public bequests to the amount of nearly $100,000. Mrs. Hogg died in Boston Sunday, September 21, and was buried two days later from her late home, 34 Congdon street, Providence. W. H. M.

George R. Oliver.

George R. Oliver, of Bradford, Pa., died September 24 of heart disease, from which he had been suffering for the previous six months. He was born in England seventy-eight years ago and came to America with his parents when quite young. He was one of the pioneer florists of northwestern Pennsylvania and was loved and respected by a host of acquaintances, who mourn his death as a loss to the trade and to the community. He is survived by his wife, one son and three daughters. The business will be continued under the management of C. E. Gunton, who had been with Mr. Oliver for a number of years.

Christian Binning.

After an illness of only two weeks, typhoid unexpectedly caused the death of Christian Binning, Monday, October 6, at his home at Springfield, O. As superintendent for the Geo. H. Mellen Co., and as president of the Springfield Florists' Club, this leading spirit among florists in this locality will be sorely missed and his demise is the occasion for widespread regret. Death could not have selected as a mark a more faithful, capable, honest, sincere and affable man in the florists' profession of the state.

Christian Binning was born in Germany and came to America while yet in his teens, entering first the employ of the Storrs & Harrison Co., of Painesville, O., where he became thoroughly conversant with the nursery business. Later he removed to Springfield and engaged with the C. A. Reeser Co. until its plant and business were taken over by the Geo. H. Mellen Co., for which he became superintendent. He had full charge of the growing and shipping, as well as a large share in the preparation of copy for its catalogues, up to within a few weeks of his death. Mr. Binning had lately given much time and attention to the installation of a Simonds vacuum system of steam heating and was much elated over having accomplished its successful operation.

A wife and three sons, residing in the home on the greenhouse premises, are left to mourn the loss of a model husband and father. Christian Binning was a member and trustee of St. John's German Lutheran Church, as well as a Mason, Odd Fellow, K. of P. and Elk. Ge Dale.

E. Fryer.

E. Fryer, one of the oldest florists actively engaged in the business, died at his home at Johnstown, Pa., September 21. S. Austin is in charge of his business affairs, closing them up.

William Howard.

William Howard, nursery manager for Anthony Waterer, Woking, England, died September 13. Mr. Howard removed to Knaphill Nurseries fifteen years ago from James Veitch & Sons' nursery at Coombe Wood, where he was manager for nearly thirty years. In both nurseries his business brought him into contact with a large number of horticulturists from all over the world, who will remember him for his kindly nature and wide knowledge of trees and shrubs. The deceased, who had been in failing health for some months, leaves a widow, three sons and a daughter.

Mathew A. Butler.

Mathew A. Butler, the former proprietor of the business now operated by his step-son, John J. Kelley, at Valley Falls, R. I., died at the age of 70 at his home on Broad street, September 24, after a long illness, caused by a complication of troubles. Mr. Butler was born in Ireland, but came to this country when a young man. His ability as a florist and gardener gained for him important positions in this line on the estates of Governor Sprague, the late Thomas Jenckes and Royal C. Taft.

Christian Binning.

He established a florists' and gardeners' business at Valley Falls, in which he was quite successful. Upon his retirement his step-son, John J. Kelley, succeeded him. Mr. Butler is survived by his widow and three step-sons, John J., William B. and Charles A. Kelley, of Valley Falls.

BOWLING

Secretaries of bowling clubs may have their scores published in this column by mailing them to The Review to arrive not later than Tuesday each week.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Geo. E. Kessler, the landscape architect, is working out a plan for a formal garden in front of the greenhouses at Garfield park.

Newcomerstown, O.—J. W. Nicodemus has four greenhouses 25x125 and specializes on geraniums, but this is not his only crop, as he is a breeder of bloodhounds and is widely known in kennel club circles.

Salina, Kan.—Edward Tatro says this has been the hardest season the trade in the southwest ever has experienced. Hot weather is nothing unusual, but this year the heat was out of the ordinary, both in intensity and duration, with the result that nothing would grow and the florists lost a great deal of stock. Mr. Tatro says the help question is another great problem; the florists in the small towns have great difficulty in getting help, and greater difficulty in keeping it.

 The Review brings results.

WHY "sell" your stock to those who do not pay? Why not, instead, use it as ammunition for hunting good new business?

A SOUVENIR post card from F. H. Kramer, of Washington, D. C., mailed at Interlaken, indicates that Switzerland looks good to him. Adolphus Gude is in the party.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE reduction in the duty on boxwood and bay trees is two-fifths, or forty per cent. The chances are two to one that it will be absorbed between producer and retailer, so that retail prices will remain unchanged.

IF W. J. H., who asks about Harrisii bulbs, had signed his full name or even dated his letter so that his name could be picked out on the list of subscribers, the Editor would have taken pleasure in writing him that his bulbs should be potted as soon as received—or W. J. H. might have looked in back numbers and found the information. At any rate, the correspondent who writes anonymously would better save his stamp, for he cannot be answered.

GARDENERS' CONVENTION.

The annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners will be held this year in New York city during the fall flower show of the Horticultural Society of New York, which takes place October 30 to November 4. The business session of the association and the election of officers for the coming year will take place Monday, November 3, at the American Museum of Natural History, where the flower show is held. On the evening of November 3 the annual banquet of the association will be held at the Hotel Endicott, New York city.

Members intending to attend the banquet at the Hotel Endicott should notify any member of the following committee so that reservations may be made for them: Thomas W. Logan, Jenkintown, Pa.; James Stuart, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; William J. Kennedy, Chestnut Hill, Mass.; John F. Huss, Hartford, Conn.; John W. Everett, Glen Cove, N. Y.; John Canning, Ardsley, N. Y.; Peter Duff, Orange, N. J., and M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J. Everything points to a big convention and the committee cannot give assurance to those who decide on the last day to attend the banquet that they can be provided for. Tickets to the banquet are $2.50. Several men prominent in the horticultural world have already expressed their intention of being present at the banquet; among them are some able after-dinner speakers; and with the general program a gala night may be anticipated.

M. C. Ebel, Sec'y.

MAKING AN ALBUM.

To each reader The Review is useful in some different, individual way. In last week's issue the table of contents showed ninety-eight separate articles indexed, many of them treating more than one subject. Yes, it does look like 2 cents' worth to anyone who has any use at all for a trade paper.

Perhaps here is a suggestion for increasing its usefulness:

I think The Review is getting better all the time. I am making a book from the clippings I cut from it, several each issue.—Fred W. Arnold, Cambridge, O., September 26, 1913.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

With a little less stock and a slightly improved demand the market at the close of last week was running about even, with no fancy prices being asked, except for choice mums. Of these there have not been enough to satisfy the demand, owing to the backwardness of the crops. Many flowers are seen that should have had another week on the plants, but at the opening of this week there was no trouble in cleaning out on mums, or anything else, for that matter, with the possible exception of roses, a few being left in the iceboxes at the closing hour, but not enough to cut any great figure.

The supply of roses has been large and steady. The market is well provided in Killarneys, White Killarneys, Richmonds and Beauties, of which there are enough being cut to take care of the demand without causing any drop in prices. Long Beauties are less in demand than the shorter ones. There is a steady appeal from both local and out-of-town buyers for the short and medium lengths up to thirty-six inches and it is hardly possible to take care of all the calls. On the other hand, the longer Beauties, while not exactly hard to dispose of, do not enjoy the popularity of the medium lengths or move so fast.

Killarneys are good property and, while there are plenty, they sell fast and bring good returns. White Killarney is not in such good supply and, with an excellent demand, orders are not always easy to fill. Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Sawyer and Milady are being cut

Let us tell you about our supply of

THREE ROSES YOU NEED

KILLARNEY — BULGARIE — SUNBURST

YOU sell more Killarneys than any other two roses put together—and we have an exceedingly large supply of fine stock—but you would make a hit if you showed our Bulgarie (in the East they call it Mrs. Taft) and our Sunburst. Bulgarie (Taft) is a splendid seller everywhere, and our supply never was so large or so fine as now. Sunburst is "the yellow rose of quality." You know it is so long since you could furnish a really good yellow rose your trade has almost stopped asking for them—think how they will jump at them when they see them in your window! We have big crops on. Supply will be steady. Start using them now.

BEAUTIES

The Beauties we offer are not the crop of ONE grower, but consist of the cuts of SEVERAL up-to-date establishments—growers who are generally conceded as being without any superiors. By arranging with these growers to bring their crops along in succession we are able to maintain a CONSTANT supply of all lengths. Plenty of extra long. And now one of our largest producers is cutting his first crop, almost exclusively 24 to 36-inch stems, the length that is in greatest demand and in lightest supply at this season. You can get all you want of us. No order too large, or too small.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

You can take any order for Mums. Large daily arrivals. Principally Golden Glow, yellow, and Smith's Advance, white, but the other early sorts are beginning to come in. Can fill large orders on short notice.

CARNATIONS

Our Carnations are of a quality that will please your customers. Nice, clean flowers, stems rapidly lengthening; most of them long enough now to please the most critical trade. All colors.

CATTLEYAS

We have the fine fall crop of Labiata. These Orchids are second to none, and the supply will be steady for some weeks, by which time other varieties will be ready. You can count on us for Orchids.

VALLEY

You can depend upon us at all times for valley. If you run short, a wire to Amling will bring the valley you need. But a good way would be to place a standing order for regular shipments.

A FINE LOT OF ONCIDIUM SPRAYS.

EASTER LILIES

with longer stems than heretofore and some excellent stock is to be had in moderate quantity. The yellow roses are extremely popular and there are splendid crops of Sunburst. It is in better supply than any of the other so-called novelty roses and the improvement in the quality in the last few days has been a matter for general comment.

It was not possible to get all the carnations that were needed October 6, many houses finding it necessary to cut practically all the afternoon orders, with the result that prices stiffened. Good stock has been moving rapidly for some time and it is a case of first come first served. Valley is experiencing its usual October run, there being a fine demand for weddings, etc. Lilies are not overplentiful and the price holds firm. Cosmos has come again and other miscellaneous stock is being cut in quantity, while violets from the New York growers are arriving in good-sized lots but do not appear to be of extra quality. Cattleyas are rather less plentiful than a week ago. Oncidiums continue abundant and fine. Snapdragon has appeared.

The greens market is quiet. Smilax continues scarce, but there is enough of everything else. Boxwood has arrived.

Various Notes.

The agreement under which the local wholesalers' credit association was formed was for one year and expires this month. While the arrangement has resulted in much good in certain directions, it is understood that some of those who were parties to the original agreement will not renew, with the probability that this will result in the dissolution of the association. A plan has been broached for a new association, or a reorganization of the old one, which eliminates the delinquent list feature but which will supply equally exact credit information.

Boukidis & Remains have leased a store in the new Fort Dearborn hotel building, at the southeast corner of La Salle and Van Buren streets, for ten years at a term rent of $80,000 and will occupy it as a salesroom for flowers, fruit, candy and soda water. This will give them two downtown stores, they recently having leased an L-shaped store in the building formerly occupied by the Hub at the southwest corner of State and Quincy streets, for which they pay an annual rent of $8,500.

A new flower store has been opened at 507 South Wabash avenue, just south of Congress street, by Nicholas Mosconesotes. He has been in the flower business for some time as a retailer and formerly had a store at the southwest corner of Randolph and Wabash, where the new Marshall Field building is going up.

A. T. Pyfer comments on the fact that many growers, particularly of carnations, do not ship Monday, because they do not pick anything Sunday, but send in two days' production Tuesday. It is a recognized fact that ordinarily this market is much stronger on Monday than it is on Tuesday. Shipping trade ordinarily is much heavier Monday than it is the day following.

J. H. McNeilly now does business at Sixty-third street and University avenue. He has not moved; the city map department simply has renamed his street.

T. E. Waters, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., is extremely busy these days, much of his time being required for the dyeing of baskets imported in the natural state.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., says he has been surprised at the strength of the market since he returned from his vacation. He had not expected to find business anywhere near so good.

this week in charge of the state fair exhibits of Poehlmann Bros. Co.

Sam Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., is in town again. He says he has had a big increase in business since October 1 and that advices from the house report the biggest run of mail orders on record.

Carl Thomas returned October 6 from his summer home at West Springfield, Pa., and is again at his post in the cut flower department of the A. L. Randall Co.

Olga A. Tonner says her books show her growers have cut much more heavily in the last two weeks than in the corresponding fortnight of last season. She credits the frost of September 22 with the marked revival in business.

F. F. Benthey, with Zech & Mann, says that Benthey & Co., of New Castle, have had splendid results thus far with the Mrs. Shawyer rose. He says the first crop cut brought in the cost of the young stock, and now a second crop is averaging 150 flowers per day from 1,000 plants that are bringing a price better than 10 cents per flower.

He says the retailers like the rose and that they will plant it much more heavily next season.

Frank Ayers, right-hand man for C. W. McKellar, has been laid up with the grip.

Frank Johnson announces that the A. L. Randall Co. has made an arrangement to disseminate the red seedling carnation with which E. H. Blameuser has been notably successful the last two seasons. It is classed as a commercial variety and Mr. Blameuser was so pleased with it that some time ago he gave it the name Joy, which sounds as though it ought to help sell the young stock. Mr. Blameuser has a house and a half planted with the variety this season.

N. J. Wietor says his firm is so well pleased with the Mrs. Russell rose that as soon as the propagating season arrives all the available wood will be used for working up stock for next year.

Edgar F. Winterson, Jr., and bride returned October 7 from their honeymoon and have started housekeeping at 3807 Polk street, where they will be at home to their friends after October 20.

John Michelsen says that the business year of the E. C. Amling Co. closed September 30 and that the books show an increase of sales of more than fifteen per cent over the preceding year.

O. Johnson, of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., says his concern has not yet cut a Richmond, having found that there is little demand for red roses until settled, cold weather comes.

The Chicago Florists' Club meets Thursday evening, October 9, at room 104 at La Salle hotel.

A few changes in the windows have been made by F. W. Martin, at his Forty-first street store, which will give him almost double the display he formerly had.

Fred Quasthoff, at Forty-sixth street and Cottage Grove avenue, says the demand for Boston ferns has been much better than usual, although in other lines he found it rather quiet last month. October started well; the Jewish holiday bringing a large number of good orders.

A contract has been given to the United Refrigerator & Ice Machine

Co. for the icebox and store fixtures for the new store of Lubliner & Trinz, who will open October 15 at 41 South Wabash avenue. Joseph Trinz confirms the report that he and his partners in the Twentieth Century Amusement Co. have sold the moving picture theater at 4708 Prairie avenue, which is considered one of the best 10-cent show houses in Chicago. The daily papers say the consideration was $85,000. Messrs. Lubliner and Trinz have interests in six other picture shows here and in Milwaukee and will probably build another new theater soon.

Business for the month of September was not so brisk this year as usual at the store of William Kidwell, on Forty-third street, but the last week of the month and the first few days of October were unusually busy on account of wedding orders that called for elaborate bouquets and decorations.

In the preface to the new catalogue of the John C. Moninger Co., just issued, P. L. McKee says it is the result of a dream; rather, we think, it is the result of burning the midnight oil, for the book contains 384 closely printed pages and a superficial examination indicates that its title, "Everything for the Greenhouse," is no misnomer. A departure from the usual trade catalogue is that it is bound in boards. Mr. McKee noted that he was reluctant to throw away anything that had real book covers and he expects by this device to keep the catalogue in the office of even those who do not have any immediate need for it.

After a trip of three months to New York and other eastern cities where he has relatives, Max Cohen is back in town, looking for an opportunity to open another flower store. He has the necessary fixtures in storage.

William Wienhoeber says the swell north side trade likes the Mrs. Russell rose; it is fragrant and a splendid keeper. Mr. Wienhoeber thinks well of Melody; while it fades rapidly it lasts well and is a good rose to the end. Bulgarie has sold well of late.

Alli Zech has devised a new method of keeping ferns that is attracting attention around the market. In one corner of the store a double-decked bench has been constructed, one pan above the other, and in each deck there is from an inch to two inches of water. The ferns are unpacked and placed in a standing position with the stems in the water. He says even if the ferns are wilted on arrival, a couple of hours in the water will bring out a dark, rich color and at the same time strengthen the stems.

H. W. Buckbee, of Rockford, Ill., was a caller on the market last week and says his crop of mums is ready to cut. He expects to continue cutting until the middle of December. The stock is sold here by A. L. Vaughan & Co.

Archie Spencer, of Kyle & Foerster's, says it is no fun bearing the name of Spencer when the police all over the country are looking for a murder suspect who bears that appellation and who was described as wearing glasses. He was much relieved when the party was found. Some fifteen or more Spencers were arrested before the right one was located, but the florist escaped being taken to detective headquarters.

NOTICE

Two or three rose growers will find it profitable to ship choice stock to my market store. I have an excellent patronage and the demand has grown to such an extent that additional shippers can be cared for. Choice stock only.

first day since the firm opened its doors. He was suffering from an attack of bronchitis.

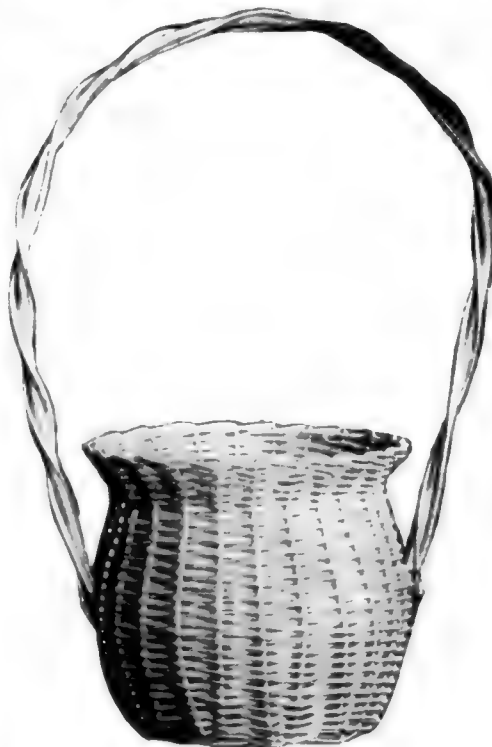

John Sinner was forced to remain away from the store for a time last week on account of an unusually bad cold, but he was around this week, although still trying to get the upper hand of the cold.

The mean temperature for September was 3 degrees below that of 1912, but still a fraction of a degree above the normal, which is 64.6 degrees. The precipitation was only half the normal. The duration of sunshine averaged eight hours and six minutes per day, or sixty-five per cent of the possible sun, three per cent below the normal. No frost of consequence has occurred since September 22, when considerable damage was done to stock in exposed places.

L. Baumann & Co. are busy turning out material for the interior decorations to be used during the fall opening of Marshall Field & Co. For eight seasons this has been a regular yearly order.

The local market will be interested in an account of E. E. Pieser's northern peony plantation, reprinted on another page of this issue. It originally appeared in the Houghton, Mich., Gazette.

Miss Winifred Owen, formerly with the A. L. Randall Co., has started in business for herself, at 2911 West Jackson boulevard, manufacturing corsage shields, brides' muffs and bouquet holders.

The H. Wittbold staff is proud of the work done for Marshall Field & Co., for the fall opening this week. The entire sixth floor was turned over to H. H. Wilkerson and he carried out a simple effect in crotons, small palms and autumn leaves of various kinds.

Mrs. J. B. Freeman, of Toledo, has written to Peter Reinberg to inquire about a man who represented himself as Mr. Reinberg's son and who was short of cash. She described the man as of medium height, rather heavy set, smooth faced, brown hair inclined to be curly. Of course, she was advised that any such person is an impostor and to warn others. A man answering that description introduced himself September 8 at Mr. Reinberg's store, presenting the card of Charles Kinyon, of the South Bend Floral Co., South Bend, Ind., and secured $10 on a check the bank failed to cash.

The Market.

The market conditions of late have been satisfactory, with a good demand for flowers and an excellent supply. The Jewish holidays occasioned an extra demand, including decorations of the synagogue. Chrysanthemums are now in and bid fair to play a conspicuous part for the months of October and November. There are some good Easter lilies on the market and the carnation stock is fine for this season of the year. The shipping business is brisk, a number of the florists and nurserymen in this vicinity carrying on a wholesale business exclusively. Asparagus plumosus is in excellent supply.

Various Notes.

Miss Mildred Flick has returned from a trip to Cleveland and eastern points.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting some fine Easter lilies. Their stock is in prime condition, and they are cutting heavily from their roses. The orchid houses present a charming appearance. THE PERFECTION NON-TILTING PLANT STANDS

THE BEST STYLES OF STATIONARY STANDS EVER OFFERED TO THE TRADE.

These stationary stands are made in two types at the same price and with the same range of sizes. Stands are all fitted with pressed steel water-tight pans of diameter in proportion to height of stand.

The three-legged stand is ideal for home decorating and is designed for sale with potted plants. The pedestal stand is designed for Florists' use, both in store and outside decorations. Both the pan and the base on this stand are detachable for storage and transportation. The pan is electric welded to a flange which screws onto the stem of the stand, making a strong, light stand of graceful design.

Both Pedestal and Three-legged stands are finished in green enamel and gilt lined pans.

BEAUTIES

Are of splendid quality, and you will find here the best supply in this market. We handle the cut of 100,000 plants and have no surplus. A good sign that our Beauties must give satisfaction. Mostly of the three top grades; not many shorts and mediums.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS, in white, yellow and pink, we can furnish in quantity, although large orders should be placed in advance. The early Mums this year are of excellent quality. $1.50 to $3.00 per dozen.

DAHLIAS

Many retailers have handled Dahlias this season for the first time, and, with a few exceptions, after a trial shipment, they become regular buyers. In offering you Dahlias, we claim that ours are the best you will find anywhere. $2.00 to $4.00 per 100. Can we send you a sample shipment?

A steady improvement in Roses is noticeable from week to week. Pink Killarney is of better color and longer stems. White Killarney is more plentiful. Aaron Ward and Sunburst we can supply in quantity.

IRISH FIRE FLAME

The supply of this novelty is slowly increasing. We handle the entire cut of Robert Scott & Son, which gives us the cut of 12,000 plants.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

The first week in October has witnessed a decided improvement in the demand for cut flowers. The supply, owing to this brisk demand, has seemed actually insufficient, although there has been no frost. The exceptions to this scarcity have been in dahlias and in cattleyas. The supply of dahlias has been so heavy that even the most enthusiastic reporter of the market could not call it inadequate, but the sales of dahlias have been larger than ever before in the history of the market. Despite lower prices, there have been more cattleyas than could be used. Other orchids have sold better than cattleyas, although, of course, not nearly so many of them are sold. Carnations have in a small way been the strong flower on the list, owing to small receipts and the exit of the aster. Yellow chrysanthemums, too, have been in brisk demand, better so than white or pink. Chrysolora, Golden Glow and Creme are the principal yellows, but there are some Comolita. The Pacific family, Glory of Pacific and Pacific Supreme; Sport and Polly Rose form the bulk of the whites more or less shading to pink. To them may be added Unaka and a few others.

Prices still rule high. Receipts are increasing. Curiously enough valley is a shade more plentiful than during September. The receipts have increased faster than the demand. Roses are about equal to the demand, except for white, which is at times not to be obtained. The novelties are in request. Bouvardia and double violets from the Hudson river are here. Shipping is excellent. The demand for greens is a trifle stronger.

Club Meeting.

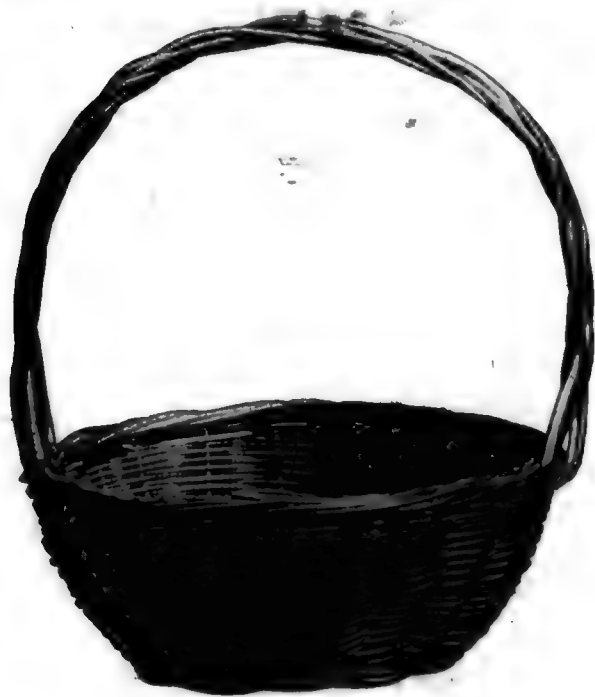

At the annual meeting of the Florists' Club October 7 J. Otto Thilow was re-elected president. George Burton was elected vice-president. David Rust was re-elected secretary and George Craig treasurer. Charles H. Grakelow gave a flowing description of his trip to Panama. George E. Buxton, of Nashua, N. H., exhibited two vases of a fine saffron pink sport of Maryland. George G. Parker, of Phillipsburg, Pa., is a visitor.

In the Style of Louis Seize.

Charles Henry Fox has issued invitations to his sisters and brothers in the profession to visit his new business home at 221 South Broad street, Monday, October 13. They will find a beautiful shop, decorated in the style prevalent in the time of the unfortunate Louis XVI, King of France. The interior is finished in that shade of white that is light yet lacks the dazzling quality that tires the eye, with graceful tracery above. The furniture is in keeping with the age and in harmony with walls and ceiling. The chandelier is a masterpiece, its cut glass pendants scintillating. One side is devoted to the showcase. It is divided in half, cooled by an ice machine, with bunkers overhead for natural ice in case of need. Its beauty is enhanced by mirrors and electric lights above. Its economic value is increased by a row of stationary vases that may be automatically filled and emptied of water; the smaller vases in front are movable. On the opposite side from the showcase are beautiful wall mirrors, giving the appearance of light and space beyond that adds to the effectiveness. Then come the telephone booths, handsomely finished, and the desk. Behind the shop are the receiv-

Various Notes.

Charles F. Hale, East Orange, N. J., and J. P. Begerow, of Newark, N. J., were here recently.

Leon Wintzer, of West Grove, Pa., is now with A. N. Pierson, Inc., at Cromwell, Conn.

Francis Stokes says that the vegetable growers' meeting at Toledo was most successful. Mr. Stokes visited the places of several large growers of cucumbers and lettuce and was much impressed by them.

Frederick J. Michell has returned from his trip to Baltimore. He found conditions excellent. The two Philadelphia wholesale cut flower houses were doing an active business at their Baltimore branches.

Raymond Brunswick took a party of boy scouts out near Barren Hill, in Montgomery county, gave them a good run, got them lost and brought them safely home by the aid of the compass.

Edward Reid had heavy receipts of fine carnations, chrysanthemums and orchids this week. Chrysolora was superb. Mr. Reid says there was a decided shortage last week, which is now overcome.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have two fetching novelties this week in the China lady, who can be artistically chiffon draped, and the roguish brownies, conveniently pocketed for flowers.

Max H. Rothe is improving his store at Mt. Airy.

been extremely scarce, are arriving in good supply now and their color, as well as length of stem, is quite satisfactory for the early season. A few good red dahlias are on the market, but the grower who usually supplies most of the trade was unfortunate enough to lose them by frost, and the loss is quite heavy. Cattleyas are of fine quality and color, but there is no great demand. Violets are accepted quite readily and their fragrance is good. Valley, which has been scarce, has been obtained from Canada to meet the demand. Easter lilies are also somewhat scarce. A large quantity of hardy phlox has also been sent to market, but does not move at all well. Roses in about all grades are in fine condition, and the greater length of their stems makes them more salable. Prices keep up about as usual. White, yellow and pink chrysanthemums are arriving in good quantities and retail prices range from $2 to $4 per dozen. Chrysanthemum plants are also potted up and sell well. Most of the florists are making up lots of baskets this fall, which are sold from $1 up. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Will Hold Flower Show.

A special meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held at the office of James Vick's Sons, on Stone street, October 2, to reconsider the advisability of holding a flower show this fall. As announced in the last issue, the association had thought it best not to hold a show this year, for various reasons, but at the enthusiastic special meeting it was decided that Rochester will have a flower show this year, and it will be the biggest and best yet. The show will be held in Convention hall, beginning November 4 and lasting five days. As a proof of the assertion that the show will be bigger and better than ever, it was announced that at present more exhibits had been pledged than ever before. The exhibits will include displays from the collection of Mrs. Gilman Perkins, Hiram W. Sibley, Mrs. William S. Kimball, George Eastman, Mrs. W. D. Ellwanger, and Mrs.

Herbert Wadsworth, of Avon, N. Y., and it is expected that many others will make known their intention to exhibit now that a show is assured.

President Dunbar, who is assistant superintendent of parks, stated that the park board had arranged for a larger exhibit than it had ever made before, and representatives of private owners spoke in a similar vein. Several promises of unusual exhibits were made, among them one of chrysanthemum plants said to be seven to eight feet in diameter and each plant having an average of 2,000 blossoms, from Mrs. Kimball's conservatories.

Various Notes.

H. E. Bates has just returned from a business trip to Pittsburgh, Pa., and reports a good business done there, having sold to Fred Burki, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., a new Lord & Burnham house, 42x100, and conservatories to E. N. Statler, of Buffalo, and to W. O. Chapin.

The Market.

The fashion show that was held in this city last week proved a big success. It drew large crowds of people from out of town and everything helped to make business for the florists. Next year it is expected that the decorations in the apparel stores during fashion week will about double. Every florist who had plants that could be used for decorations had them all rented, and Sunday morning one could see in every direction moving vans hauling palms back to the greenhouses.

Business shows a general increase. The supply of carnations has increased greatly and there is also a notable improvement in quality. Roses are plentiful and there is some exceptionally fine stock being cut. Asters are on the wane. Mums are more plentiful, but still good ones are scarce, as the supply comes from the markets. The early varieties do not do well in this climate, especially this season, as the long, hot, dry summer seemed to affect them badly.

Green stock is arriving in a great deal better shape.

Various Notes.

Samuel Murray had a pretty window for fashion week. He used at the back a large specimen of Dicksonia antarctica, the stem five feet high, the spread five feet and with fifty-seven leaves, standing in all about nine feet high. In the center of the window was a vase of fine cut flowers and small baskets were distributed around the window. There was a fine bank of orchids at one end, with a large fern drooping above the bank of orchids.

Arthur Newell's fashion window was extremely attractive. He used a lot of ruscus made up to look like little purple and red trees, some pyramids and some standards, about four feet high. He says the demand for baskets of ruscus was heavy.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had a window that was different from all the

The Market.

Last week's business made a pretty fair showing. There was a good demand for funeral flowers and the Jewish holidays helped wonderfully. Besides, the summer vacationists are getting back to their winter quarters and are adding to the volume of trade. The early frosts have decreased the supply of outdoor stock, while at the same time there is a good supply of cosmos, which helps in decorations, if nothing more. Carnations are daily becoming more plentiful; the stems are longer and the flowers larger, but the demand still exceeds the supply. Chrysanthemums are coming into bloom nicely. Roses seem to be the most plentiful of indoor stock; they have good foliage and flowers. Killarney, My Maryland and Kaiserin are in the lead. Beauties are rather short, but in good demand. The aster and dahlia season is past. Lilies are in good supply and are a great help in funeral work. The weather for the last ten days has been ideal.

city. Everything in its equipment is new and modern. Since resuming business Mrs. Johnson reports a good trade.

Mrs. Ruby A. Leslie recently returned from a six weeks' visit with relatives and friends in Chicago, Aurora and Sycamore, Ill. She reports a fine time.

George Bartholomew is cutting some fine, long-stemmed carnations from his new plants.

A. Miller, representing A. Henderson & Co., of Chicago, made his fall visit to Dayton patrons last week.

Mrs. Bertha Hendrichs returned last week from Sulphur Springs, O., where she had been spending a few weeks for her health. She came home feeling greatly benefited.

John Boehner, who has recently returned from a three months' visit to Germany, says that the old country may be all right, but he will "take America for his."

M. Anderson and his brother, Harry, spent the latter part of last week in Cincinnati on business.

J. W. Rodgers was called to his home in Monroe, O., last week, on account of the illness of his wife.

Fred Lembke, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, was in town last week.

Roy Ewing has just recovered from an attack of grip.

Mrs. B. Haschke had a serious fall last week, which badly crippled her, making it difficult for her to attend to business. She reports, however, that she is cutting some fine sweet peas; also October Frost and Estelle chrysanthemums.

Herbert Bartholomew went to Franklin, O., October 5, to play football with the Wolverines.

"Business is picking up well," is the report of the Heiss Co. They are cutting Golden Glow mums and their rose crop has improved greatly in the last few weeks.

A large force of men is hurrying the work on the new greenhouses of the Dayton Floral Co., so as to complete them before cold weather sets in.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 30%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 30% allowed senders..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

The Market.

Roses are now the most prominent flowers on the market. Prices, which hardened somewhat a week ago, are lower. Mrs. Russell is probably the greatest favorite at present, and many fine flowers are seen. American Beauty is coming with excellent stems; so is Killarney Queen. Ward, Hillingdon, Taft and Double White Killarney are other popular varieties. Carnations are more abundant and coming with better stems. Prices are holding up well, as much as $4 per hundred being easily secured for the best grade of flowers. Of violets there is a constantly increasing supply. All are from outdoors as yet. Prices run as low as 25 cents per hundred and few rise over the 50-cent mark.

Lilies are not overabundant and sell well. A few callas already are appearing. Cosmos Lady Lenox is quite good and in demand. Pink snapdragons of nice quality are coming in from a number of growers and sell well. Dahlias are quite good, but do not sell with any snap. Gladioli are gradually passing; so are asters, which are weekly becoming fewer and smaller. A few white and yellow marguerites are coming in, as are small lots of Bouvardia Humboldtii. Chrysanthemums are steadily growing in numbers. A few Pacific and Polly Rose are seen, but most of the supply consists of Golden Glow, Unaka and Smith's Advance.

Cattleya labiata is becoming fairly abundant. A few C. Bowringiana also are seen. There is a good supply of yellow oncidiums and cypripediums. Just about enough gardenias for demand are arriving. The call for green stock shows a little improvement.

Various Notes.

Penn's did considerable decorating at the banks, with palms, bay trees, ferns and other plants, on the occasion of the American Bankers' Association meeting here this week. October 8 at the Hotel Somerset they had a decoration for 1,100 guests. They used on the tables 1,000 Golden Glow mums, large quantities of Mrs. Russell roses and other flowers for the Boston City Club. They had to renew some decorations for five days while the bankers' convention lasted. Twenty cases of smilax were used for festooning purposes for the City Club banquet.

At the Willow Hill Greenhouses, West Roxbury, Albert Scott, the proprietor, has 18,000 single stem mums and 7,000 pompons. He is cutting Smith's Advance and Unaka of fine quality. The latter he bought from a well known firm as Chrysolora and, having 3,000 plants, he is much disappointed that he did not get what he paid for, as it means a considerable financial loss. He continues to grow yellow marguerites in quantity.

October 4 and 5, brought out some fine entries. Some of the more successful prize winners were Oliver Ames, E. Parker, gardener; W. J. Clemson, J. O. Christensen, gardener; A. W. Preston, J. L. Smith, gardener; Ed. F. Mason, E. L. Lewis, gardener; Mrs. F. Ayer, Geo. Page, gardener, and Mrs. J. L. Gardner, Wm. Thatcher, gardener. Farquhar & Co. secured a first-class certificate for a new single hardy chrysanthemum from Corea. They also had some other choice perennials.

J. T. Butterworth, of South Framingham, finds Cattleya Mrs. Williams a useful hybrid at this season. He is just starting to cut Cattleya labiata and has a fine lot of Oncidium Rogersii and cypripediums.

The Boston Flower Exchange will hold its annual banquet Saturday evening, October 25, in the new mahogany banquet hall of the American House. New stalls at the market are being constantly rented. All but two of the shippers to the Flower Growers' Sales Co., on Park street, now have stalls, and the balance are expected at an early date.

In H. R. Comley's windows, on Park street, October 4, I noted fine vases of nerines, Belladonna lilies, lapagerias and Bouvardia Humboldtii.

The Mishawum Greenhouses, of Woburn, are shipping over 100 dozen chrysanthemums daily to J. M. Cohen at the Boston Coöperative Market, chiefly Golden Glow and Smith's Advance.

J. W. Foote, of Reading, is sending fine flowers of Beacon, White Wonder, Pink Delight, and a pink seedling to H. T. Capers, of the Boston Coöperative Market; also some good Bouvardia Humboldtii. Thomas Capers, of Wellesley Hills, is sending good flowers of Benora, Beacon, White Wonder and White Enchantress to the same market.

Galvin's, at the Tremont street store, continue to feature named dahlias in one window. In another large vases of yellow and white mums, rising out of crotons and other colored-leaved plants, were effective.

The W. W. Edgar Co., of Waverley, received the first shipment of 100 cases of azaleas October 1, and the force is busy potting them. All came in fine shape, splendidly budded. A large number of palms were received at the same time. The houses of Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias, cyclamens and poinsettias never looked better.

Benjamin Green, in charge of the flower department at the Henry Seigel department store, was married this week, his bride being Miss Esther Silverman. They were well remembered by friends in the trade.

Do not forget the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, which will occur October 14. M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J., will speak on "Who Is the Real Gardener?" There will be fine displays of chrysanthemums and other seasonable flowers.

Baskets and bowls of chrysanthemums arranged with oak foliage, also Taft roses similarly displayed, were a pleasing feature in F. H. Houghton's window October 4. Colchicum autumnale, the autumn crocus, was used in the front of the window.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society October 4, the schedules for 1914 were approved, with the money appropriations for the same. N. T. Kidder, Thomas Roland and E. B. Wilder were appointed a committee to bring in a list of nominations for the various committees for 1914.

Peter Boll, of Wakefield, is specializing in Asparagus plumosus, A. Sprengeri and adiantum. His shipments of these have a freshness and quality which makes selling an easy matter.

Albert Roper, of Tewkesbury, besides being a noted carnationist, grows some excellent mums, and his Golden Glow and Unaka have at present no superiors.

The roses from the Waban Conservatories are always of such high quality that only superlative adjectives will properly describe them. Their Mrs. Russell is in great demand. The new scarlet seedling, Hadley, and a beautiful seedling similar to, but a big improvement on, Taft, will be heard from later. Other roses of the Killarney type and Richmond all are fine.

F. J. Dolansky is cutting 200 Cattleya labiata daily. Gardenias are coming along well with him. At the Boston Flower Exchange he has a good assortment of decorative plants, such as araucarias, Otaheite oranges, ficus, etc., in charge of Frank J. McDonald.

William Sim is now a heavy shipper of Princess of Wales violets to the Boston Flower Exchange. He will plant one house with pansies again this season, of the strain which won for him the gold medal at the New York international show.

Within the last two weeks business has picked up considerably, especially among those catering to weddings and other social functions. Shipments from the north arrive now in larger quantities and the first chrysanthemums are now seen in the show windows, but the demand for them is not yet large. Pot plants of all kinds are moving steadily. Azaleas for Christmas forcing have not arrived yet. Of Begonia Lorraine, cyclamen and Primula Chinensis and obconica some local growers have a fair-looking and sufficient supply. Poinsettias are, for some reason or other, not as fine as formerly with the majority of the florists, although some of them have as perfect a stock as can be found anywhere. The greatest interest among the local florists centers around this year's chrysanthemum output. From the writer's observation the stock in general is a better one than last year's, but some losses in the lower parts of the city have been reported, due to heavy rains of late and lack of sufficient drainage. Most of the mums are covered now either with glass or canvas, and in the course of time the former will replace the latter entirely, on account of a much better flower being obtained under a glass cover.

Various Notes.

C. W. Eichling, of the Avenue Floral Co., has been quite busy of late with all kinds of floral work and decorations. He has his city nursery in good condition, and the new place at Bayou Lacombe is going to be a money-maker; the cut flowers grown at this place are surely fine and find ready buyers.

Henry Kraak, one of our leading landscape gardeners, reports a steady increase in his line of business; he carries a big stock of fine decorative plants for his numerous customers among the leading hotels and restaurants.

Mrs. Carrie Rehm's place on St. Charles avenue is as beautiful as ever under her personal management. She reports a brisk business since the opening of the fall season and no doubt will make good during winter and spring.

Henry Rehfeld, the ever hustling cemetery gardener, is all smiles over the success of his big lot of Mrs. Robinson chrysanthemums, which are of a high standard of quality.

proving his new place and intends to grow stock for the wholesale market. His chrysanthemums, mostly grown under glass, give promise of a splendid crop both in quantity and quality.

U. J. Virgin is getting his usual big share of the business, both in city and out-of-town orders, for weddings, funerals, etc. Richard Eichling, the manager of his nursery, has the place well stocked with strong and clean grown palms, ferns, etc. A big lot of poinsettias, single and made up in pans, are the best seen so far. R. E.

The formal opening of the new store of Newsham & Scheuermann, at 141 Carondelet street, was held October 6. The Orchid Store, as it is to be known, will do a high-grade line of business and everything will be kept up to the standard of the engraved invitations to the opening.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, O. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

ARTICLES of incorporation of the Morisse Seed & Nursery Co., of Tacoma, Wash., have been filed by Carl F. Morisse, W. L. Nasmyth and H. E. Thompson.

LESTER L. MORSE, who is vice-president of the California Association of Nurserymen, will be at Fresno October 16 to respond for the association to the mayor's address of welcome to the annual convention.

H. FRANK DARROW states that Alfred Emerich, representing Vilmorin, Andrieux & Co., of Paris, arrived in New York October 1 and will pay his usual visit to the seed trade throughout the United States and Canada.

W. A. DAVIS, seed pea grower in the Gallatin and now head of the W. A. Davis Seed Co., of Bozeman, returned to Montana September 26 from points in Michigan, where he had been spending several weeks on business.

NEBRASKA sugar corns will not be so poor a crop as the general report on western corn crops would indicate. The sweet corn for seed is mostly in eastern Nebraska, and in that end of the state the crops are much better than the average for the whole state.

SCHEDULES in the assignment of Wm. Hagemann & Co., Inc., New York, importers of bulbs and plants, at 30 Church street, show liabilities $21,852 direct and $4,826 contingent; nominal assets $19,200 and actual assets $6,803. Paul Kase, the president, committed suicide August 19.

THE duty on hyacinth bulbs now is five times as high as it was last week, back where it was before the decision against the government in the Breck case. It adds $2 per thousand to the cost of late arrival bulbs and will necessitate a corresponding advance in trade and retail prices.

UNDER existing conditions it does not appear that American seed growers will be under any necessity of reducing prices because of the reductions of duty in the new tariff law, but, rather, that the European exporters will easily be able to advance their rates to the extent of the tariff reductions.

AN order to examine the books and papers of the United States Seed Co., of Fredonia, N. Y., has been obtained by Dr. Chauncey M. Rathbun, of El Paso, Tex., who started the concern as a co-partnership with Frank M. Roesch, present manager of the company. Dr. Rathbun alleges that a block of his stock has been kept from him and that he has not received his share of the profits.

AMONG recent deaths in the seed trade in Great Britain was that of W. Bull, eldest son of the founder of the firm of William Bull & Sons, London; he retired from the business four years ago, on account of ill health. The obituary list also includes Hugh Hannan, a seed merchant of Edinburgh, of imposing presence and cheery manner, with a reputation for choice strains of seeds; also William Green, head of the firm of William Green & Sons, nurserymen and seedsmen, Leeds, England, founded there over a century ago. Mr. Green was TWENTY-SEVEN cases of French bulbs consigned to R. M. Ward & Co. were on the Marsoilles boat that reached New York September 30. The season's receipts are now 18,614 cases.

PLANS for new buildings, aggregating in cost $128,000, have been filed by the Craver-Dickinson Seed Co., at Buffalo, N. Y. An iron warehouse and office will be built on Ganson street.

A BELATED consignment of four cases of Harrisii bulbs for the Reitman-Pilser Co. came on the Bermuda boat that arrived in New York September 29, raising the season's total to 2,304 cases.

GRANT NOAH, a well known farmer south of Beloit, Kan., has bought an interest in the Beloit Seed Store, which plans an extension of its business. The same owners conduct the Crescent Grocery at Beloit.

A. DAWKINS, who has managed the seed and bulb department of the business of James Veitch & Sons, Ltd., London, England, for the last seventeen years, is now, on account of the firm relinquishing business, commencing on his own account on King's road, Chelsea, England.

THE late Robert Sydenham, of Tenby street, Birmingham, England, left an estate of the gross value of $66,870, of which $44,000 is net personalty. To each person in the employ of the firm he left one month's wages, and to the Royal Gardeners' Orphan Fund and the Gardeners' Benevolent Institution he left $500 each.

MONTANA SEEDSMEN ORGANIZE.

The Montana Seed Growers' Association was organized at Helena, Mont., last week by exhibitors at the state fair. The object of the association is thus set forth:

Making regulations for the growing, selecting and preserving of seeds and farm crops.

Causing records to be kept of the history of seeds produced by members.

Fixing standards for seeds that may be registered.

Publishing information of standards. Issuing certificates to members by which hand-selected seed may be distinguished from inferior kinds.

Other means that may be expedient to the welfare of good seed.

Officers were selected as follows: President, F. C. Sumner, of Park county; vice-president, Truman Ames, of Miles City; directors, W. V. Talbot, of Farmington; I. D. O'Donnell, of Billings; P. Carney, of Waterloo; Joe Nash, of Clyde Park, and Charles Wentworth, of Lewiston.

SEEDS IN IOWA.

The following is from the local paper at Waterloo, Ia.:

"Galloway Bros.-Bowman Co. is making improvements to its large plant in order to meet the demands of increasing seed business. Additional greenhouses are now being constructed. Particular mention is made of a large number of orders from the south and California, but they do business all over the United States, as is evidenced from the fact that their orders are obtained by mail and that the average seed order amounts to only $1.50. Island Board, with offices at Sydney, through its British agent, has sent out the following explanation:

"In addition to the particulars already supplied in connection with the palm seed industry, I now have the honor to inform you that the board have again had under their notice the question of dealing with the export trade, but have decided, in view of the local demand for seeds being now so great, not to enter at the present juncture into the oversea trade; should any steps in that direction be taken later, you will be duly advised.

the board to any reputable firm of seedsmen in Sydney. The terms of sale are cash before delivery, and the seeds require to be carefully and suitably repacked for export purposes. It is, therefore, open to buyers outside of the state to obtain supplies through a recognized firm of seedsmen here, or through any local agent they may desire to appoint.

"A large number of inquiries and orders for seeds have been addressed to the board by oversea buyers, and they have been advised of the decision herein conveyed. It is possible there may be other persons abroad seeking this information. I may state in conclusion that, in the event of any oversea buyer appointing an agent here, it would be desirable to advise the board of the action taken in that direction."

trades' display. The officers elected at the final session Friday afternoon were as follows:

President—W. J. Ritterskamp, Princeton, Ind.

Vice-president—H. J. Thompson, Attleboro, Mass.

Secretary—S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky.

Treasurer—M. L. Ruetenik, Cleveland, O.

The selection of the meeting place of the next convention was left to a committee.

Interesting Addresses.

At the afternoon session of the first day, when plant diseases were discussed, Prof. A. D. Selby, of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, gave a good address on "Diseases of Greenhouse Vegetables and Their Control," and Dr. W. A. Orton, of the Department of Agriculture, spoke on "Greenhouse Soil Diseases." "Coöperation and Marketing," discussed at the Thursday morning session, brought forth some particularly valuable points. Among the speakers on this topic were C. W. Waid and C. F. Teausch, and Prof. Paul Work, secretary of the New York State Vegetable Growers' Association, told of the value of state and local organizations to the growers. Friday morning G. N. Coffey, of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, and H. C. Thompson, of the Department of Agriculture, gave talks on agronomy.

Fine Entertainment.

Thursday afternoon the members of the association visited the greenhouse plants near Toledo. Three special cars took them to Calvary cemetery and from there twenty automobiles carried them on their tour. The houses of Fred Johnson, A. J. Schmidt, Miller Bros., Wright Bros., H. J. Meyer and Searles Bros. were visited and comments passed on the advanced methods employed and splendid results obtained at these plants.

Thursday night there was a big dinner at the Commerce Club. Frank L. Mulholland, of the Commerce Club, was toastmaster. Talks were delivered by H. F. Hall, president of the association; William B. Geroe and Louis F. Miller, of Toledo; Prof. W. F. Lazenby, of Ohio State University; Prof. Paul Work, of Cornell University; J. S. Bingham, of Bowling Green, and C. A. Gallup, of Ashtabula.

The twenty-five women attending the convention were taken by the Toledo women for an automobile ride about the city Friday morning, after which they had dinner at the Toledo Yacht Club.

THE GRANDEST OF FORCING
AND BEDDING TULIPS

WINTERSON'S "Brilliant" Keizerskroon

A bed of this most beautiful of tulips when in bloom is certainly a dazzling sight. The combination of colors, Brilliant Red and Dazzling Gold, cannot be surpassed by any other variety. The flowers are of extra large size with very strong stems, which protect them against rain and wind storms; furthermore, on account of their general strong character, they make a perfect showing for a longer time than any other variety. We have received from a specialist in Holland an exceptionally fine stock of this Tulip and offer them at the low prices as below.

NOTE: Keizerskroon is also a most desirable sort for forcing and house culture.

PRICE:

First Size Bulbs, per 100, $1.25; per 1000, $11.00
Mother Bulbs.....per 100, $1.50; per 1000, $14.00

We also have a complete line of all bulb stock of "WORTH WHILE" quality and at right prices.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

October opened up with a much better tone to the market generally and less stock being thrown out. There are many good wedding orders booked that will keep the retailers hustling to find the better class of stock, such as valley, orchids and the best class of roses. Carnations continue to improve, both in color and length of stem, and the improvement is greater in the outdoor than in the greenhouse flowers. There is still plenty of cheap stock. Chrysanthemums are now in full swing, the northern flowers being a shade the better in quality than the locally grown. Good Beauties are scarce, but there are some nicely colored short flowers. Killarney Queen is becoming a favorite, and several others among the novelties are popular. Boston and other ferns are about the only plants obtainable, but these are fine now.

Various Notes.

Howard & Smith have been showing some magnificent zinnias, large and of exquisite colors, grown from their own strain of seed. Wedding and other orders keep the store force busy, including Manager Collins, who has purchased a new Studebaker car to help out.

Gus. Swenson, who started in business less than a year ago at Eagle Rock, has some of the finest looking chrysanthemums I have ever seen, and if the weather keeps favorable he will surely make a good killing. Many thousands are grown and are now being covered with cloth. They have the appearance of first-class stock in every particular. The Bonnaffons and Appletons are particularly good. Paper White narcissus is above ground and bulb planting is in full swing. There is much credit due Mr. Swenson for the fine start he has made.

The picture window of the Freeman-Lewis Co. for the fashion show was fine in every way and caused a good deal of excitement on Fourth street. A large frame with lights at the back was the center attraction, the window and frame being draped with green and gold plush velvet and the choicest of orchids, valley and other flowers introduced. Mr. Lewis, at the time of writing, had not returned from his vacation.

Tom Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, recently underwent an operation at the California hospital for appendicitis. He is doing well and hopes soon to be back at the store.

A letter, dated in Chicago, September 25, from Harry A. Barnard, the well-known representative of Stuart Low & Co., of Enfield, England, says he will visit the coast this trip and include Los Angeles and San Francisco in his itinerary. Los Angeles to London is a pretty far cry and it looks as though our old friend is going the limit this time. He will be sure of a hearty welcome.

Fred Sperry left September 28 for a business trip through Arizona, New Mexico and western Texas in the interests of the Los Angeles Flower Market, C. Morton being left in charge.

Dr. Parker, the famous orchid specialist of Santa Cruz, is visiting Los Angeles.

The Japanese window of the Hayward Floral Co. was a great success and the dollar box continues to be a good drawing card. I noticed also a fine display of Odontoglossum grande and O. crispum here. When florists awake to the fact that there are other orchids besides cattleyas, it will be a decidedly good thing.

C. Morton, F. Hills, the writer and others visited the ranch of the H. N. Gage Co., at Montebello, September 28, and all were surprised to see how great a change had been made in a short time. Large quantities of ferns were looking fine in the lath house and thousands of boxes of bulbs for forcing were being buried preparatory to going under glass. Mr. Gage has great hopes of his acclimated bulbs, and there seems to be every reason, for they are several weeks ahead of the imported article.

Already we have the Dutch bulb traveler with us. Pretty early for the coast.

Hubert Morton is amalgamating his nursery and flower stores at Long Beach, as he thinks he can run the two more easily at the one address.

The Roserie is sending out a most useful and attractive calendar this year, consisting of a walnut frame and pretty photographic view, a useful thermometer being attached. The calendar part can be renewed yearly, so that a perennial advertisement is the result.

The new roses are certainly fine now at the Dieterich & Turner ranch and the latch-string is always out for interested visitors. Mrs. Chas. Lewis does magnificently here and is a lovely color, with fine stems. Mrs. D. Christie Miller is also excellent and there are many others. While Mr. Turner sends some flowers in, he is using a good deal of the wood for propagating and has many thousands of the same already.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The marked impetus which was given the retail trade in the middle of September has also characterized the closing days of the month and the opening days of October. The record of daily sales in the retail stores and the activity of all connected with the trade clearly show that winter, the harvest season of the florist, is at hand. October 2 was the beginning of the Jewish holidays and everybody connected with the trade was kept hustling. Flowering plants were most in demand. Cut flowers, however, were sold in quantity. In addition, we have had two large funerals, the offerings for which represented much work and the consumption of a large quantity of flowers.

Stock is considerably better than at the last writing. Mums have improved fifty per cent. Prices on good stock, however, stand high. The new crop of American Beauty roses is just being cut and they are splendid. It is fortunate that they were available last week, for the demand for them was heavy. The best selling roses of the last week were Aaron Ward and Mrs. Taft. More valley was called for than our growers could supply. Orchids, as previously reported, do not meet the demand. It is safe to say that the San Francisco market could use ten times the number of blooms that the growers are bringing in, without taking into consideration the innumerable calls and telegrams from Los Angeles, Seattle and Portland. There have been a great many weddings and social functions, and the scarcity of phalaenopsis and catleyas has worked considerable hardship on the retail florist. Carnations are still inferior and extremely high-priced. Violets are quite poor and have no fragrance. This is undoubtedly due to a series of warm days which we had last week, and we cannot expect an improvement in violets until after the rain.

Various Notes.

H. Plath was host to the members of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society Sunday, September 21. Mr. Plath entertained about 150 members of the society at his nurseries at Ocean View. A feature of Mr. Plath's hospitality was a special invitation issued to the ladies, and they were present in numbers. Mr. Plath's establishment at Ocean View, where he grows chiefly ferns, is one of the oldest on the coast, and many fine specimen ferns and a quantity of bird's-nest ferns and kentias may be seen there.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society is planning its regular fall flower show, which is to take place at the Fairmont hotel October 15 to 18. The flower show committee at its meeting October 1 reported excellent progress. The entire floor space of the Norman hall at the Fairmont hotel has already been applied for, and with a long list of patrons and an excellent assortment of prizes, there is no doubt that the display of 1913 will eclipse any given heretofore.

Albert O. Stein undertook a novel scheme of displaying his winter goods in a three-day opening at his store on Sutter street. Mr. Stein's shop presented a splendid appearance. In one corner he grouped a fine collection of orchids and phalaenopsis, in another section a gorgeous display of mums. Each day Mr. Stein featured a different flower, the first day chrysanthemums, the second day basket arrangements of roses and the third day shower bouquets. He also featured curly cabbages with skillful flower arrangements, and each day his patrons and visitors were presented with a corsage of violets. Tea was served during the afternoon. Mr. Stein presented a new and novel table decoration every afternoon.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. report an excellent week, the Walker and the Cutting funerals being the two biggest jobs on their list. Mr. Rossi contends that the coming season will be of much larger proportions than that of 1912, and he has the data to back his assertion. Frank Pelicano has just returned from a sojourn at the springs. Mr. Pelicano has taken his vacation somewhat late this year, but on his return feels much refreshed.

H. A. Barnard, of Stuart Low & Co., Enfield, England, is canvassing the coast. He spent several days in San Francisco and appears to be well satisfied with the business outlook. Mr. Barnard has been in the employ of Stuart Low & Co. for fifty-two years and is well known by all interested in the trade.

It is rumored about town that John Sievers is contemplating opening a new store on Polk near Sutter street. Mr. Sievers recently sold his nursery, and his entrance into the retail world comes somewhat as a surprise to the local tradespeople.

The Misses Hannon, on Polk street, have been showing a fine lot of dried Gladwin iris seed pods in their windows during the last week. The Misses Hannon make a specialty of this artistic commodity, raising them on their ranch in Santa Clara. They have also been bringing some fine sprays of Crataegus pyracantha to the San Francisco market. W. A. H.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.

There have been dull times during the last couple of months, but, taking the average, business has kept up well and the prospects are good from now on. There is a scarcity of good plants at a moderate price and much of the cut flower stock has still to be obtained from a distance. But growers are improving their places and figuring on handling more in order to avoid express and freight charges.

Lanier's has a much better location now, at 144 B street, than the old one and transient business has greatly improved. J. Napier, formerly with Howard & Smith, of Los Angeles, is now here. The yard at the back of the store is to be covered with lath, for ferns and plants.

C. Nearpass reports the best season's business in seeds in the history of his firm.

Boyle & Darnaud have the new houses planted and are already cutting good short and medium Beauties from the young stock. A number of orchids have been put in, the Cattleya Trianae being especially good stock. Business keeps up well at the store.

Miss Rainford reports better business than ever before.

The Harris Seed Co. says orders for Dutch bulbs are heavier than usual.

John Morley has obtained carte blanche and greatly increased appropriations to carry on the good work at the parks. While some loss was experienced during the recent hot spell, yet the new plantings are exceedingly satisfactory in every way.

Geo. Otto is as busy and bustling as ever and reports business as entirely satisfactory. H. R. R.

The flower show committee of the Florists' Club is working out the details of the coming big show. A definite date has not yet been agreed upon, this being governed by the condition of the mum crop. J. L. S.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The last half of September showed an upward trend in business. Weddings, funerals and social functions have been numerous, with a consequent call for first grade stock. Outside stock is gradually on the wane. Asters are slowly passing away. Sweet peas have been dispensed with for several weeks. Cosmos and dahlias are coming in nicely. Mums are gradually becoming more plentiful, but are far from in surplus, Monrovia and October Frost being in the majority. Roses are coming in nicely, with an improvement in quality. There is a steady demand for the choice grades. Carnations, while rather scarce, are showing good form and command a fair price, especially the darker shades. There is a general scarcity of valley and orchids, there being a brisk demand. Violets are to be had in limited quantities. The first flowers often prove unsatisfactory to the critical flower buyers. Jewish New Year was a considerable help to the week-end business, with a good call for flowers, but a still better demand for plants and ferns.

Various Notes.

The People's Floral Shop has opened at 241 Alder street, also in the entrance of the Rainbow Grill, on Broadway, and reports business satisfactory.

H. Kohn, a local jeweler, is gradually working himself into the flower line. He has one house of assorted plants and will soon add another. He has an eight-acre tract well situated for the purpose. E. R. C.

VANCOUVER, B. C.

The Market.

A survey of business in general shows a prevailing quietude. The local depression in business has severely hit the florists and no standard of prices prevails. Stock is not overplentiful. The major part of the supply is shipped from Seattle. Carnations are increasing in supply. Roses are fairly abundant; Beauties, Chateaus and Killarneys are the predominant varieties. Asters are plentiful in all colors; the best varieties are readily sold for 50 cents per dozen and all other flowers at the same ratio.

Various Notes.

A call at the Convent Gardens proved that Mr. Heffner is cordial in manner as well as an enterprising man. He has a nice location and handles some of the best trade.

At their main store Brown Bros. & Co. do a general seed, bulb and flower business, the largest business of its kind in the city. They have a large range of glass at Victoria, where they grow for the wholesale and retail trade. They also operate two branch stores, which bring good results.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE duty on French apple seeds is cut in half. What effect will it have on the plant?

JAPANESE chestnuts brought by the Griffing Bros. Co. from the nurseries at Jacksonville, Fla., to the plant at Nona, Tex., are attracting much attention by their success there.

ARTICLES of incorporation have been filed by the Shenandoah Nurseries, of Shenandoah, Ia., with a capitalization of $200,000. The incorporators are D. S. Lake, A. F. Lake and R. S. Lake.

THE Conkling Nursery Co., Fellsmere, Fla., has a number of contracts to develop grapefruit groves in that vicinity and already is engaged in the work preliminary to setting out the trees at the proper time.

THE International Nurseries, of New York, have been incorporated to do a general nursery business, with a capital of $25,000. The incorporators are W. E. Maynard and C. M. O'Farrell, of New York, and D. J. Wagner, of Jamaica.

THOSE European nurserymen who are establishing a nursery in the state of Washington are not concerned over the small reductions in duty on the lines they intend to grow. The aim is to sell principally on the Pacific coast and the freight rate is a far greater protection than the tariff ever was.

PROMISING SEASON AHEAD.

In his discussion of the supply of nursery stock for the coming season, before the Texas Nurserymen's Association, J. R. Mayhew stated that in regard to the supply of nursery stock the coming season is the most promising in years. There is a growing demand for ornamentals. The high prices of fruit last year will undoubtedly act to the benefit of the trade. In peach trees the supply is about the same, although the grades run smaller than usual. The demand for smaller grades of trees, however, is increasing in all fruit trees. The demand for peach is excellent, and that for cherry more promising. The supply of pear is small and the demand proportionately strong. Plum and apricot are scarce, while apple is more plentiful.

BRITISH EXPORTERS TO U. S.

The British Board of Agriculture has made special arrangements in the interests of nurserymen to meet the regulations issued by the government of the United States under the plant quarantine act of 1912. British nurserymen who propose to export plants to the United States must inform the board of their intention as early in the year as possible. Preliminary inspections will be made from time to time during the summer and a final examination will be made as early in October as possible. After the final examination has been made, and if the nursery is found to be free from injurious plant disease and insect pests, the board will be prepared to issue such certificates as may be required. The fee charged by the board will be 2 pounds 2 shillings per annum for each nursery, for which sum an unlimited number of certificates can be obtained.

The British Board of Agriculture also instructs prospective shippers to the United States to make sure that the necessary permit of entry has been obtained by their customer from the Department of Agriculture at Washington, before the goods are shipped.

OKLAHOMA NURSERYMEN ELECT.

The Oklahoma Nurserymen's Association met September 23 at the Lee-Huckins hotel, at Oklahoma City, Okla. The attendance of nurserymen and fruit growers from all over the state was large. A new constitution and by-laws were adopted. Besides the regular business of the association, there was carried out in full the interesting program of the meeting, which included papers of interest to the nurserymen of the state, followed by discussions fully as instructive.

The officers elected for the coming year were the following:

President—James Parker, of Tecumseh.

Vice-President—Benjamin Davis, of Tahlequah.

Secretary—P. W. Vaught, of Holdenville.

The next meeting of the association will be held at Oklahoma City the second week in January, 1914.

W. P. STARK'S PETITION DENIED.

The petition of William P. Stark against the Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., for the appointment of a receiver for the company, filed in the Pike County Court of Common Pleas, at Louisiana, Mo., March 7, 1913, was denied by the court September 30. The case on the application of William

P. Stark was continued in the Pike county court, and finally on his application a change of venue was taken to the Circuit Court at Mexico, in Audrain county, where it was called for trial September 22, before Hon. J. D. Barnett, the circuit judge, who, after eight days, decided for the defendants.

In his petition the plaintiff alleged that the capital stock of the company was in the hands of those incompetent to manage it and that E. W. Stark and Mrs. C. M. Stark had conspired to deprive him of the management of the business. These were his grounds for asking the appointment of a receiver.

In his decision, the court said in part: "There is no doubt from the evidence that this plaintiff was largely instrumental in building up this corporation. There can be no doubt that for a period of at least ten years before the friction arose in the company the success of the company was more largely due to his efforts than to the efforts of anyone else. Unquestionably, he must be regarded from this evidence as a nurseryman of unusual ability; but, I do not believe that the evidence shows that it could be said that his brother was a mere shadow and pretense in this corporation, but, apparently, from the beginning and together operate the business of the corporation."

If you are looking for a good, lively, shell-pink, free-blooming variety, you will find GLORIA hard to beat.

The court then reviewed the evidence as to C. M. Stark's holdings and the withdrawal of W. P. Stark from participation in the affairs of the company, and said: "I can find nothing to sustain the allegation of fraud, and I can not find anything of sufficient importance for a court to hold that by reason of the conduct of E. W. Stark a receiver should be appointed; but, there remains the allegation of incompetency and mismanagement.

"Taking up the report of Mr. Wills, who was an expert accountant employed by W. P. Stark to examine the company's affairs, it does not seem to me that these allegations are supported by the evidence. For, according to the report of Mr. Wills, this company made during the year ending at the June meeting, 1913, at a time when E. W. Stark was in control, profits for the year of $20,000 in excess of the average of the former five years when W. P. Stark was in control as manager."

Discussing the results that would be likely to follow granting the petition, the court said:

"The effect of a receivership in a case of this sort is likely to be serious. If the suggestion of this petition can be taken to mean that no one can conduct the management of this corporation except a skillful and unusual nurseryman, it would be difficult for the court to appoint a receiver. If E. W. Stark, who has grown up in the business, who has practically from his boyhood known nothing else, is not able to manage a corporation of this sort, it would be a practical impossibility for the court to find a man of the necessary ability and experience. It might be suggested that W. P. Stark could be appointed in that connection, but W. P. Stark is actively interested in another nursery. And it seems to me that the appointment of a receiver in a case of this sort might result finally in the dissolution of the corporation. I do not see what other result could be expected. It seems to me that it might result in a disastrous sale that would result in a sacrifice of the interests of the owners of the stock, who might not be in a position to protect themselves.

"Taking the case as a whole, I do not find that it is one in which the court would be justified in assuming control of this corporation through a receivership, and the prayer of the petition will be denied."

OH! JOY!!

Here is the Red Carnation we all have been looking for

For the last two years E. H. Blameuser, of Niles Center, Ill., has been shipping us cut blooms of a new red carnation—seedling raised on his place, he said. He seemed to cut, and out, and out, and out—never off crop, and he always could go out and cut us a few more when we phoned him. So he named it JOY! He describes it as "a strong grower, early, very free and continuous bloomer, with strong calyx and good stem," to which we add that it is one of the best shippers we ever handled. Appreciating that here is a commercial red (perhaps scarlet is a better word) carnation, a real bread-and-butter red, one you all can grow at a profit, we have arranged to disseminate Joy in 1914 as exclusive selling agents. Jobbers can get it through us. The originator says it is so easy to root he can afford a low price, and we offer

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade was heavy last week, with quite a good supply of stock on hand. The style show was on and called for everything in the way of decorative plants, as well as cut flowers. The retail merchants in all lines of trade made big window displays. While several florists entered for prizes, first prize fell to the Union Clothing Co., the May Furniture Co. being second and Goodman Bros., jewelers, third. There were several good windows shown by the florists, all worth honorable mention.

Mums are coming in slowly as yet. Nothing but Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are in sight, but by the end of the week there will be some Estelle and Pacific on the market. Roses are about all we can ask for quantity and quality. Carnations are more plentiful and are beginning to look like the old favorite again, with fair stems on a good proportion of the stock and the outlook for good stock right along now. Valley has been scarce, but the demand is rather light. Snapdragon is one of the best sellers we have at present, a flower that seems to sell on sight.

Ferns and palms are selling quite well, but the main call is for some pot plants in bloom and the public will not be satisfied until we begin to have good blooming plants.

Various Notes.

Louis Elsass, of Chillicothe, was a visitor last week, taking in the Elks' clambake. J. M.

Carthage, Mo.—Frank Finn, proprietor of the Carthage Greenhouses, has leased a room in the Boyd building, where he will start a flower store.

Sheridan, Wyo.—A deal is pending whereby the greenhouses of the Best Floral Co., at Main and Burkitt, will be taken over by S. P. Caple and H. A. Loucks, from whom Mr. Best purchased the flower business a year ago. In case the deal goes through, Mr. Best will devote his time to growing vegetables. Mr. Loucks will be superintendent of the plant, but does not expect the business to interfere with his duties as park supervisor.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Everything in the market, except roses, is short of the demand. The brisk call last week kept the market cleaned up on everything at all worth while. The demand for American Beauties is larger than the offerings. Killarney and Taft roses, particularly, as well as other pinks, find an excellent call. White Killarney is not selling nearly so fast, although the stock is fine. Richmond enjoys a fair call. Carnations are much better than they were and prices have advanced. The price of lilies, too, has advanced because of the good call and rather limited offerings. Valley sells well. The good dahlias are cleaning up readily at good prices. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful and include some elegant blooms in white, yellow and pink. Orchids meet with a fair request. Home-grown single violets are an addition to the stock of the wholesalers. Cosmos enjoys a large sale.

Various Notes.

L. H. Kyrk and C. E. Critchell were the first local wholesalers to offer single violets this season.

M. Anderson has opened his pretty new store in the Arcade.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been finding a ready sale for the fine dahlias and carnations from Chas. Pfeiffer's Sons.

Visiting buyers from points near Cincinnati included Walker Gray and Wm. Lodder, Hamilton, O.; Fred Rupp, Lawrenceburg, Ind.; Mrs. Mulford, Lebanon, O., and Warren Huckleberry, North Vernon, Ind.

Other visitors include Ross E. Adgate, representing the McCallum Co., of Cleveland and Pittsburgh; W. H. Moses, Petoskey, Mich., and A. G. Keroes, representing William J. Boas & Co., Philadelphia. C. H. H.

Middletown, Conn.—E. Kent Hubbard's greenhouses at Arawana are undergoing repairs.

Chagrin Falls, O.—Estella U. Haggart, at present in the millinery business, is also building up a business in growing flowers for the Cleveland market. She has already many varieties of Japanese iris, peonies and roses.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Everything in the market, except roses, is short of the demand. The brisk call last week kept the market cleaned up on everything at all worth while. The demand for American Beauties is larger than the offerings. Killarney and Taft roses, particularly, as well as other pinks, find an excellent call. White Killarney is not selling nearly so fast, although the stock is fine. Richmond enjoys a fair call. Carnations are much better than they were and prices have advanced. The price of lilies, too, has advanced because of the good call and rather limited offerings. Valley sells well. The good dahlias are cleaning up readily at good prices. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful and include some elegant blooms in white, yellow and pink. Orchids meet with a fair request. Home-grown single violets are an addition to the stock of the wholesalers. Cosmos enjoys a large sale.

Various Notes.

L. H. Kyrk and C. E. Critchell were the first local wholesalers to offer single violets this season.

M. Anderson has opened his pretty new store in the Arcade.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been finding a ready sale for the fine dahlias and carnations from Chas. Pfeiffer's Sons.

Visiting buyers from points near Cincinnati included Walker Gray and Wm. Lodder, Hamilton, O.; Fred Rupp, Lawrenceburg, Ind.; Mrs. Mulford, Lebanon, O., and Warren Huckleberry, North Vernon, Ind.

Other visitors include Ross E. Adgate, representing the McCallum Co., of Cleveland and Pittsburgh; W. H. Moses, Petoskey, Mich., and A. G. Keroes, representing William J. Boas & Co., Philadelphia. C. H. H.

Middletown, Conn.—E. Kent Hubbard's greenhouses at Arawana are undergoing repairs.

Chagrin Falls, O.—Estella U. Haggart, at present in the millinery business, is also building up a business in growing flowers for the Cleveland market. She has already many varieties of Japanese iris, peonies and roses.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The last week has been an unusually pleasant one. The weather has been above reproach, with the exception of rain the first day or two, and that was welcome. The lawns and pastures are beginning to get green and the outdoor roses are coming into bloom well. There is no frost in sight and as a result the dahlias, which looked a week ago as though they would not bloom at all, are beginning to appear in the windows, though in small numbers and with short stems.

Carnations are here in pretty good numbers, the last week having wrought a change in the situation. Many of them are still too short for anything but design work. The prices are from 2 cents or less, wholesale, for these short ones to 5 cents for the best. Roses also are plentiful. They are bringing from 4 cents for the mixed short stems to 8 cents for good ones. There is a better range of varieties to select from than there has been in this city before. Mrs. Russell continues to make good and all who are growing it are enthusiastic over its free blooming qualities and close resemblance to Beauty. There has been a good Dutch bulb business during the last week or two. Several of the dealers, however, have not yet received their stock.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. reports a good business for last week. They are cutting an average of 1,000 carnations every day and say that they never before had the plants in such good shape. They are also cutting plenty of roses.

Geny Bros. have a new auto delivery car. They had it built to order. They say that it is a great saving of time, as well as a good advertisement. They are cutting plenty of roses and lilies. They had a big business during fair week.

Haury & Sons are having a good business. Their new houses are planted to carnations and greens. They are already cutting some good carnations, though the houses have not been finished over a month.

Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, is in town, looking after the interests of the firm.

R. Hall, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, called on the trade last week.

Always mention the Florists' Review when writing advertisers.

Hit the Bull's Eye and Buy from the Firm that Protects your Interest

Now the time has arrived to stock up your store and greenhouses with the best quality stock the market produces. Every careful florist is turning over page after page of The Review and is anxious to find the ad—what their favored friend, Godfrey Aschmann, has to say. He is the fellow that has his heart in the right spot. They all can depend on him; he always has a smile and protects their interests. Look at that frog in the picture—it means protection (not tariff protection). It means what all florist stores want—Protection to the Florist Trade; retail store keepers' protection.

Important for Florists to consider: Does the selling of plants by department stores benefit the trade? Will it bring prosperity to the florist? Is it right for wholesale growers to sell to department stores? We do not think it is. We raise only first-class stock and, therefore, we protect the trade, and dump nothing into department stores, but sell to the trade only at reasonable prices. The best is the cheapest. There is a certain coterie of wholesale growers who make it a practice to sell cheaper to department stores than to retail florists. Is that right? Won't you open your eyes? How much longer will you keep on dealing with them? Did you ever hear of Godfrey Aschmann selling to department stores?

FIELD CARNATION PLANTS.

I am receiving an extra large number of testimonials as to good results from my last year's stock. This year my stock is even better than last year. Irrigation took the plants through the drouth without injury and they are bright, thrifty, bushy plants now. A Syracuse grower who had some stock this fall says it is doing better than his own stock. A Raleigh, N. C., grower writes, "Send me 440 W. Enchantress; fine, bushy plants like what we got before (Sept. 10)."

FERNS—Continued

FERNS.

Now is the time to buy ferns for your fall trade. I have over 2000 and about half of them are the new Whitmani compacta—the kind that does not revert to the Boston frond. This is a handsomer fern than the old Whitmani. My fern stock is in fine shape and I guarantee, absolutely, to please every buyer. Order your large pot stock now, to be shipped before cold weather.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. Some of many reports: "The pansy plants all look like good, healthy, stocky plants, and we feel will come up to all expectations." Henry J. Haas & Son, Newport, R. I. "I would like to get 4000 or 5000 of your pansy plants. I saw a house of pansies from your stock last winter and they were the finest I ever saw." Harry W. Stewart, Rhinebeck, N. Y. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery, by express in good condition guaranteed. Cash.

PEONIES.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

RELATIVE NUMBER OF FLOWS.

Seeing so many good things in The Review in regard to heating greenhouses, I thought I would ask a question with reference to my house, which is 16x100. At present the house is piped with three 2-inch flows and three 2-inch returns. In other words, I installed one return for each flow, thinking that the water would return to the boiler much warmer than if only one flow were used to serve the returns. But, after reading your advice, I see you suggest the use of one flow for several returns. I may say I have not had satisfactory results, but I have blamed the position of the boiler, as it was not low enough; so I lowered it this fall. I am located in New York state.

B. F. S.

There is no particular objection to using only one return for each flow pipe, but, on the other hand, experience has shown that, within certain limits, it is possible to use several returns upon one flow pipe. In the case of a house 100 feet in length, however, I would not, under ordinary conditions, use more than two 2-inch returns for a 2-inch flow.

It has also been found that the circulation can be improved by carrying the flow pipes overhead, or at least upon the eave plates, especially when the boiler stands at or near the surface of the ground. For this reason I recommend the use of 2½-inch pipe for the flow pipes in houses 100 feet in length or longer, using only as many flows as are needed to supply the returns. Thus, in a house 16x100 feet, without glass in the side walls, I would use two 2½-inch flow pipes overhead, and six 2-inch pipes on the walls, or under the

In case 2-inch pipes are used for both flows and returns, with a return for each flow, ten pipes should be used for 50 degrees and twelve for 60 degrees. With such piping, however, if the flow pipes were overhead the number would not only be objectionable but the pro-

Fooling Fall

Winter's coming!

Won't be long, now, before you'll be turning on steam in earnest. Many of you have already.

And as soon as that steam hits those pipes—pipes that have lain idle all summer—rust-holes, splits and joint-leaks will put in their appearance throughout your heating system.

The Emergency Pipe Clamp was made for just such trouble.

Handy, easily applied and permanent, it will save you from tearing out pipe this fall.

Just slap a bit of gasket-rubber (we furnish it) over the leak, apply the clamp with an ordinary wrench—and forget it. It'll hold for good.

We hope you'll send us a postal—we like to mail catalogues.

portion of overhead radiation would be larger than is desirable; hence I prefer to use 2½-inch flow pipes and plan to have each flow pipe carry about 300 square feet of radiation in the returns. Not only should the flow pipes be overhead, but, especially if the boiler is above the floor level, the returns should be carried as high as possible.

THREE PENNSYLVANIA HOUSES.

This summer I have built three greenhouses and I should like to know about the heating of them. I shall use hot water and the top of the boiler will be one foot below the floor of the houses. House No. 1 is 26x56, running north and south. It has 4-foot, boarded side walls and the two gable ends are glass from the 4-foot wall up. The height to the ridge pole is ten feet. House No. 2 is 21x56, with the other dimensions the same as in No. 1. The third house is 10x56 and is to be used for propagating. The height to the ridge pole is eight feet. The houses are open between and have ground beds. The outside walls are covered with tar paper. The boiler will be at the north end. I desire a temperature of 50 degrees at night in zero weather. My crops are sweet peas and chrysanthemums. I wish to use 2-inch pipes for flows and 1-inch for returns. The ground has a 2-foot fall to the boiler.

C. B. S.

To heat the houses described to 50 degrees, using 2-inch pipe for flows and 1-inch pipe for returns, three flows and sixteen returns will be required in house No. 1 and three flows and thirteen returns in house No. 2. However, if I were to indicate the piping to be used, I would suggest three 2½-inch flows and eight 2-inch returns for the former and two flows and eight returns for the latter house. For the propagating house use two 2-inch flow pipes and eight 1-inch returns, or use one 2½-inch flow and four or five 2-inch returns.

BOILER AND SMOKESTACK.

I have a fire-box boiler that is twelve feet long and thirty-six inches in diameter and contains thirty-six 3-inch flues. The fire-box is 30x54 inches and the fire space is thirty inches high. What size of stack will be required? The outlet for the stack is eighteen inches wide; can I reduce this to a 15-inch stack and have plenty of draft? The boiler is to be used for hot water. Kindly inform me how many square feet of glass it will heat, in this Kentucky climate.
V. H. T.

A stack fifteen inches in diameter can be used with the boiler described, and if the stack is forty feet high, the boiler should be able to handle 3,000 square feet of radiation. Just how much glass can be heated with this amount of pipe will depend upon the temperature desired, but it will be about 10,000 square feet if 60 degrees is required, or as much as 13,000 square feet provided 50 degrees will answer.

In case more or less than this amount of glass is to be heated, a proportionate increase or decrease of the height and size of the stack, to the extent of twenty-five per cent, may be made.

VIRGINIA VEGETABLE HOUSES.

I have been in the business of growing early tomato, cabbage, pepper and other plants and I intend this fall to build a greenhouse, 20x50 feet. I shall be pleased if you will inform me as to the proper size and horse-power of a boiler to heat two houses, each 20x50, with hot water. It is only once in four or five years that the outside temperature here gets down to 10 degrees below zero.
M. G. G.

To heat two houses, 20x50 feet, to 60 degrees in zero weather will require about 600 square feet of radiating surface, and a boiler with that rating should answer in the climate of eastern Virginia. If a steam boiler is used it should have a rating of eight or ten horse-power, but any good boiler with a grate twenty-four inches in diameter would do the work.

To heat each house, run a 2½-inch flow pipe about two feet below the ridge and use eight 2-inch pipes under the

QUICKEST WATER HEATER IN THE WORLD

The immense amount of direct self-cleaning heating surface, the thin vertical water ways and the long effective fire travel, cause the Kroeschell type of boiler construction to heat water quicker than any other form of boiler.

Expressions From Men Who Know Boilers

THE LEADING GROWER IN VERMONT.

I have the Kroeschell Boiler six years; it is heating 17,000 sq. ft. glass. No other but a Plate Boiler for me.

(Signed) H. M. TOTMAN,

ONE OF BOSTON'S WELL KNOWN GROWERS.

The Kroeschell has taken the place of four cast iron boilers at a big saving in coal. We are using it now for the fifth year. The longer we use it the better we like it.

(Signed) A. B. KNOWLTON,
NORTH GRAFTON, MASS.

THE PLANT KING OF THE WEST.

I have used Kroeschell Boilers ever since I built my first greenhouse. They have always given me the very best satisfaction and I believe them as good boilers as money can buy.

(Signed) F. OECHSLIN,
CHICAGO, ILL.

OHIO'S CELEBRATED CYCLAMEN SPECIALIST.

After using your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler I came to the conclusion that had I to install more boilers it would be the Kroeschell and no other. It really is a pleasure to heat, no trouble to get the desired heat in a very short time.

(Signed) CHRIST. WINTERICH, DEFIANCE, OHIO.

THE QUALITY PLACE OF BOSTON.

Regarding the Kroeschell it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.

(Signed) WM. W. EDGAR CO.,
WAVERLEY, MASS.

A BIG MAN IN THE FLORICULTURAL WORLD.

The Kroeschell Boiler I installed last year usually runs from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. without attention. I do not have the least trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. The boiler has given entire satisfaction.

The Kroeschell is the best boiler we have ever handled.

A FAMOUS ILLINOIS ROSE RANGE.

In speaking of the Kroeschell Boiler as an economical greenhouse boiler I cannot say too much. Personally I have had the pleasure or misfortune to fire nearly every make of G. H. Boiler on the market and I can safely say the Kroeschell is the best of them all.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST MUSHROOM PLANT.

We spent $100,000 in building and equipping the largest modern mushroom plant in the world. We purchased in every instance the best of everything we could get, and the fact that we installed a Kroeschell Boiler to furnish our heat is sufficient evidence of our opinion of same.

Since installing this boiler and operating it we have never had any reason to change our opinion.

A WELL KNOWN CARNATION PRIZE WINNER

The carnation range of Mr. Nic Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, consists of nearly 70,000 sq. ft. glass and the water plant is heated by a No. 14 and No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler and Kroeschell Generator. The product of the plant is known throughout the West for its fine quality. Mr. Z. has used different kinds of boilers. As for the Kroeschell, he says: "I think the Kroeschell Boilers are the best boilers a florist can buy."

BUILT FOR BEGINNERS

Wilks Boilers are ideal for the man who owns a small greenhouse, who does his own firing and needs a boiler that can be relied on at all times.

Wilks Boilers are self-feeding. Fill the magazine with fuel in the evening and an even, continuous fire will be maintained until morning without any attention.

Wilks Self-feeding Hot Water Boilers

Eden, N. Y., Feb. 26, 1908.

Dear Sirs:—In regard to that Heater I bought of you last Fall, I am running it now and it works fine. Am more than pleased with it so far. My neighbors are in trouble with their Heaters. They are surprised that my Heater works so good. They are thinking of getting one like mine this Fall. If you will be so kind and send them your new catalogue and prices and I will try and have them buy the S. Wilks Heater.

Yours truly,
D. M. HENRY.

Mr. Henry purchased another WILKS boiler for himself in 1908 and last year ordered two more for neighbors of his.

"Superior to them all"
is the verdict of all who use the SUPERIOR STANDARD.

MADE IN 9 SIZES

The SUPERIOR STANDARD is designed specially for greenhouse work after a close study of what was needed. It is easily cleaned, although it has more flues than any other boiler, but—more flues give more heat; more flues require less fuel; the water heats quicker and hotter, because the volume of water heated by each flue is smaller.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

Stock of all kinds is quite scarce, due undoubtedly to the dull, cloudy weather. Asters are about at an end and all garden flowers are becoming scarce. Carnations are getting better right along, but the supply is small. The supply of chrysanthemums is increasing considerably, but there are few yellows. Roses of all kinds are good at present. Cattleyas are good and are coming into the market in greater quantities. Violets are selling well now, and so are lilies of the valley. Autumn leaves are seen in the various stores and they make a pretty background for chrysanthemums and other fall flowers. Sprays of the leaves are selling at a fair price. Ferns and asparagus are plentiful just now. Trade is much improved; there is a good deal of funeral work and a few weddings.

Various Notes.

Miss Ella May Mansfield spent last Sunday in Boston.

Meacham & Hassell have had their new windows tiled in white and have an attractive display.

James Morrison is back at work after his accident and is again happy among the violets in Agawam.

William Schlatter & Son are exhibiting some new Japanese artificial flowers and novelties in their display window.

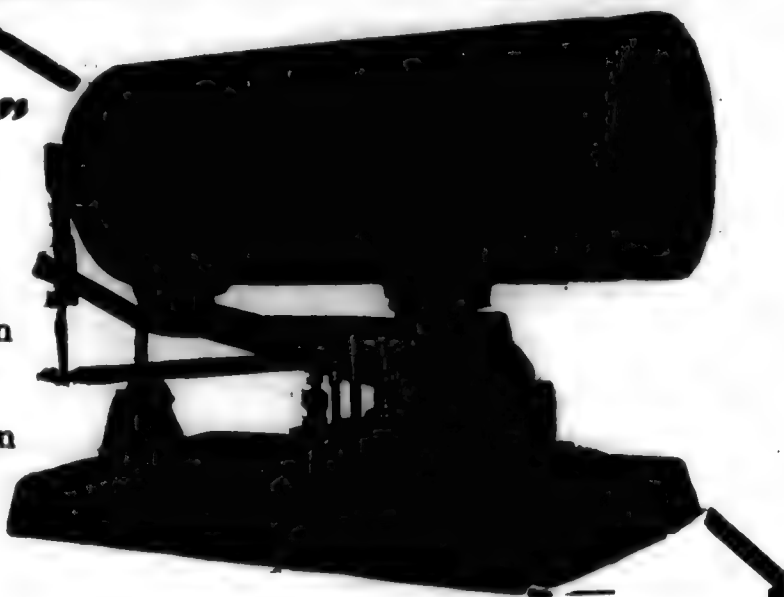

N. F. Higgins has a new shipment of birds. His greenhouses have been painted inside and outside and have been renovated generally. He is growing good pink mums.

The Springfield Horticultural Society held its annual dahlia show September 30 and October 1. Fruits, flowers and vegetables in abundance were on display. The fruit and vegetable show was under the auspices of the Hampden County Improvement League. Some beautiful dahlias were shown this year and there were many varieties of other

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The Market.

Business is remarkably good; in fact, it has never been better at this time of the year, there being no difficulty whatever in selling all that is grown. Early chrysanthemums were rather a disappointment, but the middle of the next week will see some good stock on the market. Roses are better than they have been for many months, and the new carnations are showing less of a sleepy tendency than during the last three or four seasons.

At the Dale Estate.

At the Dale Estate orchids are being cut in large quantities, and the new range of violets, two and one-half acres in extent, is yielding splendid blooms and big cuts daily. The demand for valley is astonishing, pressing inquiries having recently been received from New York, Boston, Rochester and other points in the United States for the fine grade that has already gained this firm its high reputation as a producer of valley.

A large cement bulb house, about 150x200 feet, is in the course of erection and the bulbs now arriving will receive somewhat better treatment this winter than has hitherto been the case. The large boilers are now being installed in the new violet section, and if the weather keeps as mild as it is at present, the delay will not cause anything to suffer after all.

On the retirement of the present member for Peel, owing to the appointment of that gentleman to another government position, there will probably be a by-election in the near future. Two or three candidates have already allowed their names to appear, but the Conservative party has been quite solicitous that Thomas W. Duggan, the present mayor of the town, should stand. Mr. Duggan is well known as the managing executor of the Dale Estate, and if he decides to go in for political honors, it will keep the Liberals busy to find a man more worthy to represent this constituency in the House of Assembly. Florists' Club Visits Growers.

Forty florists with their wives and families enjoyed a trip to Bryan, Wauseon and Archbold Sunday, September 28, under the auspices of the Toledo Florists' Club.

The party left the interurban station in a chartered car at 9:15 o'clock. At Bryan the greenhouses of C. Wonsettler were visited and after dinner Mr. Wonsettler furnished touring cars for a trip about the town.

On the return trip the car was stopped at Archbold, where Carl Baer, the carnation specialist, is located. The members of the club were much interested in his methods. At Wauseon the Toledoans were entertained by Charles Jordan.

Among those who made the trip were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heintz, Mr. and Mrs. George Bayer, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lehmann, Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Schiller, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Kuhnke, Max Spanner, W. T. Phillips, George B. Schramm, Fred W. Ritter, C. L. Hurd, I. N. Keller, Will Ritter, W. S. Eakins, Arthur Raitz, Frank H. Lacher, A. L. At last an inexpensive greenhouse

This greenhouse is 11 x 12 feet, glazed top and sides, with the famous Sunlight Double Glass Sash. 8 Standard Sash (3x6 ft.) form the roof and 8 "Pony" Sash (34 1/2 x 38 1/2 in.) form the sides.

The double glass principle

The Double Glass principle with the 3/8" air space between the two layers of glass make it seldom necessary to heat this greenhouse even in the coldest weather.

It is shipped ready-made in sections.

The sash are easily removable to use in season on hot-beds and cold-frames. Thus the sash do double duty—first on a greenhouse work room in which seed are sprouted and the tiny plants set out in flats, and then, when needed, on the hot-beds or cold-frames outside.

Horticultural Society Show.

The annual fall exhibition of the Newport Horticultural Society was the biggest and best seen in this city in many seasons. The big hall was completely filled with the pick of garden and greenhouse products and large numbers of florists from out of the city were in attendance to view the excellent showing. Among the largest prize winners was R. Livingston Beeckman, John A. Urquhart, gardener, who carried off the majority of the awards for roses, ferns, fruits and vegetables. Another prominent exhibitor was Vincent Astor, James Boyd, gardener, whose gardenias were the chief prize-winners in their class. Sisson & Thurston, of this city, and W. D. Hathaway, of New Bedford, swept all the prizes in the various dahlia classes.

There was keen competition for the silver and bronze medals offered for the most meritorious exhibits in the show. These were offered as additional prizes for plants, as novelties, for superior cultivation, or for arrangements. The judges finally awarded the silver medal to a handsome pot of Adiantum Farleyense gloriosa, a new variety of Farleyense fern with large leaves and perfect cuttings, exhibited by Mr. Beeckman, the bronze medal to several pots of ivy exhibited by Mrs. Hamilton Twombly, Alexander Fraser, gardener, from the greenhouses at Vineland. Arthur Griffin, of Woburn, Mass., was given a certificate of merit for Gloriosa Rothschildiana hybrids; W. D. Hathaway for a seedling dahlia, Miss Jennie P. Hathaway; John Lewis Childs for an exhibit of gladioli, and Mrs. T. O. Richardson, James Robertson, gardener, for an exhibit of a new seedling dahlia, Newport Jewel.

Various Notes.

V. A. Vanicek is building an addition, 12x14 feet, to his Vernon avenue residence at Middletown, which will be used as an office. An artesian well has been sunk at the Vanicek nurseries.

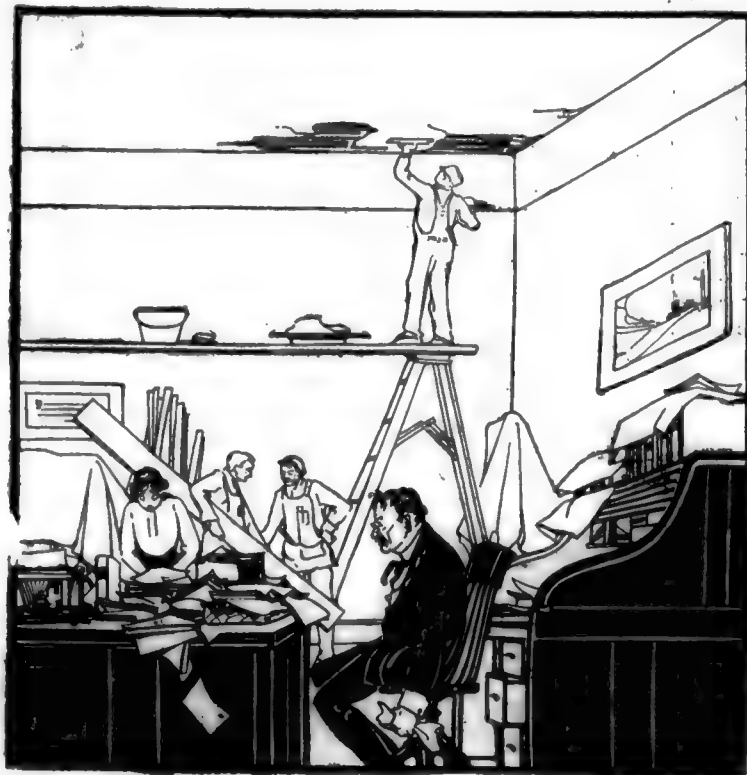

A. T. Bunyard has closed his Newport season and returned with his family to New York for the winter.

John B. Urquhart has sold a lot on Coggeshall avenue to Herbert E. Moore.

Duncan McLean has been granted a permit to build an addition to the greenhouses at Swanhurst, on Bellevue avenue. It is to be 8x46 feet.

John Gibson was a business visitor in Boston last week. W. H. M.

Findley, O.—George Palmer, who has been associated with J. J. Waaland in the firm of Waaland & Co., has purchased full interest in the establishment. Mr. Waaland expects to go into business in another city.

A Frank Statement

HAVE YOU ever tried to work in your office when the masons were fixing the ceiling, the carpenters repairing the floor, and your stenographer was pawing over the papers on your desk trying to find a "lost, strayed or stolen" bill?

If you have, you know exactly what a tremendous handicap our Irvington factory has been working under all this summer. We simply had to double the size of our factory. You growers made us do it because you treated us so liberally with your orders.

To carry on our usual business, take care of this year's increase, and have first one department and then another of the factory all torn up or shifted about, has been a problem which makes trying to work in your upset office look like a circle with the rim knocked off.

Very naturally some of our orders have been a bit delayed. Most of our customers have been mighty nice about it; they recognize that everything was not always run on schedule time in their own business.

From now on, however, things will run along smoothly and deliveries will be made with a promptness that will be particularly pleasing to you all. Send in your orders or have one of our men come to see you. You can't afford not to have L. & B. estimate on any greenhouse job you may have—not alone as to figures but to have the knowledge that behind those figures stands the L. & B. guarantee.

CYPRESS BY TEST. SUBSTITUTES BY TALK.

Is there value to you in an endurance test of 45 years in greenhouse sash? It is reported to us that sash made of heart Cypress by a prominent greenhouse contractor in Chicago and placed in position in a greenhouse at Des Plaines, Ill., in 1868, are still doing service.

Jacob Fries, Bethlehem, Pa., has Cypress sash that have stood the racket for 30 years and are still on the job. And these are not isolated cases—they represent no more than a fair test of "The Wood Eternal" for greenhouse use.

It will serve you as well and save you the nuisance and expense of repairs and replacements.

The argument backed by such facts cannot be answered by mere talk. Ask the manufacturer or contractor who wants to give you a "substitute" for Cypress to cite you to an endurance test of 30 or 45 years to the credit of the so-called "substitute."

That is no more than a fair precaution on your part—good, ordinary business sense.

If he would meet the Cypress record with more talk, and no test, then there's a "nigger in that wood-pile." You know you would better pass up the "substitute" and stick to the real article, which is Cypress.

"PECKY" CYPRESS. You greenhouse men know how common it looks and how uncommon it lasts. The U. S. Govt. Rept. (Forest Service Bul. 95) says—"That the disease (which produces the 'peck') has been a long time preying upon Cypress timber is apparent from an examination of Cypress logs dug from alluvial deposits many feet below the present level of the Gulf of Mexico. Some of that prehistoric timber is pecky, though it has been buried during a period estimated at no less than 30,000 years. . . . The effect of the disease (known as 'Pecky') . . . is believed to act as a preservative . . . and to hinder decay."

Is 30,000 years' "hindering of decay" long enough for YOUR greenhouse?

There is no known record of rotten "Pecky." Use nothing else for benches and bench standards. It is cheap, too.

A postal will do, a letter is better—either brings a booklet or two from the famous CYPRESS Pocket Library (a strictly authoritative reference work). Vol. 3 is all about "GREENHOUSES." It is FREE. Send for it. Also ask for Vol. 2, on "Pecky"—a money-saver. Take no hearsay. GET THE FACTS. Then ACT. Vol. 4 is the Barn Book; Vol. 8 is the Carpentry Book; Vol. 20 is "All Farm Needs Book"; Vol. 36 is the "Carpentry Book," in which a dozen hard jobs of carpentry are made easy, and Vol. 37 is the Big, New Silo Book. All contain plans for building and are profusely illustrated.

WE HAVE A STRONG TALKING POINT, to secure your business— Direct From the Grower

Not a dealer but will acknowledge that it is better than if they pass through a wholesale house. Every hour saved—every handling saved—is a decided advantage and of real value.

Here there is but one handling from the time they are cut till they are shipped direct to you. From here, if you are within a thousand miles, you can get them the next day after they are cut, fresh and crisp, with all their fragrance and perfect condition retained. Besides, prices are less, which you can easily see by the list.

We have wonderful Beauties this year.

If you are not too far away it really would pay you to come here and see them. A lot of florists have been here recently, and they all pronounce them the finest they have ever seen. Forty thousand of them in perfect health, with from two to eight stems to a plant.

A lot of other interesting things here to see. Irish Fire Flame, the new rose—Wards, Sunburst, Richmond and Killarney that are fine, besides a lot of new varieties of roses, some in small lots but very beautiful.

Enormous big Mums, including the wonderful Wm. Turner. Fine Carnations, including some of the new kinds.

A visit here is not alone interesting, but may prove profitable to you.

WAX AND WIFE.

The name of Wax is well and widely known as connected with retail trade circles in Boston, but this is thought to be the first time a Wax portrait has appeared in print. Martin Wax has been camera shy and it probably is due to the new Mrs. Wax that The Review has the present opportunity of reproducing their portraits, made on board the S. S. Kaiser Wilhelm II while on their way home from their honeymoon in Europe.

AN ACTOR'S LAURELS.

The accompanying illustration is of a wreath made by the Hollywood Gardens for a rather unique celebration. It was presented to the actor, William Faversham, playing at the Moore theater, Seattle, by the members of his company on the occasion of the anniversary of his appearance as Mark Antony in Shakespeare's play of "Julius Caesar."* It bore the following inscription: "1912—October 7—1913. On the occasion of the first anniversary of his appearance as Mark Antony, with the hearty good wishes of co-workers and grateful appreciation of uniform kindness, courtesy and good fellowship." The Roman wreath surrounding the actor's portrait is made of magnolia leaves, maple foliage being used as decoration. The whole piece was artistically done and was most attractive in the window of the Hollywood Gardens, where it was shown.

Wax and Wife.

HALLOWE'EN IS COMING.

The Florist Should Profit Thereby.

It is not long now until October 31, when goblins, witches and small boys gather in the evening to torment human beings. Already clubs and societies are planning dances and socials, and young folks and old are preparing for parties, at which they will bring back for a night the good, old, frolicking times of the harvest season on the farm. When other people are having good times, the florist, also, should get some pleasure—and profit—from this season. He should reap from this festive evening something besides stolen flowers, broken glass and shattered nerves. The time to prepare for this is now. The florist should bring to the attention of the public the fact that he is the one to supply the decorations, etc., for this occasion.

The easiest, simplest and most effective way to bring this about is through the medium of a well decorated window. A great many florists found out this summer what an important asset in their business the window decoration is, when they began to try out the suggestions given them on this subject in the two articles in The Review. Numbers found that for initial cost the returns from this form of advertising were probably larger than those from any other form the average retailer could use.

Hallowe'en Suggests Features.

Now we have another chance to try out this scheme and the occasion gives many suggestions for the decoration to be used. First of all, the season of the year is autumn and harvest time, and the brilliant colors of nature can be reproduced in the background of a florist's window with ease and at slight cost to him. There are always plenty of places to get boughs of autumn foliage, cornstalks are obtained comparatively easily and other bits of nature's work can be picked up by one florist or another. In this day of prepared foliages and of skillful imitations of nature's handiwork, a florist can supply from his stock the materials for an appropriate background. Of course, every florist strives for something new, something unique, and from the mere suggestion each will undoubtedly hit upon something novel that he can develop from his peculiar resources.

The background can be beautiful in itself, but the striking quality—the "punch," as the advertising man calls it—rests in the center figure or idea presented. Here is where the big possibilities of the Hallowe'en season come in. Witches, goblins, scarecrows with pumpkin heads, and all the long list of grotesque figures that can be quickly and easily constructed, yet need not be exquisite works of art to draw people's attention, are available for a window display of this season of the year.

Motion Features Easy.

The eternal drawing card, motion, can be easily worked into the decoration for this season. Its value every window-decorating florist has long ago found to be inestimable in comparison with scenes from still life. For a first-rate window—in fact, for several first-rate windows, the only device needed to produce motion is the motor that runs the electric fan in hot weather. Of course, this must be put on the lowest speed possible for this work.

For one window display a tent of cornstalks with a dim interior and a witch at the entrance in the act of stirring a pot, contents unknown and out of sight, is not a difficult undertaking. The witch may be substituted with a scarecrow, if desired. In either case the shape of the body need not call for any particular pains, for a witch is an unholy thing and a scarecrow an unsightly thing. For a head a small pumpkin may be used if that is preferred. But in that choice do not use a large, unwieldy pumpkin that bears no more resemblance to a head than it does to a barrel, but select a small one that is the size of a large man's head and you will improve the looks of your figure many times. Use some care in the carving of features, too; a series of three-cornered holes bears but a slight resemblance to a human face, and it takes the vivid imagination of a small boy to discover that. A wonderful likeness, however, may be obtained if one uses time and care.

A Touch of the Supernatural.

The rod which the figure uses to stir the mysterious contents of the pot is, of course, not moved by the arm of the figure, but it, instead, moves the arm. The small electric motor, on its lowest speed, which must be further reduced by the application of friction, is inside the pot, or, if you choose, the pot may have no bottom. The rod is fastened to a point of the circumference of a wooden wheel turned by the motor. The hand of the witch, well hidden by the flowing black draperies of her costume, is then is that of a group of weird features shining out of the darkness, but when the lights in the window are switched on and those in the heads switched off, there is no trace of the strange faces. doesn't show. Nothing funereal about it. Nevertheless, it looked good to the people down here in the land of potatoes, and if compliments were money, we'd be worth a million. We also took all the blue ribbons."

TELL 'EM IT'S NET.

When an order is sent to a retail florist in another city, to be filled there, the sender should see to it that he makes his wants understood. Ordinarily as much latitude as possible is allowed the man who is to fill the order—it isn't wise to specify orchids or long Beauties on an order sent to a small town for rush delivery; the country florist may not have the stock and he should, if possible, be given authority to send something else instead.

But the bulk of the orders still are for funeral flowers and the most important thing is to specify the price. It should always be stated as so many dollars, "net." If the word is omitted the florist who receives the order does not know whether or not he is to allow the customary trade discount of twenty per cent from the price mentioned. When he gets a wire that says "send a wreath at $4 net," he knows he is to receive $4, not $3.20 and that he is expected to deliver a wreath that he ordinarily would charge $5 for at retail.

AGAIN A PRIZE-WINNING CAR.

In this season of automobile parades there comes from nearly every parade the news of a florist's car taking the prize. The wide variation in the styles of decoration used, no two designs being at all the same, shows the great scope in this field of decorative art. A new idea is presented by the car entered by Knoble Bros., of Cleveland, O., in the automobile parade there. In the class of steam and gas cars, 110-inch wheel base and under, this car took first prize.

The decoration represented the coronation carriage of George III. It was built on the new chassis of a White car, without a body on it. An automobile top company built a rough frame covered with light canvas and painted yellow. This was covered with green prepared oak foliage and 1,500 artificial attached to the upper end of the rod and drawn around and around, just as if it were stirring.

Put in a touch of the supernatural, if you wish, and, instead of attaching the witch's hand to the rod, place in the hand a wand for the witch to hold, or wave, over the rod, which, by black magic, stirs on and on without a guiding hand. This will prove a puzzle which some of the spectators who crowd around your window will solve and some will not. In either case the person has thought about it, and will remember it and will remember you and your florists' store. Perhaps they will tell another of the clever window, as in all probability they will, and your name and fame and your florists' business all will grow.

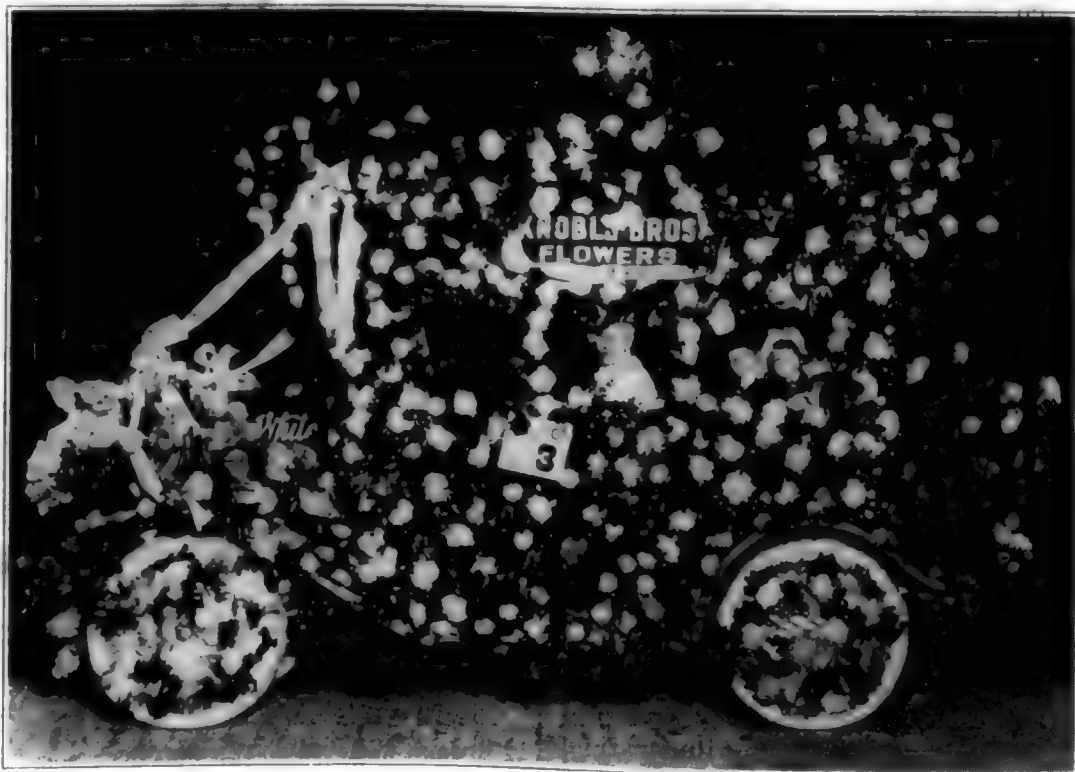

An Effective Night Window.

Another window, designed especially for display at night, has for its main feature a puzzle, although it is perhaps not a hard one. The effectiveness of the window depends to a great extent on the beauty of the arrangement of a screen of autumn foliage, cornstalks, flowers, etc., across the entire window, preferably in a semicircular form. In this display there is a chance to work in some fine decorations with yellow and pink mums, especially the former. If carried out in good style, this window should be good enough to draw some comment in the daytime, but its strength lies in the darkness of night. Behind the screen, arranged so that they can be seen from neither inside nor outside, is a group, three or four, of pumpkins, which are carved with various expressions, one laughing, another grouchy looking, and so on, depending mainly on your expert carver. In each of these heads is an electric light which is turned on as the lights in the window are turned off. With care it is possible to arrange the apertures through which the light shines so that they are not obstructed by anything on the screen which hides the pumpkins. The effect minute, the mystery is presented with a sufficient interval to allow the spectators to note the beauty of your screen. This will draw their attention to your flowers and reward you with sales.

WHAT TAKES PRIZES.

No one can prophesy what will take prizes. The only sure definition is that it is the best in the class in which it is entered. There can be no common criterion for all shows and, therefore, none for all prize-winners. The accompanying illustration shows the exhibit of Newell's, florists and milliners of Houlton, Me., which took the prize at the Houlton fair this year. A. E. Newell's opinion of it, expressed in his own words, is: "Wouldn't your critics have a hallelujah time if they were invited to criticise? We fully realize there is only one thing quite right and that yellow chrysanthemums. At each corner and at the center of the top were clusters of artificial yellow roses. Two large gold baskets of autumn-tinted hydrangeas tied with yellow ribbon were fastened on the front fenders. The cross bars holding the head lights were wound with yellow cheesecloth, and to them were tied large bunches of hydrangeas. The entire inside of the car was trimmed with yellow cheesecloth.

The car was wired for electric lights, of which there were 165 four candle-power lights, and ten large twenty-one candle-power lights at the prominent outside points and also inside, to throw light on the four occupants, two dressed as court attendants and two children as the bride and groom. Over the door was the name of the decorators in an illuminated sign. When the lights were all on the car made a striking appearance.

ALBERT STEIN'S FALL OPENING.

A novel way of bringing florists' wares before the public was employed recently by Albert O. Stein, a San Francisco florist. A three-day autumn opening, something on the order of those of the department stores, but carried out in a more lavish way, was the feature. The store was specially decorated, as can be seen in the illustration, and the flowers were grouped so as to make each most effective. Each day Mr. Stein featured a different flower, the first day mums, the second day basket arrangements of roses and the third shower bouquets. Each day, too, a different dinner decoration was displayed and impressed upon the ladies, to whom tea was served in the afternoons. To each visitor was given a corsage of violets. The great value of the plan lay its effectiveness in awakening again the interest of the patrons in flowers and showing to them the present stock and fashions.

FLORIST SHOWS THE WAY.

"Nothing of the kind has ever been attempted here before," was the reason given by C. C. Warburton for the praise accorded his decorated truck in the industrial parade at Battle Creek, Mich., which appears in the illustration. All along the line of march the florist's float drew the attention, comment and applause of the spectators. There was some good decorating shown in the parade, but none came near the lavishness and beauty of the florist's handiwork.

The body and wheels of the truck, which on ordinary days is part of Mr. Warburton's delivery service, were covered with oak leaves, with white roses in front. The platform in the rear, 6x8 feet, was bordered with Sprengeri plants. Next came a row of Beute Poitevine geraniums and Asparagus plumosus, and palms filled the center. A large hanging basket of Boston ferns hung from the center of the rear platform. A 12-inch pot of Sprengeri covered the hood, and two doves held the leading ribbons. Two conspicuous pennants acquainted the spectators of the author of the masterpiece.

A TRUE STORY.

K. G. Merrill, advertising manager for James McCrea & Co., Chicago, is sending steam fitters a neatly printed little circular carrying a story that he guarantees to be from life, as follows:

"Not long ago—perhaps a week or two—I was seated at my desk when an alert young man whose complexion bespoke an outdoor life appeared at the office rail. He was a florist; a prosperous one.

"'Good morning,' I said. 'How are you today?' Such being the conventional greeting at our office.

"'Fine,' said he (he spoke with a slightly foreign accent—pleasant but not exactly definable). 'I turned on hot water yesterday in my greenhouse and eight leaks have come there!'

"His clear blue eyes clouded a moment, then sparkled. 'But then, I suppose I am lucky to live so near. I come to you only thirty miles to get some clamps and fix them very quick, yes? I see lots of florists have your clamps. They are very fine. I see your advertisement in the paper*—we all read florists' paper. Could not get along without!'

"Then he got down to business. 'Now, I want six of the 1-inch, three 1¼-inch and three 1½-inch. Fifty-three-six? A little high, yes, but much worth the money.' He chuckled deeply—held out his hand. 'Well, good-bye sir; thank you—a catalogue!—thank you—good-bye!'

"With that he was off. And I sat for a few moments thinking—thinking something along these lines: 'Why is it, that that honest chap had to come clear to Chicago—thirty miles—for his Emergency Pipe Clamps? Why didn't his local supply man have them in stock, or, if he had them, why didn't the florist know it?'

"An interesting problem. We shall be more than glad to talk with anyone who feels that some attractive circulars will help him to solve it."

EVANS WINS PATENT CASE.

October 10, in the District Court of United States for the District of Indiana, at Indianapolis, a decree was entered in favor of John A. Evans, of Richmond, against James E. Jones, of the same city, which, unless appeal is taken within thirty days, brings to a close a long and hotly contested legal battle involving the right to manufacture, sell and use a ventilator arm that has found a place in many hundreds of greenhouses. The case was started more than two years ago.

The decree is as follows:

This cause having come on to be heard, upon the pleadings and proofs filed on behalf of both parties, and after hearing counsel for complainant and counsel for defendant, it is hereby ordered, adjudged and decreed as follows:

1. That Letters Patent of the United States issued to John A. Evans, of Richmond, Indiana, as the assignee of Newton R. Evans, on the 20th day of March, 1906, and numbered 815,914, for improvements in Window Lifters are good and valid in law, particularly as to claims 1, 4, 5 and 6 thereof, and that the said John A. Evans, the complainant herein, is the owner of said Letters Patent.

2. That the defendant, James E. Jones, has infringed upon the said Letters Patent, and particularly claims 1, 4, 5 and 6 thereof.

3. That the complainant do recover of the defendant the profits, gains, and advantages which the said defendant has derived, received or made since March 20, 1906, by reason of said infringement, and that the complainant do recover of the said defendant any and all damages which the complainant has sustained since said date, or shall sustain by reason of said infringement by the said defendant.

4. And it is hereby referred to the Master of this Court, who is hereby appointed to take and state the account of said gains, profits and advantages, and assess such damages and to report thereon with all convenient speed; and the defendant, his agents, officers, attorneys, clerks, servants, workmen and all in privity with him are hereby directed and required to attend before said Master from time to time as required, and to produce before him such books, papers, vouchers and documents, and to submit to such oral examination as the Master may require.

5. That a perpetual injunction issue out of and under the seal of this Court, directed to the said defendant, his agents, servants, workmen, attorneys, clerks, and any and all persons acting by, through or under the authority of, or in privity with, the defendant, enjoining and restraining them, and each of them, from directly or indirectly making or causing to be made, using or causing to be used, or vending to others to be used, in any manner, any devices containing, embodying or employing the invention covered by said Letters Patent and particularly claimed in claims 1, 4, 5 and 6 thereof, or from infringing upon or violating the said Letters Patent in any way whatsoever.

6. That the complainant do recover of the defendant his costs and disbursements of this suit to be taxed and that the question of increase of damages and all other questions be reserved until the coming in of the Master's report.

The device covered by the patent the court has pronounced valid is known in the trade as the Twentieth Century Arm. Stripped of its legal verbiage, the decision gives Mr. Evans the right to manufacture and sell the device, enjoins the defendant from so doing and provides for the determination of damages and costs to be paid the plaintiff by the defendant.

One of the interesting features of the case was that when it came up October 10 Mr. Evans and his attorney had the demonstration model that has been seen at so many conventions set up in court to illustrate the argument.

down into the plant slightly, but never unless the plant is bushy and can stand the loss of a few breaks. Varieties differ somewhat in the number of joints that should be left for the next crop, but you will soon learn to leave enough joints to insure a goodly number of breaks and to keep your plants from becoming straggly. Do not cut high with the idea that a large number of joints left on one or two stems will produce a bushy plant. It requires a series of toppings to produce that kind of stock.

A. F. J. B.

AVERAGE NUMBER OF BLOOMS.

What would you say would be an average cut from a carnation plant beginning to bloom October 1, and left in the bench till May 31, a period of eight months?

L. G. S. & F. C.

If you have nice, bushy plants, bearing eight to twelve shoots, and if you start with a fair cut October 1, you ought to be able to cut an average of eighteen blooms per plant by May 31. In making that estimate, Enchantress is taken as an example. If you go beyond that number, you are exceeding the average. If you fall below fifteen, you are falling short of what you should get.

A. F. J. B.

ENCHANTRESS LOSING VITALITY.

I am sending you under separate cover three carnation plants that are diseased. Please let me know what is wrong and suggest a remedy, if there is any. They are in stock which we got from the east about two seasons ago. We found six such plants in benching 421 Enchantress. As we have never been troubled with anything of the kind before, we are anxious to know what is wrong.

R. F. R.

The specimens forwarded do not show any signs of disease, but it is a trouble which I have seen a number of times within the last three seasons. I do not know what causes it and can only suggest selection of the cuttings for propagating. It becomes more and more apparent each season that, unless the trade adopts stringent measures in the propagation of Enchantress, a few years will see its finish. A limited number of high-class growers, who habitually select their cuttings carefully, still have this grand variety practically as good as it ever was, but on the majority of places you will find the stock much reduced in vitality as a result of carelessness in propagating.

A. F. J. B.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

The Chicago Carnation Co., of Joliet, Ill., has registered its new carnation, Peerless Pink, which is described as follows: Parentage, Alvina x Beacon; color, cerise pink, lighter than Lawson; size, three to three and one-half inches; ideal upright growth; thin, wiry stems; very early and exceptionally free; strong calyx.

E. H. Blameuser, of Niles Center, Ill., has registered his new carnation, Joy, which is described as follows: Parentage, Victory x red seedling; color, scarlet; size, two and three-fourths inches; strong grower; early and very free bloomer; strong calyx and good stem.

A. F. J. Baur, Sec'y.

CARNATION RUST.

I thought it would be a good idea to ask you for a little advice, as there is something wrong with my carnations. I do not know whether it is rust or some other disease, but will enclose several leaves that show the disease, hoping that you will tell me what it is and state the cause and a remedy. I am almost new at this sort of business.

R. E. L.

The specimens submitted are affected by the common carnation rust, and, judging by the amount there is on these few leaves, your plants seem to have quite a dose of it. Pick off all the leaves that show any of these raised spots and burn them. Then dust the plants heavily with Grape Dust, or with hydrated lime and flowers of sulphur, mixed in equal proportions. Keep the water from the foliage when watering, and syringe only if necessary to keep down red spider. This disease is not to be feared like the spot diseases, but it is, nevertheless, an undesirable thing to have on the place.

A. F. J. B.

TOPPING CARNATIONS.

Will you please advise me whether or not I should stop pinching my carnation plants and let them commence blooming? They were benched during the first week in May, from 2-inch pots, and have been growing nicely. The plants have from six to twelve shoots, and some have more. The variety is Enchantress. Please advise me at once, as the plants need topping now if I am not going to turn them loose. The climatic conditions are those of Alabama.

H. C.

By all means cease topping your carnations if you want a good crop by Christmas. In your southern climate the growth will likely be more rapid during the next three months than it would be in the north, but you will find that only those shoots which have by now begun to lengthen out will make Christmas. Figure from six to eight weeks, according to weather conditions, from the time the bud stands out free from the last pair of leaves until the bloom is ready to pick.

A. F. J. Baur.

WHERE TO CUT THE STEMS.

How far down should carnation stems be cut? In other words, how many breaks should be left? For instance, I am enclosing a rough sketch of a carnation plant that has three shoots; where would you cut the stem?

L. G. S. & F. C.

Your question is not perfectly explicit, but judging by the date, I should infer that you speak of cutting blooms. At least I will take it for granted that such is the case.

Our practice at this time of the year is to leave on the plant every joint that will produce a good, strong flowering shoot. If we are crowded for long-stemmed blooms, we may sometimes cut

Robert Miller, the Man who Put Farmington, Utah, on the Map.

A GROWER OF THE FAR WEST.

During the last year the Miller Floral Co., of Farmington, Utah, has so advanced in its business as to verify completely the prediction made by Robert Miller, its manager, when he went to Salt Lake City from New England a few years ago and announced that he believed that roses, carnations and other flowers and plants could be grown with profit in that vicinity, in spite of the skeptical attitude of his hearers.

During the last year he has added 50,000 feet of glass to his greenhouses, making a total of 200,000 feet. Included in the Miller establishment are now six rose houses, 38x100 feet, containing 35,000 plants, two carnation houses, 36x350 feet, containing 35,000 plants, and eight plant houses, including a specially constructed retarding house, 25x100 feet, for holding back dormant stock such as roses, azaleas, lilacs and rhododendrons. This has a wooden roof with wooden ventilators, glass sides and gables and one light of glass every eight feet, running from sill to ridge pole. The roof of this house is insulated on the inside to keep out the heat; the purpose being to keep the temperature at an even coolness both summer and winter. Another of the plant houses is devoted to chrysanthemums and contains 5,000 plants.

During the year a 100-horsepower boiler equipment has been purchased, bringing the total to 350 horsepower. A duplicate steam heating system is now installed throughout the plant, giving perfect security against breaks, as one half of the heating pipes are on one main and the other half on another. But this is not all. By means of a series of artesian wells a water system has been put in, with tanks and steam pumps, insuring safety in case of the freezing or breaking of the city water mains. A refrigerating plant for keeping valley pips and Easter lily bulbs the year around and for cooling the flower rooms, is also being installed.

Besides these improvements, four acres of additional land have been purchased and negotiations are now under way to add nine acres more. It is the intention of the company to build a new fire-proof office and install vaults in the spring.

Unquestionably Mr. Miller has made a remarkably good showing in the three and one-half years he has been in Salt Lake City and the vicinity, for from a comparatively small beginning his company now has one of the most complete plants of the kind in the west. The company is supplying a large per cent of the roses and carnations used in Salt Lake City and other important points in Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana and Nevada, besides many other varieties of cut flowers and plants.

One of the illustrations shows one of the carnation houses of the Miller Floral Co., as it looked just before Mothers' day last May, and the other the man who has brought the company to its present successful position.

TO BUILD CANADIAN BRANCH.

The report that the Lord & Burnham Co., of New York and elsewhere, is to build a greenhouse material factory in Canada apparently is confirmed by the following press dispatch sent out from St. Catharines, Ont., October 11:

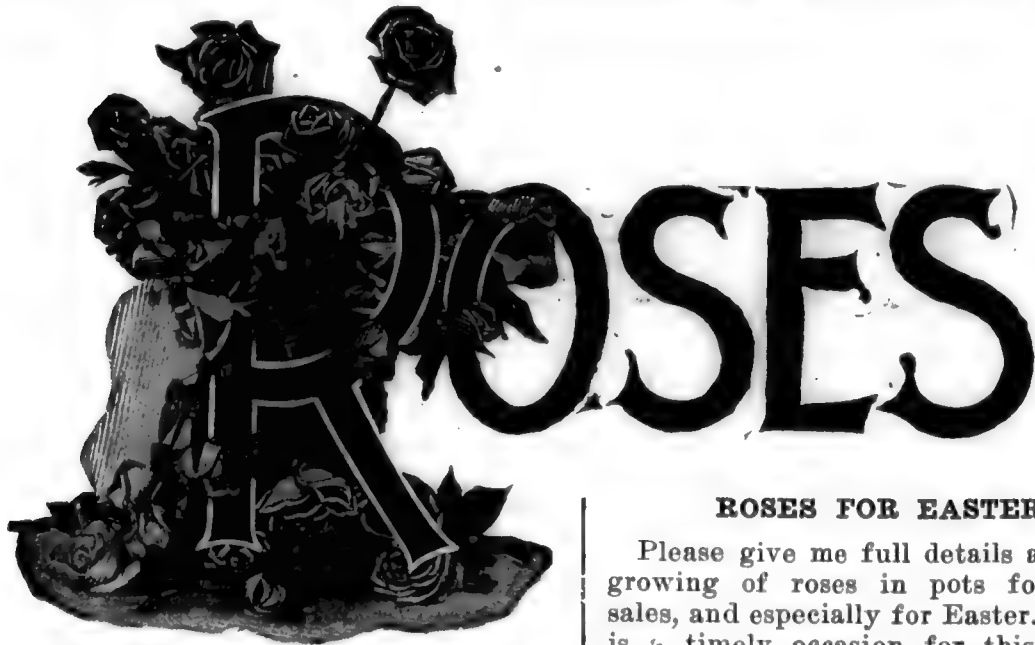

"A Canadian branch factory for the manufacture of steel greenhouses and equipment, including boilers, will be established in St. Catharines by Lord & Burnham Co., which now has factories in Irvington-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., and Des Plaines, Ill. The company will pay $10,000 for fifteen acres of land and begin at once to construct plant and buildings to cost $75,000."

St. Catharines is on Lake Ontario, a few miles west of Niagara Falls, where both rail and water transportation are excellent.

Escañaba, Mich.—C. Peterson & Sons are building another house, 20x100 feet, giving them a total of 25,000 square feet under glass. A feature of the new house is the use of concrete benches throughout.

A Carnation House of the Miller Floral Co., Farmington, Utah.

ROSES TO FOLLOW MUMS.

I should like to set some roses in the benches after the mums are out. Will you be so kind as to let me know what kinds of roses would be best? It is a cool greenhouse, used for carnations and run at a night temperature of 50 to 55 degrees. Would it be better to grow the roses in pots or on the benches? Will the soil from the mums be good, if mixed with old manure? It was fresh soil when I set the mums in it, in the first few days of June. About what time can I get the roses in bloom?

L. V.

Roses planted in a house that will be held at a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees will never give satisfaction, especially if planted in October or November. Any of the varieties of roses which are now grown for winter forcing require a temperature of not less than 60 degrees at night to give satisfaction. It would be poor policy to advise any one to attempt to grow roses under such conditions, as the experiment would not only result in failure, but would waste valuable space at the time when it costs the most. Among the best crops to follow mums would be sweet peas or violets, preferably the former. If they were started in small pots a month or six weeks ahead, they could be planted in the same soil with good results at that temperature, but roses—never.

W. J. K.

TOO HIGH A TEMPERATURE.

What is the cause of the mature leaves on 2-year-old Killarneys turning yellow and dropping off? It seems to occur in cloudy spells. The soil is of the finest quality and the plants are growing fast. Is a temperature of 80 degrees at noon too high for Killarneys at this time of the year?

H. G. A.

Killarneys, being fast growers, ripen their foliage proportionately fast, but if the plants are in good growing condition and are not cut back too hard this does not injure them. Keeping the temperature too high and the house too close will cause the foliage to ripen prematurely and this does injure the plants. A temperature of 80 degrees is too high at any time for Killarneys and should probably be lowered by giving more ventilation. About 60 degrees at night, 62 to 66 degrees on cloudy days and 70 to 72 degrees on sunny days would be about right, with plenty of ventilation at all times.

ROSES FOR EASTER.

Please give me full details about the growing of roses in pots for winter sales, and especially for Easter. As this is a timely occasion for this subject, please do not omit any of the small details, and please include the names of classes and varieties.

D. W. D.

To give all the small details of rose culture would require many columns of space in The Review. You will find articles on roses from time to time under Seasonable Suggestions, which may help you in some measure.

Rambler roses are in greatest favor for Easter flowering. The plants are either pot-grown through the summer, or potted up in late October or November. The middle of October is a good time to do this, as the roses then make good roots before winter. The plants must be firmly potted and can be kept outdoors until the middle of November, then stored in a cold pit or cellar, or laid on their sides in a coldframe. The plants can be started as early as Christmas if desired. At first 45 degrees at night suffices; gradually raise the temperature until 55 to 60 degrees is given, although they can be grown as low as 50 degrees at night. For Easter, 1914, allow twelve weeks from starting to flowering. The long canes should not be cut back; merely remove weak or dead wood. Bend down the shoots to stakes; this induces a better break. Avoid drafts, which would cause mildew. Also, a too dry heat will induce attacks of red spider. When the flowers are opening keep them a little cooler, and a little shade will help to prevent the fading of the colors.

Good ramblers are: Tausendschon, Dorothy Perkins, Newport Fairy, American Pillar, Lady Gay, in pink; Crimson Rambler, White Dorothy Perkins; Hiawatha, single red, and Trier. The so-called baby ramblers make nice pot plants and are obtainable in several colors. These polyantha roses can be flowered in a shorter time than the true ramblers; so can such hybrid perpetuals as Frau Karl Druschki, Ulrich Brunner, Magna Charta, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Mrs. Sharman-Crawford and Alfred Colomb. These roses must be pruned back quite hard before starting. Leave from one to three buds on each shoot, according to strength.

Such hybrid teas as Caroline Testout, the various Killarneys, Antoine Rivoire, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and Konigin Carola all make good pot plants. These need light pruning. A few other good roses for pots are: Clothilde Soupert, Maman Cochet, white and pink; Hermosa and Lady Hillingdon. All roses like a good, fibrous loam. The bulk of them prefer a fairly heavy soil, but the teas prefer it a little lighter. Some bone and well decayed cow manure should be added. When the pots are well filled with roots they require a lot of water, and liquid manure can be applied twice a week until the flowers open.

"NOT YET, BUT SOON."

This week's issue of The Review goes to press on the day designated last August for the reduction in express rates, and the adoption of a new system of computing charges. But the rates are not reduced. It is a case of "Not yet, but soon." The Interstate Commerce Commission, on the afternoon of October 14, gave the express companies until December 1 to put the new rates and methods into operation. At the same time the commission declined to accept a counter proposal made by the companies. Because of the assertion that it was an impossibility to get ready to do business under the new rates by October 15, the companies were granted an extension to December 1. Then they will be expected to put the new rates in force. The express companies, however, may just as confidently be expected to avail themselves of every legal loophole and possibility of procrastination to avoid complying with the commission's order.

The fight for a reduction in rates has gone on for several years. The rate reduction order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, entered August 4, was reported in full, with illustrations, in the issues of The Review for August 7 and August 14.

FROM THE PARK FLORAL CO.

I noticed a news item in one of the trade papers referring to a controversy between the Park Floral Co. and the state land board and making it appear that we are largely in arrears for rent.

The correspondent is probably justified in drawing such a conclusion from articles published in the daily press, but the fact is that this is entirely a legal controversy involving the right of the land board to arbitrarily increase our rental under a lease which does not expire until 1926.

BEWARE THE CHECK CASHER.

One of the best business rules is to decline to cash checks for those you do not know personally.

A man who is described as about 38 to 40 years of age, of medium height, rather heavy set, weighing perhaps 180 pounds, smooth shaved, with brown hair inclined to be curly, appears to be specializing on swindling florists. He is well informed on trade matters and has intimate knowledge of the business and family affairs of several members of the trade, so that he gets away unsuspected. The awakening comes afterward. In some cases he strikes for a loan; in others, he cashes a check, which proves to be worthless. In all cases thus far reported the losses have been small, as the swindler fears to strike for large amounts; it might make his victim think first instead of afterward.

The rule should be never to hand over money to a stranger, no matter what his story. If you don't know him and really know him to be what he claims to be, no one has any right to ask you to give up money. If the rule were followed by all florists it would immediately drive this swindler to greener fields.

Then, too, there is the fakir who orders flowers, usually to be delivered later, and tenders a check in payment. When the check calls for cash change it ought to be considered as a danger signal. Unless you really know the customer, hang onto the change—it's what a swindler is after.

CHARGING FOR ESTIMATES.

Everyone who ever has given the subject thought has recognized that one of the big items of expense in a greenhouse material business of any size is the result of the present general practice of making sketches and estimates free for all comers, so that when it was rumored recently that some of the manufacturers were changing their policy in this regard it occasioned no surprise. It appears, however, that the report is a little premature. So far as can be learned, none of the big companies has gone so far as to make a charge for estimates or even for drawings and blue prints, badly as the reform seems to be needed.

In discussing the matter with P. L. McKee, of the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, it was stated that an entire floor of the Moninger office is given over to this work and several salaried employees are kept constantly busy preparing sketches, plans and specifications, pricing bids, etc. It developed that the average expense to the company for each estimate is $5, not counting anything for other overhead expenses connected with the work. It also developed that of the estimates prepared not half result in actual business. It was stated that during September the estimates made amounted to $355,000 on greenhouses alone. Of this amount the net greenhouse sales are expected to total $120,000, based on the average results said to be obtained by this company.

It is plain that this large expense item of making estimates is paid for by the people who actually order material. Conditions are believed to be the same with everyone in this line of business and it is apparent that it is working a hardship on the actual buyers. It costs every purchaser as much as his share to pay for the estimates sent out to people not actually interested or who will build in future years, perhaps. A plan ought to be developed along the following lines, according to the opinion of the Moninger Co. Said Mr. McKee:

"Everyone asking for an estimate on a greenhouse, with sketch, should be charged a nominal sum, probably $3, and if an order is afterwards received, this amount should be rebated to the customer on his bill. This would work to the advantage of the customer in that each person would pay his share of the cost of estimating. Those not seriously interested would not pay the $3 and would receive no estimate.

"The result of this would be better service for those who are in earnest and mean business. They would get their figures promptly and receive more careful and conscientious attention. The manufacturer would know that every estimate sent out was going to some one who really wanted it and who was an actual prospective customer. What a pleasure it would be to do business under this sort of system! How simple it would make everything for both the buyer and the manufacturer! No lost time, no guessing and no wasted energy. As it is now, the man who buys a greenhouse pays from $5 to $20 for his estimate in the price of the material. Most of them don't stop to think of it, but no one can make estimates without expense and this expense must come out of the proceeds of the business. The buyer must pay it under the present system. One buyer must pay for three estimates, when by right he should pay only for one.

WILLIAM F. GUDE.

JUST when William F. Gude gets any time to attend to his own business is a question. It must be at night after other people have gone to bed, for the business day is largely spent on public affairs. Take his S. A. F. activities, for instance: Washington representative; chairman of the tariff committee; chairman of the Smith Memorial committee; chairman of the committee on national rose garden, and now ex-officio a member of the board of directors and asked to meet with them. President of the Washington Chamber of Commerce and active in half a dozen other organizations, as well as doing a big flower business, it appears that Mr. Gude hardly can have seen an idle moment since his arrival in this land of the free, at Lynchburg, Va., January 4, 1868.

"This company is seriously considering some plan whereby an equal distribution of this expense can be made and the saving turned over to the actual buyers. The company always is glad to furnish plans and estimates free of charge to those who purchase, as the expense is then rightfully chargeable to the business, and for this reason it is proposed to refund the charge in case of order."

The Review would be glad to have the views of the trade and other manufacturers, along this line, as it seems to be a subject of general interest to greenhouse builders all over the country.

WINTER CARE OF PANSIES.

Those who have planned pansy beds for next spring, either to sell the plants or to beautify the home place, have now set the plants in their winter quarters, or are now doing so. If your plants have been well grown and seed was sown in July, they will bloom this month or early in November in my Michigan climate. Later plants will make quicker growth under the warmth of a spring sun.

This year I have made the beds rich with well rotted manure and raked them fine and level. They are just wide enough to take eleven plants across, four inches apart. This makes a convenient width to work from each side. The beds can be of any length, but the plants this way should be six inches apart, for convenience with the hand weeder. It will pay, both in appearance and in time saved in caring for the beds, if your rows are made straight and true with string and measure.

Several hours before taking from the seed bed, the plants should be watered thoroughly, and the winter bed should be moist, but not wet. One of the secrets of moving these plants and getting them into quick growth is to maintain a large quantity of moisture around the roots, and do it, too, without having the soil muddy or soggy, or the surface of the ground both wet and hard. To accomplish this, the most successful way I know, and one which has worked splendidly with many kinds of small plants, is to cover with a small pot each plant soon after it is set. When the bed is complete and the pots have been placed, water heavily over the pots with hose or sprinkler. Do not remove the pots until the following evening. Not a healthy plant will have wilted, rootlets will already have started in the new location, the surface around the plants will be just right and no soil will have been washed into the crowns, which is a thing to be carefully avoided with pansies. By this method I have set small flower and vegetable plants in the field right in the middle of some of our hottest summer days with just as good results as on a cool, cloudy evening, but in the heat of summer I generally leave the pots on a full forty-eight hours. They not only protect the plants from the sun, but moisture is conserved as it evaporates from the soil.

After a heavy rain you should go over the bed with the hand weeder and loosen up the surface, being careful to keep the soil out of the crowns. This fixes the weeds, too.

When the ground has frozen hard—not before—throw over your beds an inch or two of coarse straw and over this light brush or wire to hold the straw in place. Be careful not to remove this covering until the last freeze of spring is over. If early flowers are wanted, the straw can be removed some warm day in late winter and a cold-frame set over a portion of the bed. The sun through the sash will then bring them on with a rush.

With pansies, remember they must have abundant air, water and sunshine, important in the order named.

In The Review for October 2 I noticed an inquiry on wintering pansies in coldframes. I use some frames and they are at the foot of a grade. I have never used any litter under the glass and have rarely lost more than one or two per cent of my plants. One winter there was a thaw and my frames were filled with water over the plants. Then the water froze solid and for weeks I could see the plants several inches down in solid ice. Not a plant was lost that winter. However, I use few frames and winter mostly in beds covered with one inch of coarse straw.

THE GLASS MARKET.

In spite of the reduction in the duty on window glass, jobbers are looking for an early advance in the price, probably five per cent.

The fact appears to be that the stocks on hand are the lowest in years. One man who has spent a lifetime in the business said in The Review office last week that he never had known stocks in manufacturers' hands to be so light as at present. It is asserted by the trade authorities that the quantity now on hand is approximately 200,000 boxes, while normal stocks at this date would aggregate 600,000 to 700,000 boxes.

The season's fire will not begin until November 1. It will be well toward the end of that month before any new glass can come on the market. The fire ends with May. It means seven productive months to meet a twelve months' demand.

The wage scale was advanced ten per cent for the season. In reality the advance will be nearer fourteen per cent, it is said, due to changes in working conditions.

No Belgian window glass is likely to come on this market, because the manufacturers there are better satisfied with present conditions than they have been for a long time and are not apt to push out for American business because it would entail a reduction in the prices they are at present receiving. A jobber figures that to lay 16x18 Belgian glass in his Chicago warehouse at present prices abroad and under the new tariff law will cost $2.69 per box, which is so close to the prices at which jobbers are selling American hand-made glass that the business is unattractive; in fact, carload lots have been offered within the week as low as $2.70 for 16x18 double strength A, f. o. b. Chicago.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.Department of Plant Registration.

Henry Krinke & Son, of St. Paul, Minn., submit for registration the fern described below. Any person objecting to the registration or to the use of the proposed name is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. If no objection to the registration is received, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Name—Pteris Krinkei.

Description—The fern is a 1911 seedling sport from Pteris adiantoides. The leaves are much more divided and longer. It hangs over the pot in the usual sized plants and it grows more quickly than the parent kind.

John Young, Sec'y.

AZALEA INDICA SHORT.

The situation as regards Azalea Indica has been going steadily in one direction for some years and the reflex action which has been predicted does not appear to have set in according to predictions. Some years ago the demand for certain popular varieties began to exceed the production of these varieties and the Belgian growers began raising prices, or sending smaller and less perfect plants for the money, which amounted to the same thing. The result was that the business became less and less satisfactory to American importers and forcers, until the point was reached where some of the big dealers ceased handling azaleas and many reduced their orders. It freely was predicted that this soon would so affect the market that the Belgian growers would catch up with the demand and once more be able to offer good plants at the old prices. Apparently that time has not yet arrived. The stock this year is reported to be well budded, but the supply of the popular forcing varieties continues inadequate and prices are not affected.

ANNUAL SHOW AT VINCENT'S.

The fact that dahlias have recently been winning increased popularity was confirmed anew by the special interest taken in these flowers at the seventh annual show of dahlias and cannas on the farms of R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., at Cowenton, Md. The show, which was held, as usual, in conjunction with the annual harvest home festival of the Ebenezer Methodist Episcopal church, continued for five days, September 30 to October 4, and is reported to have been even a greater success than heretofore, in attendance and otherwise.

In spite of the somewhat unpleasant weather on Tuesday, when the show was opened, more than 2,000 persons were present during that day, and it is estimated that the total attendance was fully 10,000. The Federal Department of Agriculture, the Maryland Agricultural College and other official bodies were represented. The register showed names of visitors from California, New Orleans and other distant points. Special trains were run from Baltimore to Cowenton for the accommodation of the guests, and the adjacent roads were lined with visitors' automobiles during a large part of the five days.

On the opening day there was a good attendance of practical florists, who inspected such sections as most interested them in the forty-five acres of dahlias and the fifty-five acres of cannas, selecting stock for purchase and meanwhile expressing enthusiastic approval of the condition of the plants. One of the chief centers of attraction was a patch of dahlias where some of the giant-flowering sorts had been tied to stakes, disbudded to single stems and mulched, and had received other such special culture as would demonstrate the dahlia's highest possibilities.

In the large packing shed, which had been transformed into an exhibition hall for the occasion, the effectiveness of cut dahlias for decorative purposes was convincingly shown by elaborate displays containing a total of over 50,000 of the flowers. The inside stock, such as geraniums, chrysanthemums, petunias, begonias, verbenas, etc., in the thirty-two large greenhouses, also received much attention from the visitors.

NEXT TO FOOD AND CLOTHING.

Next to food and clothing, what is the prime necessity of life has long been a matter for argument. After he has something to eat and something to wear, what is it that a florist needs most of all? A house to shelter him, perhaps? No. Well, then a greenhouse to do business in? No; it is The Review! That, at any rate, is the inference you naturally draw from this letter:

My dwelling and greenhouse were destroyed by fire the morning of August 10, making me a loss of $2,200, but I can not get along without The Review.—C. S. Grace, Scio, O., October 8, 1913.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

The following committees have been appointed by President Chamberlain:

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The continued warm weather and the overcast skies of last week were responsible for the slackening of the demand for cut flowers in the local market. Stock is quite plentiful and good. American Beauty roses of high quality are to be had. Carnations are of a better quality than they have been and are being welcomed in lieu of asters, which have gone off the market. Violets, which made their debut here about two weeks ago, are still poor in quality, although the demand for them is quite good. The stores are making a great showing of dahlias, which are now at their best.

Many of the stores have undergone minor improvements during the last few weeks, in line with the annual fall house-cleaning, and the dealers are now ready to take care of the fall and winter trade. While business is quiet at the present time, a great improvement is not only hoped for, but expected.

Club Meeting.

The space at the store of the Gude Bros. Co., 1214 F street, northwest frequently used as a meeting place by the Florists' Club of Washington, presented a beautiful appearance on the occasion of the regular monthly meeting of that organization, held last week. This section was covered with a display of chrysanthemums, orchids, roses, violets, etc., the central attraction being the exhibition of early outdoor chrysanthemums, recently imported from France, made by Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J. The awards committee of the club, of which N. L. Hammer was chairman, and William F. Gude, David G. Grillbortzer, Otto Bauer and Elmer C. Mayberry were members, decided that Mme. A. Nonin, A. Barham, L'Aisne and H. H. Crane were justly entitled to certificates of merit. Mme. A. Nonin was declared to be one of the prettiest and clearest pink outdoor chrysanthemums ever seen by the committee.

Among the other flowers shown were the new varieties of roses, Mrs. George Shawyer, Mrs. Charles Russell and Milady, all of which were favorably commented upon. The American Beauty roses of Gude Bros. Co. were shown in excellent quality of bloom, foliage and stem, and the locally grown orchids, catleyas and oncidiums were also extremely fine. Lady Hillingdon, Sunburst, Kaiserin, My Maryland, Radiance, Perle and White Killarney roses, snapdragons, cosmos and violets completed the display, which of itself was decorated with oak leaves, palms and ferns. A letter of condolence was ordered sent to Mr. Ponnet, who recently met with the loss of his father, Constant Ponnet. Mr. Hammer gave an interesting report on the annual dahlia show given by R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., at White Marsh, Md. He stated that about sixty Washingtonians made the trip in the special cars provided for them and were joined by 300 people in Baltimore. He especially commented upon the courtesy shown the party, of which he was a member, and declared the show to have been the finest and best attended ever held there.

M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., secretary of the National Association of Gardeners, was present as a guest of the club. He commented favorably on the show and spoke highly of the club's activities. I. Rosnosky, of Philadelphia, who is a member here, made a few remarks, following which refreshments were served and a number of recitations given by a local entertainer. Although the attendance was somewhat smaller than usual, the meeting was a decided success.

Various Notes.

The store of Z. D. Blackistone, at Fourteenth and H streets, northwest, has been a place of special interest during the last ten days because of the dahlia exhibition held there. The store was elaborately decorated for the occasion. Dahlias were everywhere, in the windows, on the tables and in many wall pockets. On the center table was a huge decoration made up of Lumieres, set off with cibotium and oak leaves, the whole reaching almost to the ceiling. In the H street windows were large baskets of the different varieties. To all who visited the establishment, Mr. Blackistone presented two or more flowers. The display consisted of a good showing of Delice, Country Girl, Clifford Bruton, Black Hawk and Cuban Giant.

Edgar G. Leapley will be kept quite busy until the first of the coming year, as he has qualified as a juror in the police court.

While riding on his motorcycle, purchased but two weeks before, David A. Bissett was knocked down by an automobile of the Department of Agriculture. He was taken to the Emergency hospital, where he was treated for a compound fracture of his left leg. Mr. Bissett is the son of a member of the florists' club and is an employee of the Department of Agriculture.

Fred H. Kramer and Adolphus Gude have returned from an extended tour of England and the continent.

Representative Moore, of Pennsylvania, himself the father of eight children, has introduced into the House of Representatives a resolution designating the first Sunday in June as Fathers' day, with the rose as its emblem.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are holding sway. Some choice Chrysolora are bringing $6 per dozen, retail. They are away ahead of any other variety at this date. Demand is keen for anything that looks like a mum. Never were they cut so tightly as this season. In order to keep up the supply, many varieties are sent to the market fully a week sooner than they should be cut. Roses are improving in quality. The day of Killarney and White Killarney is passing. Ward, Sunburst, Russell, Shawyer and others are rapidly taking their places as standards. Carnations, valley, greens and violets are equal to all demands.

Show Preparations.

Flower show plans have developed wonderfully during the last week. The committees in direct charge are as follows:

Chairman of exhibition committee and representative of the Ohio Horticultural Society—John Boddy.

Publicity committee—H. P. Knoble, chairman; George Bate, H. B. Jones.

Decorations committee—Charles E. Russell, chairman; Timothy Smith, F. Brown.

Hall and premiums committee—Frank A. Friedley, chairman; Herbert Bate.

Reception committee—George W. Smith, chairman; T. J. Kirchner.

The show will be held in the new Wigmore coliseum, Thirteenth street near Euclid avenue. The building is rapidly nearing completion. It covers 64,000 square feet and is an ideal location for a flower show, being in the center of the shopping district, one block from Hotel Statler and directly across the street from the Hotel Euclid. The flower stores of C. M. Wagner, Jones-Russell Co., the James Eadie Co., J. M. Gasser Co. and Smith & Fetters Co. are all located within a few blocks of the hall. The premium list, with $3,500 in cash and a dozen or more silver cups and gold medals offered in prizes, is being mailed this week. If you do not receive one notify John Boddy, City hall, Cleveland, O.

Various Notes.

Guy Bate, in charge of the new plant of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., at Newton Falls, O., is to be congratulated upon the high quality of the roses he is sending in. They evidently have struck upon the ideal soil in their new location.

The Cleveland Plant & Flower Co. is receiving fine carnations from O. C. Barber's range of glass, at Barberton, cut from indoor-grown stock.

The J. M. Gasser Co. is cutting heavily on early mums.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange is receiving heavy cuts of roses. Beauties are exceptionally fine. F. A. F.

Missoula, Mont.—The R. & S. Flower Store has been opened on East Cedar street, to handle the products of the greenhouses of the proprietors.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—A. W. Moore has filed plans for alterations to his greenhouses on Park avenue.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

Seasonable weather now prevails and we hope for it to continue, as we have just passed through some mighty hot weather. Roses and dahlias went up in one day and other stock suffered badly from the heat. Dahlias have prevailed for the last three weeks and, with the vast improvement in the colors and varieties, the stock is now a profitable and timely one. Carnations are getting much better in quality and chrysanthemums are just taking hold. They are a little too high in price to be popular as yet, but in another week we shall be in the season's midst. The most marked scarcity on the Buffalo market has been in Easter lilies. Never have we seen them so scarce and the demand seemed to increase just at the same time. Roses have been of fine quality and have sold well. Funeral work has been reported heavy all around and an unusual number of weddings were held last month.

Various Notes.

J. Benson Stafford, the artist-florist, who for a number of years has been on Main street, has just located at 72 Chipewa street. Mr. Stafford reports business there much improved over that at the other location and hopes still to improve it in many ways. His store is somewhat of a novelty for the florists' business, as he has high-class place cards and other novelties, which are quite well combined with flowers. It is somewhat of a new departure for this city, but his methods are unique and his success is assured.

John Kramer is the proud father of a big, bouncing boy and his happiness was quite manifest, by the talk he caused at the wholesale house the morning the boy came. Mr. Kramer is the assistant of J. B. Wiese. Mr. Wiese has just returned from Europe, where he and his daughter spent the summer. Mr. Wiese toured Europe to some extent and spent a few weeks in Germany with his relatives.

We take great pleasure in announcing the marriage of Edward Altman, who has just returned from his automobile trip through the east. Mr. Altman has other cares now, and so he has taken his sister, Miss Erma Altman, as his business partner. An alert young assistant is she, and to show her progressiveness, while her brother was buying Atlantic City for his bride, Miss Altman bought a new R. & L. electric just to keep pace.

Joseph Streit says that the florists have entered a team in the Business House bowling league. The season has just started and he was proud to say that they won three points the first night.

W. A. Adams is again the candidate on the Republican ticket for supervisor. Success be with him, and a good many votes. R. A. S.

Milwaukee, Wis.—C. F. Becker, who not long ago leased the greenhouse plant of Currie Bros., has opened a flower store at 1903 State street.

Atlanta, Ga.—W. C. Lawrence, for many years the manager of the West View Floral Co., is about to resume business for himself under the name of the Lawrence Floral Co., at 138 Peachtree street.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market seems to be flooded with everything, as is the custom when the mum is king. It was muggy weather most of the week, also, and business with the retailers continues exceptionally dull. The mum shipments grow in volume daily and the flower shop windows are made thereby entrancingly attractive. The demand for the large and expensive chrysanthemum novelties seems to be limited. It is hard to get over $3 a dozen for the best of them. The quality of these, however, continues to improve and the size to increase. Doubtless the choicest of the novelties will soon command 50 cents each, as in other seasons. It is unwise for the growers to send anything common in mums to the New York market. They surely are unsalable here. Even the department stores turn up their noses at the medium and low grade offerings.

American Beauties seem to be the key to the rose market. When they fall, all the rest of the roses grow panicky and retreat. Even the new kinds feel the influence of the depression. The top for Beauties last Saturday was 15 cents, and some fine stock sold at $10 per hundred. The other roses sell from $5 per hundred down to 50 cents, with the possible exceptions of Shawyer, Russell and Milady.

The carnation shipments are now normal and abundant. Even the best of them do not bring over 2½ cents. Anything small, short-stemmed and sleepy cannot be disposed of for express charges, and should not be sent at all. Another week will send the dahlias into the discard. A good frost will do the trick in less time, and the charm of Indian summer will be ended.

Valley is again abundant and prices lower. Lilies have held their average of the last few weeks, with a downward tendency now. There are few gardenias, but of orchids there seems to be no end. Splendid stock sold at $25 per hundred, the best of it. The slump gives promise of going even lower this week, and there is nothing special in view to lift it. Violets begin to look and smell natural and everybody is handling them. New York can dispose profitably to the growers of all the first-class stock that can be sent to this market, and there is no necessity or profit in the Rhinebeck violet growers shipping their stock to the far-away western market. Cosmos is at its best now. Sweet peas are coming and gladioli going. The general expectation is optimistic, and the wheels will be running fast before November.

Club Meeting.

There was an attendance of more than 100 and one of the finest displays ever seen in the rooms when President Siebrecht called the meeting of the Florists' Club to order October 13. W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., made an unusually large display and decorated every member present with a flower of his ruby-red dahlia, Mrs. A. I. DuPont. He received a silver medal for Polypodium Mandaianum, and certificates and votes of thanks for other varieties in his display. Charles H. Totty, of Madison, showed twenty-two vases and varieties of new chrysanthemums flowered outdoors. James Bell, gardener for C. K. G. Billings, staged a fine vase of Dahlia Delice. A. N. Kinney showed a new geranium, Mme. Kinney. Charles Weber, of Lynbrook, L. I., had a vase of a new crimson dahlia of brilliant color. Bergenfield Nurseries, of Bergenfield, N. J., staged fifty-three varieties of hardy outdoor chrysanthemums and dahlias. The thanks of the club were voted to all the exhibitors.

Geo. V. Nash and J. P. Dahlborn were elected to membership, and applications were received from Jos. B. Bischamp, Herbert Brown, M. M. Voit, Andrew Cova, Anthony Hankey, Otto Muller, F. H. Dressel, Jr., F. A. Danker, J. R. Lewis, R. C. Fontaine and G. W. Parker. The resignation of U. Cutler Ryerson was accepted.

P. O'Mara read the resolutions on the death of Julius Roehrs, and W. F. Sheridan those on the death of J. B. Nugent, Jr.

Mr. Ebel's invitation to the annual banquet of the gardeners' society at the Hotel Endicott November 3 was received and many will attend. P. O'Mara will be toastmaster.

Mr. Weathered's report showed a balance of nearly $300 left of the guarantee fund for the entertainment at the spring flower show, and the amount was voted to the treasury for future use on similar lines. John Young gave interesting reports as to the flower show in March, 1914. The guarantee fund is already over $7,100 and only $10,000 is required. C. H. Totty gave an eloquent address in its behalf and predicted a greater success than the last if the club would awake to the necessity of earnest and immediate coöperative effort. Messrs. Duckham, Ebel, Manda, Traendly, Stumpp and Scheider also spoke on the subject, the retailers showing especial enthusiasm.

President Siebrecht announced ladies' night for the November meeting.

W. A. Manda invited the members of the investigating committee and the club's members to visit his nurseries at South Orange October 17, and many signified their intention of accepting.

Various Notes.

R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., was in the city October 10. He was delighted with the success of his annual dahlia exhibition and will have a display of his novelties at the New York show.

Wm. P. Craig, of the Robert Craig Co., and J. M. Wade, manager of the estate of Lemuel Ball, of Philadelphia, were recent visitors.

Woodrow & Marketos say October to date is beyond any previous season in volume of business. The firm is busy with a large landscape contract at Princeton, N. J.

W. G. Badgley is cutting fine Shawyer and Bon Silene. Nicholas Schreiner is a late addition to the force of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer.

John Young's new store is completed and one of the handsomest in the wholesale district. His office is headquarters for out-of-town members of the S. A. F.

The store of J. J. Fellouris has been redecorated and brightened up for the fall trade, which he says has opened encouragingly.

Prospects are considered excellent for the exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York, which opens October 31. The annual meeting of the gardeners' society, to be held at the same time, is expected to attract many visitors.

The Henry M. Robinson Co. is comfortably established in its new ground floor store in the Coogan building and Manager Glass is much pleased with the change.

Chrysolora is the mum that Wm. Kessler says attracts the most attention in his exhibition window.

M. C. Ford comments on the high average quality of the stock now coming to market, asserting that the growers still are making progress.

George C. Siebrecht draws attention to the popularity of the single violets, which are excellent for so early in the season.

Thomas F. Galvin, of Boston, opened his new store on Fifth avenue, New York, Monday, October 6. The roof conservatory is a long way up from the street and is a decided novelty.

W. W. Burnham sailed for a two months' business trip in Europe last week. On his return he will have charge of the flower department of Lord & Taylor's new store on Fifth avenue and Thirty-eighth street. Mr. Burnham was manager of the flower department of Bloomingdale Bros. for years, and later was with Abraham & Strauss, of Brooklyn.

Mrs. Thomas Barson, of Johnstown, N. Y., was in the city October 6, a guest of the Kervan Co.

The Walter Siebrecht Co. is erecting a greenhouse at the back of its new store at 114 West Twenty-eighth street.

Everybody seems to be growing Unaka mums this year and the flowers have been disappointing. Hundreds of them are unsalable and thousands were going, early in the week, at 25 cents per dozen.

A. T. Boddington returned October 13 from North Carolina.

W. Atlee Burpee, of Philadelphia, was in the city this week.

R. J. Irwin and Wallace Pierson are back from their hunting trip. Mr. Irwin will have his moose head mounted and will decorate his new office with this and other trophies of the hunt.

The Rose Society's monthly executive committee meeting was held in Traendly & Schenck's office October 13. There were present Messrs. Wallace Pierson, B. Hammond, H. O. May, James Simpson, F. H. Traendly, Robert Pyle and S. S. Pennock. A general set of rules governing the relation of the Rose Society to the testing gardens at Minneapolis, Cornell, Washington and New Jersey was the subject under consideration.

The fall visit of the N. Y. & N. J. Plant Growers' Association to their brethren on Long Island takes place October 28. A sight-seeing auto has been secured, and the inner man, as usual, will not be forgotten. The start will be made at 9 a. m., from the office of W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., in Long Island City. November 4 the society will repeat over in Jersey.

Will A. McDonald, of Yonkers, was married October 11 to Marguerite Marie Eggers. They are enjoying their honeymoon in Canada.

Charles Logan, formerly with John Young and J. K. Allen, is now with the Growers' Cut Flower Co.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. is installing a steam heating system in its new store on West Twenty-eighth street. J. Austin Shaw.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Business conditions continue to improve and during the last week the volume of trade has been quite satisfactory. Stock of all kinds has shown wonderful improvement. Killarney and Radiance roses are fine and find ready sale. Dahlias are offered in quantity and the choice ones find quick sale.

Various Notes.

J. E. Marret, Jacob Schulz and E. G. Reimers are busy getting in their tropical plants.

Louis Kirch is bringing in some nice dahlias, which he disposes of readily.

It is reported that the rose houses at the country place of the Wm. Walker Co. are in splendid shape, and a big cut is in prospect.

F. L. Schulz and Karl Robe, of the Schulz retail store staff, are at Bedford, Ind., this week, putting up the church and home decorations for the Thornton-McDougall wedding.

G. E. S.

GREENWICH, CONN.

The regular monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held in Doran's hall October 10, with President Robert Williamson in the chair. The report of the fall show committee shows everything arranged for the coming show, which is to be held in the Armory at Stamford, Conn., November 7 and 8. It is hoped to make this the best show ever held by the society. An attractive schedule has been got together, with classes for all.

The prizes for dahlias offered by Thos. Head, of Bergenfield, N. J., brought out some extensive exhibits of wonderful size and color, notably that staged by P. W. Popp, whose exhibit was a show in itself. The prizes were awarded as follows:

Cactus dahlias—P. W. Popp, first, with sixty-two varieties; A. Whitelaw, second.
Decorative dahlias—P. W. Popp, first, with forty varieties; Alex. Marshall, second.
Collarette dahlias—P. W. Popp, first, with fourteen varieties.

Other exhibits staged received the following awards:

Dehn & Bertolf, honorable mention for collection of ornamental trees, shrubs and grasses.

P. W. Popp, honorable mention for chrysanthemum, White Gloria.

Thos. Head, Bergenfield, N. J., honorable mention for fine display of dahlia novelties for 1914 introduction.

Dehn & Bertolf, honorable mention for ever-bearing raspberry, St. Regis.

J. B. Roy, honorable mention for Nephrolepis exaltata Whitman.

C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., honorable mention for collection of hardy chrysanthemums.

J. Guermansfey, highly commended for collection of cactus dahlias.

Thos. Regan, vote of thanks for carnation, California Giant.

J. B. Andrews, vote of thanks for Arctotis grandis.

A. Breschki, vote of thanks for new French hydrangeas.

A. Whitelaw prizes for apples—James Troy, first, with plate of Wolf River; Geo. Wright, second, with plate of King.

Prizes are offered for the next meeting for eighteen carnations, three each of six varieties.

Owen A. Hunwick.

New Britain, Conn.—Mrs. Elizabeth K. Eggert has sold her greenhouse business to R. B. Viets.

Kansas City, Mo.—John Stevens, formerly manager of the Sawvel Floral Co., is now a member of the firm of Stevens & Hepting, at Fifty-eighth street and Bennington avenue.

OBITUARY.

Alfred Bingham.

Alfred Bingham, of Glen Rock, Paterson, N. J., committed suicide October 8 by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. The members of the family were at breakfast when they heard the shot overhead and, rushing to the young man's room, they found him stretched upon his bed. Dr. Oxford, of Glen Rock, was summoned and pronounced death instantaneous. Mr. Bingham was 29 years old. There is no reason which can be given for his act, except, possibly, despondency over the decline of the florists' business since the death of his father a few years ago. When Mr. Bingham retired the night before his death, he seemed to be in good spirits. He is survived by his mother and a brother, Thomas Bingham, who lived with him, and a sister, Mrs. Joseph Thornton, who resides next door.

Max Schustermann.

Max Schustermann, of 127 Second avenue, died quite suddenly October 12 from hemorrhage. He was 40 years old and had been twelve years in business at this address. He was a general favorite in the trade and highly esteemed.

William H. Grimes.

William H. Grimes, of Denver, Colo., died October 4 of abscess of the brain, after a few hours' illness. He was born in Polk City, Ia., forty-nine years ago and moved to Denver when a child. His father was a pioneer florist and nurseryman of Denver, and after the latter's death Mr. Grimes took over his father's business and ran it under the name of D. S. Grimes' Son. Mr. Grimes served two terms as alderman in the city council, from 1906 to 1908 and from 1910 to 1912. His wife, a son and a daughter are left to mourn their loss. Mr. Grimes was a member of Masonic orders and of the Knights of Pythias.

DISEASED CYCLAMEN FOLIAGE.

Enclosed you will find some cyclamen leaves. Please tell me what the trouble is, and the remedy. J. F. C.

The blotches on the cyclamen leaves soon disfigure the plants. This is a fungoid disease and is due to unsuitable atmospheric conditions. It is also less liable to attack strong plants than comparatively weak ones. I would advise giving the plants a dry atmosphere. Use a little fire heat and ventilate freely. If you are using much shade on your plants, remove it. If it is heavy, do not remove it too suddenly. Cyclamens should not need any shade for the next three months or more. Plants affected will be benefited by a spraying of Bordeaux mixture. Keep the surface soil in the pots stirred, and make the conditions as sweet and wholesome as possible. A house kept at 50 degrees at night would now suit your cyclamens, if wanted for Christmas. For spring flowering they will be better in coldframes for some time yet. A top-dressing of Clay's fertilizer, once in ten days, will benefit all plants which are well rooted.

Officers for 1913: President, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.; vice-president, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; secretary, John Young, 54 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 54 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.
Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

It appears that Chrysolora has brought the best money of all the mums cut in the first half of October. The report is unanimous from all the markets.

WHEN a grower can not supply the variety of young stock asked for, he has no right to substitute. It may be all right to write to ask if something else will do, but the money should go back P. D. Q. on request.

ONE of the axioms of the up-to-date manufacturer is that equipment is cheaper than labor. It applies to all departments of the florists' trade. It is cheaper to give your men what they need to work with than to hire more men.

ADVERTISERS who send electrotypes by parcel post either should affix special delivery stamps or allow a little extra time: the parcels do not travel so rapidly as first-class mail. As business activity increases and the holidays approach conditions are apt to grow worse rather than better.

It is bad business for a florist to buy too cheaply; standard qualities are necessary to a first-class, permanent business, and standard qualities, except in rare instances, are not to be had except at standard prices. Cheap prices not infrequently mean cheap qualities, and a cheap store, then cheap customers. Keep the quality up. Pay enough.

ONE of the noticeable tendencies in the cities and larger towns is toward the distribution of a constantly increasing part of the florists' products through retailing channels outside the trade, through fruiterers, department stores, etc. In a few instances this realizes the customary values for the stock, but usually it is in the direction of increased output rather than maintained prices.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

EAST OR WEST, IT'S THE SAME.

It is not where a publication is printed that counts—it's where it is circulated.

Some members of the trade still speak of The Review as a "western" paper, losing sight of the fact that The Review office is within a few miles of the center of population of the United States. And if anybody asks you, that's why Chicago already is the mail order center of America and rapidly is becoming the great publishing center.

But it doesn't make any difference where a paper is printed—it's where it is circulated that counts.

And The Review goes everywhere. Wherever there are florists, there you will find The Review.

Consequently, it does not make any difference where an advertiser is located. The story he tells is the same, east or west, like this:

Please take out my ad of cyclamens, as I am all sold out, thanks to The Review.—C. H. Jacobs, Westfield, Mass., October 7, 1913.

The Review certainly brings results. Our To Exchange ad brought us many more opportunities than we could take advantage of. We shall use The Review's advertising columns more freely from now on.—Williams Bros., Lorain, O., October 7, 1913.

Discontinue the ad; one insertion did the trick; we are sold out. Shall have more work for your paper later.—Hudson & Welsh, Lyndonville, N. Y., October 13, 1913.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Too warm and too much baseball. That about tells the story of the latter part of last week. Business was decidedly slack and stock of all kinds was rather in oversupply, prices weakening more or less all along the line. The week that sees the baseball championship settled never is any too brisk in the flower business and this time there was almost midsummer heat one or two days, to force the stock and make the flowers soft. This week opened with rather better conditions. The championships are settled, so that a lot of people, florists included, can once more attend to business, and the weather is cooler. Demand is picking up.

With an abundant supply of roses and carnations and an ever-increasing number of mums, the market is able to take care of all orders. Mums have been slow in reaching the market this season, but the bright weather of the last few days has brought big cuts and there now are plenty to satisfy all the calls. Roses have not shown the decline that might have been expected and there are big cuts coming on the market daily. No one is short of roses.

The supply of mums has more than tripled since the last report. The arrival of Tousey has added pink to the list of available colors. All grades can be found and the larger and finer flowers are being cut in greater numbers. Needless to say, the prices of ten days ago have suffered with the increase in the supply, although fancy stock still brings good returns.

Beauties in the longer lengths are plentiful and they can be had at a reasonable price. The shorter ones are

KEEP YOUR ORDERS COMING

BEAUTIES

Everybody has good trade if our stock is used

THE RETAILERS certainly have been ordering our Beauties liberally of late—we have done a big business—but the supply has increased as fast as the orders have—and we are able to take care of still more out-of-town customers. Can offer fine stock at prices that will be specially attractive to those who can use the medium to long grades. Please remember that while the largest orders do not tax our resources, we never are too busy to take equally good care of the small orders—order of us whether you want one hundred or one dozen.

CATTLEYAS

We have the fine fall crop of Labiata. These Orchids are second to none, and the supply will be steady for some weeks, by which time other varieties will be ready. You can count on us for Orchids.

VALLEY

You can depend upon us at all times for valley. If you run short, a wire to Amling will bring the valley you need. But a good way would be to place a standing order for regular shipments.

A FINE LOT OF ONCIDIUM SPRAYS.

FANCY ROSES

Of course we can supply the shorter grades of Roses, as many as you want, but what we wish to emphasize is our ability to furnish a fancy grade you cannot get everywhere. Indeed, there are few, if any, places in America where there is so large a supply of long-stemmed stock. Try Amling on Roses and you will conclude you could not ask for a more satisfactory source of supply.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Here is where you get Chrysolora (yellow), Touse (pink), Golden Glow, October Frost, Smith's Advance in quantity and at prices that give you a chance to use them at a good profit. We are Mum headquarters.

CARNATIONS

Our Carnations are of a quality that will please your customers. Nice, clean flowers, stems rapidly lengthening; most of them long enough now to please the most critical trade. All colors.

EASTER LILIES

We can supply fine Easter Lilies every day in the year.

MUMS!MUMS!!*We are Ready to Supply Anything You Want.

Our cuts are on and from now to the end of the season we shall have an enormous supply—all varieties and all grades. This week we offer the extra fine fancy yellows, the largest and best Mums thus far seen in this market this season, at 30 to 35 cents; a good medium to fancy grade at 15 to 20 cents; smaller mums at 6 to 10 cents. Plenty of them.

Try GRUNERWALD, the pink and white bunch mum. You'll like it; 25 to the bunch; $2.00 and $2.50 per bunch. We have a large and fine supply.

Cattleyas, $5.00 and $6.00 per dozen; special fancy, $7.50 per dozenLILIES*VALLEY

We are western headquarters for Easter Lilies, handling immense quantities. Can furnish thousand lots as easily as dozens if given a few days' notice. Stock always good and prices always right.

We never are without fancy Valley and can furnish on wire order. You should have a daily or every-other-day shipment of this from us, but don't miss a sale because you haven't got the stock. Take the order and wire us.

Randall's supply of Roses always is very large, but the cuts have increased rapidly in the last few days, and the crops now are much heavier than at any previous date this season. You can get all the Roses you want—any length and any variety—for we have all the Novelties as well as the standard sorts. Order Roses of Randall and you will win.

Headquarters for American Beauties

We have a large supply, all lengths, fine quality. Send us your orders and we will see that you get just what you want.

CARNATIONSWILD SMILAX

We have large daily supplies and the stock is first-class. Good stems. We can supply whatever grade your order calls for. All colors.

We have daily receipts and can supply usual quantities without notice; any quantity on 3 days' notice.

quickly disposed of and it is seldom that these are to be found in the icebox unsold. The buds are good and the color has not suffered any.

The cloudy weather has caused some trouble with Killarney and with many growers the flowers cut lately have been somewhat off color. There are plenty coming on the market in all lengths of stem and prices have weakened. White Killarney shows good quality and there is enough of it to fill orders. Richmond is fairly plentiful and the new roses are being cut in the longer lengths. Yellows remain popular and in Wards and Sunbursts the market cleans up readily.

Carnations are being cut heavily and the stems of the majority are as long as there is any need for. The flowers are of good quality, although the heat last week resulted in some complaints of soft stock. Valley continues to sell well and prices hold steady for the better grades. Lilies are in fair supply. Local singles and a few doubles have come to reinforce the Hudson river violets. These were extremely poor last week, while the heat wave lasted, but there is improvement this week. Cattleyas are more abundant and prices have dropped a notch. There is considerable call for white orchids. Oncidiums continue plentiful.

Asparagus strings are about out of the market and smilax continues scarce. There is an abundance of all other greens.

Club Meeting.

Walter S. McGee gave an interesting talk on fertilizers before the Chicago Florists' Club at its meeting October 9, at the LaSalle hotel. Unfortunately, the attendance was not so large as the merit of his paper would warrant. The principal business was the report of the committee on affiliation with the Cook County Florists' Association. The committee favored consolidation and the club, after some discussion, voted to accept the report and continue the committee.

A committee was appointed with power to act in the matter of a special night during the autumn flower show, when the Chrysanthemum Society of America will join with the Horticultural Society of Chicago in an exhibition at the Art Institute.

Various Notes.

W. H. Beebe, agent for the McCormick estate, owners of the Atlas block, in which there are sixteen wholesale florists and a seed store, has given his tenants assurances that it will be a considerable time before anything is done toward replacing the Atlas block with a skyscraper, but the florists nevertheless are nervous, as the leases can be terminated by the landlord at any time. The McCormick estate trusteeship expires in a few years, and it has been stated that nothing will be done with the Atlas block site before that time. There is the indubitable fact that downtown Chicago is overbuilt and that almost all plans for new office structures have been held up. Also, the McCormick estate, it has just developed, is figuring on a new 16-story building to house the lumber industry and to be known as the Lumberman's building, on the southeast corner of Madison and LaSalle streets, which will use up a good deal of money. All these facts indicate that the florists in the Atlas block can rest easy, but as they watch the great new Field building rush toward the sky they cannot dismiss the thought that the Atlas block site is rapidly appreciating in value and must eventually be improved.

The E. C. Amling Co., finding that pencils went pretty fast, had an advertisement printed on them. Now anybody is welcome.

T. E. Waters escorted the Misses Irby, of the Flower Shop, Memphis, through the Morton Grove establishment of Poehlmann Bros. Co., October 13.

Peter Reinberg has changed the hours for the automobile trip from greenhouses to store. During the summer the stock has arrived at 11 and 3. Now it is 7:30 and 12. The big motor truck has not missed a trip since it was put in service.

A. C. Kohlbrand and A. T. Pyfer, president and secretary of the Cook County Florists' Association, have sent out a call for "every loyal member who has the interest and welfare of the club at heart to be present" at the meeting to be held at the Tavern, October 16, at 8 p. m. The special order of business will be consideration of the report of the committee on affiliation.

Although devoting a part of his time to the Bohannon Floral Co., William Abrahamson still represents the Fort Smith Refrigerator Works among florists.

August Jurgens returned October 13, after having spent a fortnight at Calumet, Mich., where he is in partnership with E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., in the peony business. Mr. Pieser states that Mr. Jurgens planted two cars of roots and that the plantation there now consists of five and one-half acres.

Carl Thomas, of the A. L. Randall Co., points to Chrysolora as being the best chrysanthemum now on the market.

John Degnan, of Winterson's Seed Store, says that the wholesale demand for bulbs this season has been much the heaviest the concern ever has known, while retail counter trade has been excellent the last few days.

W. N. Rudd began cutting chrysanthemums October 7.

H. A. Fisher Co., Kalamazoo, supplied 12,000 carnations October 10 for a tag day at Battle Creek. George Fisher, who represents the concern on this market, had no difficulty in picking up the stock.

During the last few months the cut of the Wietor greenhouses has been sent to the store only once each day, but beginning October 13 two trips a day are being made, one in the early morning and one at noon.

The florists' department in the store of Siegel, Cooper & Co. is to have a large and handsome display refrigerator, Mr. Spero having given an order to the Fort Smith Refrigerator Works, which has a Chicago office in the Atlas block.

Frank Oeschlin reports azaleas on the way and is hoping for steady cold weather. In spite of the smaller sizes and higher average prices which have caused a number of big handlers to drop azaleas, Mr. Oeschlin has ordered

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Washburn and son will leave for Pasadena in about a week, where they will spend the winter months. At the store C. L. Washburn reported the first cut of pompons October 19, and says they are bringing excellent returns.

Both A. Miller and Guy Reburn, who are on the road in the interests of A. Henderson & Co., write the office that the business outlook is excellent. A. Henderson adds that this has been a much better year for the bulb men than 1912. Things look lively all the way around, he says.

H. O. Winchell is now a member of the Zech & Mann office force. He is lending assistance to Miss Wolfe, who has charge of the bookkeeping department. The amount of business being handled in the new quarters is too heavy for one bookkeeper.

A. L. Vaughan states that October 11 was the best day for his firm since Memorial day. Ernest Farley and his assistants in the shipping department were busy from early until late.

Something new in coal for wagon heaters has been put on the market by the Chicago Flexible Shaft Co., for use in its heaters. It is called the Clark carbon brick, and is said to be especially adapted for florists' use, as the maker claims it will burn longer, more evenly and produce more heat than any yet offered.

The John C. Moninger Co. is sending out its new catalogue of 384 pages, bound in cloth, by express instead of by mail, as the cost is the same, inside of certain limits. Express wagons back up to the door and go away loaded full. The books weigh thirty-six ounces and 600 to 800 make a load for the one-horse wagons. If they could be sent by parcel post it would be cheaper except in the farther zones.

Peter Pearson, who built greenhouses on Gunnison street and started into the wholesale business in young stock, is well pleased with the progress made. He has added seeds and bulbs to his line this season.

The final premium list for chrysanthemums at the show at the Art Institute November 5 to 7 was issued this week. Copies may be had by addressing C. W. Johnson, secretary Chrysanthemum Society of America, Morgan Park, Ill.

J. A. Evans, of Richmond, Ind., has been in town this week. He says he feels confident this will be a profitable winter for the trade and that green-

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

Business has been unusually dull, owing to extremely warm weather, warmer than it has been in twenty years in October. Flowers have been unusually scarce, owing to the freeze in the latter part of September. Since then it has been unusually hot and dry.

Chrysanthemums are quite scarce, as are carnations, and much of the stock is of poor quality.

Various Notes.

The Cushman Gladiolus Co., of Sylvania, was a heavy loser from the hard freeze in the last part of September. The losses were nearly $1,000 in gladioli and dahlias and it made it bad for Toledo florists, as the Cushman concern is the main source of supply for glads and dahlias.

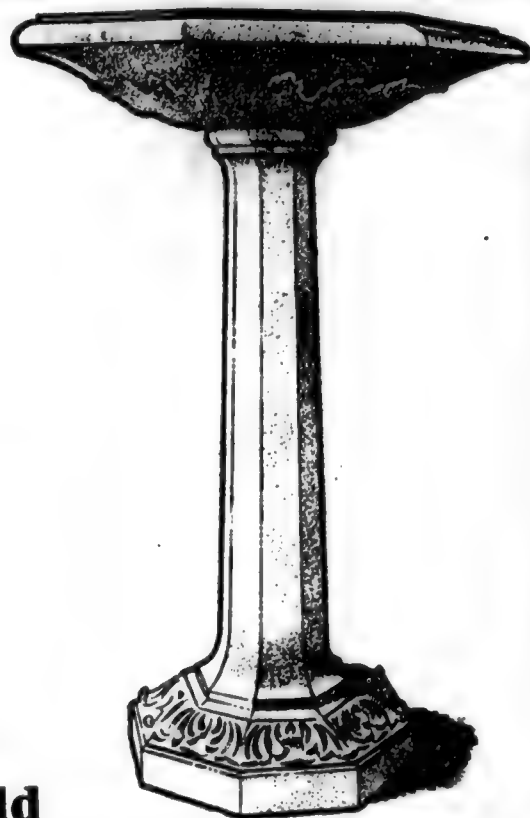

George Bayer's chrysanthemums are looking fine; in fact, better than ever, if it is possible for his stock to look better than it did last year.

Everybody has been busy painting and redecorating stores, greenhouses and motor delivery cars and all is in readiness for a big business this year, as Toledo is growing rapidly. Although

Make Your Garden Distinctive

Penn's artistic Bird Bath, illustrated at the right, is a beautiful model to use in the small garden to give it character. In the larger gardens an additional Bench in some shady nook, Bacchante and Pan, a Fountain or Sun Dial, Vases and Jardinieres filled with ferns or flowers; these selections and others will make your garden an institution of rare charm and beauty.

Penn's Garden Accessories are classics. Moulded in soft, neutral toned concrete, they are decidedly attractive, and furthermore will withstand time and climatic changes. Penn's prices, too, mean a saving of at least 50%; in a word, two pieces at Penn's cost the same as one elsewhere. Inspection especially invited.

The Market.

Business last week was not brisk. However, there were a few weddings of medium size, a little funeral work, some receptions, etc. Fall trade has not yet started in earnest. Carnations are more plentiful than they have been, and are selling in greater quantities. Chrysolora is a good yellow for an early mum, and greatly excels Golden Glow. Polly Rose is in good condition and sells well. There are but few white varieties. Harrisii lilies are excellent, but they do not find a ready sale, because chrysanthemums are given the preference. Mrs. Aaron Ward roses stand at the head of the list of favorite roses. Killarney and White Killarney

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The market last week was easy. The supply was adequate and in some lines more than adequate for requirements. As a result the general run of stock brought only fair prices. Chrysanthemums and giganteum lilies were the only exceptions. From the general condition of the market, it is apparent that a killing frost is needed to restore firmness in market affairs. The outdoor stock is having a strong call, which takes a good part of the demand away from the greenhouse-grown stock.

Roses, particularly Killarney and White Killarney, are in strong supply. The warm, bright weather of last week brought them in faster than the market required. As a result the middle of the week showed the market to be pretty crowded. Fairly good clearances were effected, however, on Saturday. Some fine Richmonds and Beauties are coming to the wholesale houses. The weather has been good for the dahlias. Some fine blooms are offered, particularly of Cuban Giant and Lonsdale. The choice, large blooms have been selling readily at fair prices, but the shorter stock hardly finds buyers except at strictly buyers' prices. Heavy cuts of cosmos are offered.

Chrysanthemums are still in moderate supply and have been cleaning up well at good prices. The market, however, is so weak that unless the gen-

PHILADELPHIA.The Eastern Market.

There has been a complete reversal this week of the market conditions of one week ago. Then flowers were scarce, excepting dahlias and orchids. Now flowers are plentiful; so plentiful, in fact, that they cannot all be used. The extraordinarily hot weather which has just passed was a serious disadvantage. It brought crops on too fast, made a soft growth, which will be felt later, and curtailed the demand, for people do not buy flowers when it is hot. In spite of all this, the volume of business this week is larger than it was a week ago. The average prices are lower, however, particularly on dahlias, small roses, carnations and chrysanthemums.

It may fairly be said that the chrysanthemum has succeeded the dahlia as the flower of the day. The sales of dahlias are falling off, though the quality continues excellent and the supply is enormous. The autumn queen now is in full swing, with all the best of the early varieties, Early Snow, Polly Rose, Pacific Supreme, which has driven G. O. P. to a back seat with most growers; Unaka, Monrovia and, last but by no means least, Chrysolora, all in full crop. Carnations are coming in more freely, Beauties not quite so much so. Other roses are extremely plentiful. So also are cattleyas; not so other orchids. Cyp's have arrived. Cosmos is good, and cheap.

Locust Farm.

It was a glorious afternoon of the end of September, when sun and sky and air were all so perfect that you wondered whether there is any season of the year like the fall. The party went by car from Riverton to Henry A. Dreer's Locust Farm, a few short miles away, for even newspaper men motor nowadays—when they are with their swell friends. There were three souls all told—that is the way it is put in the stories of the sea; they were George A. Strohlein, who is as well known in horticultural circles abroad as he is at home; James C. Clark, a master in the knowledge of dahlias and of ferns, and Phil.

The hardy phloxes at Locust Farm presented a sight that will long remain a pleasant memory. Fancy row after row of white, pink, lavender, rose, salmon and red phloxes, with many shades between, stretching out on both sides for long distances until the blooms surmounting the plants resemble a sheet of color. The young plants were in their prime, their magnificent trusses of richly colored flowers affording a splendid opportunity for comparison.

First came Europa, white with crimson-carmine eye; the flower is of great size. Next came Mme. Paul Dutrie, a pleasing pink orchid shade. B. Comte is a fine purple. The whites narrow down to three varieties for the best early, mid-season and late; they are Von Lassburg, Mrs. Jenkins and Jeanne d'Arc. Rynstrom, an improved Pantheon, is of the color of a Paul Neyron rose, a fine recent introduction. Next came R. P. Struthers, an older variety of bright carmine color with claret-red eye. Then came Elizabeth Campbell, a salmon queen among phloxes, a variety of rare beauty. Antonin Mercie is a good old color of lavender shade. Selma is another good older variety, a pale rose in color. Siebold is a bright red, an improved Co-quelicot. Asia is a new soft pink. Eugene Danzenvillier is an older variety of lilac color. Prof. Virehow is a splendid variety, but is little known; it is a bright orange-scarlet with heavy panicles. Widar is a lavender-shaded variety of recent introduction and is extremely attractive.

At this point Mr. Clark relieved Mr. Strohlein; stepping forward and pointing to the next variety, Mr. Clark said with impressive solemnity, "This is one of the best all-round red phloxes in cultivation; this is the variety George A. Strohlein." Mr. Strohlein resumed the lead with the next two varieties, Rhineland and W. C. Ega, two promising aspirants for public favor. Tragedie is a blood red, a striking sort. Hervor is a pink with white eye, recently introduced, a fine thing.

The peonies at Locust Farm are just being dug; there is an immense block of them. The Japanese iris are snugly ensconced in their quarters, in rows so regular as to resemble regiments of soldiers on parade. The delphiniums, Belladonna, formosum and Chinense, occupy the next track, looking remarkably well. Then come the roses; the Cochet and White Cochet occupy a lot of ground and have made good growth during the season. William R. Smith has produced some wonderful blooms from young plants; 2½-inch pot plants set out in May have thrown canes topped by buds that would rank as specials. Last is No. 208, a white rose—perhaps lemon yellow is more descriptive—of Dickson origin that promises well as an outdoor summer rose for cut flowers.

Various Notes.

The saffron-shaded pink sport of Rose My Maryland shown at the October meeting of the Florists' Club was grown and exhibited by George Burton, of Chestnut Hill. It originated with Mr. Burton three and a half years ago, is prolific and bids fair to rival Mrs. Taft for summer blooming.

tumble in prices, and after Tuesday, October 7, stock in large lots was sacrificed at low prices, especially roses in all varieties. Killarneys were in such abundance that firsts and seconds sold as low as $7.50 per thousand, extra fancy stock alone holding up. Specials in long fancy Beauties were down to $2 and $3 per dozen. Chrysanthemums are increasing in supply. Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are coming in quite freely. In another week these two will be plentiful, and then all cut stock will again suffer from the invasion of the autumn queen.

Club Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club took place October 9, at 2 p. m., and was full of interest from beginning to end. Joe Hauser, of Webster Groves, showed a fine bunch of his new single red dahlias, which attracted a great deal of attention, and W. S. Wells displayed a large assortment of fancy cut ferns, on which he delivered an interesting talk.

President Pilcher called the meeting to order promptly and the attendance numbered thirty-five when the meeting opened, with all the officers present. Adolph Jaenicke, a member of the publicity committee, spoke on holding a spring flower show. This brought out a long discussion, in which all present took part. At the conclusion it was decided to discuss the subject again and bring it to a final vote at the November meeting.

John S. Carter, president of the Nicotine Mfg. Co., and Phil Goebel, Jr., a grower at Webster Groves, made application for membership. All delinquent members were given one more month in which to pay last year's dues. The treasurer's report showed the club to be well off financially, with no outstanding debts. W. S. Wells then began his lecture on decorative ferns, with black-board illustrations and specimen cut ferns. This address was of great interest to all and a vote of thanks was extended at the conclusion. The chair appointed a committee, consisting of W. C. Young, J. Cannon and Pierre Schneider, to look into the merits of the new single dahlia exhibited by Joe Hauser, and to see it growing on his field and report at the next meeting of the club.

The question box brought out a long discussion on the profits on cut carnations. This discussion will be continued at the next meeting, November 13.

The Market.

Though the weather has been extremely unpleasant for the last two weeks, with cloudiness or rain every day, yet there has been a good deal of business. Up to the present writing, the October brides have averaged far ahead of those of June in this city. The funeral of one of the largest tobacco men in the county was held October 2, at Ephrata, Pa. This, of course, gave all the shops some work. Large quantities of orchids, valley and Beauties were used. Dahlias and cosmos keep the market well filled up.

WOONSOCKET, R. I.

The Flower Show.

At the flower show held at the First Baptist church to encourage the growing of flowers and to show the products of local growers, the florists of the city made particularly fine displays. The most beautiful and attractive was that of W. H. Flye. The background of his exhibit was green and in the center was an American flag of asters and salvias, with stars of feverfew. A vase thirty inches high, made of 500 asters, held some American Beauties.

The Continental Nurseries, of Franklin, Mass., of which M. J. Leeuwen is the proprietor, had a fine display of Japanese, Chinese and native evergreens, including forty-one distinct varieties. John T. Hayes had a good showing of the same nature, with fifteen varieties. Drabble Bros. had a good showing of mums, asters, etc., and Vose the Florist of silk oak, mums, roses, etc.

Various Notes.

Arthur Ames, of Pascoag, is building another greenhouse to meet the demands of his increasing trade. Last year he was unable to supply the large demand he had for bedding stock.

William H. Flye has his new greenhouse, one of the finest in the vicinity, filled with mums and other stock, all in the best condition. He has added carnations to his stock this year and is doing a thriving business in that line.

A. F. D.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

After a week of most delightful summer weather, beneficial to much of the greenhouse stock, which is backward this year, we have a change that makes an overcoat feel comfortable and is much more like chrysanthemum weather. We have had little rain so far this fall and conditions have been fine for the fellows who have been behind in their work.

Among the wholesalers there is some improvement in business. They are receiving elegant roses, and carnations are getting longer-stemmed and more plentiful. While the bulk of the chrysanthemums coming in are of the Polly Rose, Pacific and poorer sorts, there are some of the larger white, yellow and pink varieties, about enough to supply all demands. Valley, which was scarce for a day or two, is again plentiful and good, as are Beauties and cattleyas.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club met October 7, at the Fort Pitt hotel. There was a large and enthusiastic attendance and an interesting lot of exhibits. Randolph & McClements had some fine Giatrasii and Smithii ferns in 4-inch pots. These varieties are highly recommended by this firm and they are an authority, as they handle thousands of them. Carl Becherer, gardener at Dixmont hospital, had some of the best single dahlias ever grown in this vicinity. Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, sent a lot of fine single and cactus dahlias that attracted the interest of everyone present, and from the number who were making memoranda one would say the exhibitor will hear from this exhibit in a more substantial way. R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., also sent dahlias, the large show kind, and you should understand that large means immense, especially Geisha, the largest dahlia ever seen here. George Wessnauer, of Sewickley, Pa., had a collection of tuberous-rooted begonias which were good. W. C. Beckert had an interesting display of Dutch bulbs. Schenley park showed Chrysanthemum Artistic Queen, one that would make a good commercial flower; also a spray of flowers from the century plant. Chas. Knauff exhibited dahlias and roses that were grown right in the city; these were commended, not because they were so fine, but for the reason that they were so well grown under the conditions. A. J. Chantler, gardener for Mrs. J. D. Lyon, of Sewickley Heights, was highly commended for a collection of show dahlias.

The man was there who has a machine for holding pots when grafting. It looked like a good thing. He claims it will save about one-fourth the time. He also had a device for picking apples.

Various Notes.

Miss E. B. Maxwell, of Wilkesburg, Pa., has the sympathy of the trade, as well as of a host of friends, in the death of her father, which occurred October 13.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.30 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1912, to December 31, 1912, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.30.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

The Market

The warm weather during the last week has not helped much. Business has not been at all brisk, except for an occasional rush of short duration. Funeral work has been plentiful and has consumed a large quantity of short-stemmed stock which otherwise would have gone to the bad. This included a large shipment of asters, chiefly white; the colored varieties are somewhat scarce. Cut salvia is used freely in making up baskets and is a decided change from the ordinary run of things. One or two of the stores are specializing in tiny brown twig baskets filled with sweet alyssum and pink roses, and tied with pink baby ribbon or silk fiber ribbon. These baskets retail at 75 cents and a reasonable profit is made.

Local growers are bringing in some good chrysanthemums, pink, lavender, yellow and white. The size and quality are both satisfactory and they sell fast. Easter lilies are becoming more plentiful and callas are arriving slowly. Valley is also more plentiful. Violets are not selling fast. Roses of about all kinds are feeling the effects of the warm weather; nevertheless, they are good. Kaiserin is a great favorite with the Rochester people. Beauties are plentiful and good Carnots, Richmonds, Marylands, Killarneys, White Killar-

neys, Wards, Tafts, Brides and Maids are in good supply. Carnations are getting plentiful and the blooms are much larger, though their stems are short.
Little is seen in the line of potted plants in blossom, and a few small primroses were greatly welcomed the other day. Beautiful variegated crotons are seen in the stores and they sell readily.
There are plenty of greens of all descriptions.

Various Notes.

Among the out-of-town visitors last week were Arthur Zirkman, of the M.
Rice Co., Philadelphia; Wm. Baum Lake, New York city; T. T. Fryer, of the Tajimi Co., dealers in Japanese goods, New York, and the representative of A. A. Arnold, Chicago.

H. E. Wilson was fortunate enough to secure the large decoration for the pure food show held in Convention hall, October 13 to 25. The decorations are elaborate and beautifully arranged. A large quantity of southern smilax, laurel, etc., is used. Many large hanging baskets, filled with ferns, vines and artificial flowers, are suspended from the ceiling. The stage is arranged like a garden and attracts much attention.
The band stand, built in the center of the annex, is of octagonal shape, surrounded by a laurel hedge and bay trees, forming a pretty Venetian garden.

H. B. Stringer, Clarke Vick, George
Cramer and Geo. B. Hart took an auto trip to Corfu and Buffalo on Sunday, October 12, calling on various florists there.

I regret to record the death of Frank Vick, brother of Charles Vick, which took place in New York city October 11. He was a prominent business man several years ago in this city.

The decoration committee of the flower show met at the home of the president, John Dunbar, to discuss plans and to decide on badges and passes.
About fifteen were present. The Rochester Railway & Light Co. was represented by F. C. Taylor, who said his company would be glad to advertise the show as before, by placing

BOSTON.

The Market.

But for a faint glimmering of sunshine October 10, Boston and New England have experienced a full week of fog and drizzle, accompanied by an abnormally high temperature for the season. We can no longer joke about London fogs when we have had seven days of it. Considering the depressing climatic conditions, business has held up remarkably well. The dark weather has prevented any glut, but with the clearer weather we are at last getting a heavy increase in supplies and a fall in prices is probable.

Chrysanthemums so far have sold well. Leading varieties are Golden Glow, Smith's Advance, Unaka, October Frost, Glory of Pacific, Polly Rose and Chrysolora. The last named nets the highest price, some select flowers making $4 per dozen. Some nice pompons are also arriving and sell well. Roses are in heavy supply and soft, as a result of the dark weather. While nearly all varieties sell tolerably well, Russells, Beauties, Wards, Killarney Queens and Tafts are favorites. Cardinal just now is selling better than Richmond, while Milady is rather off color and going more slowly. Carnations have been selling remarkably well. Good stock has made $4 per hundred, although stems are as yet comparatively short.

Lilium longiflorum has been in excellent demand. Some good speciosum, magnificum and album also are coming in. Valley, on most days, has cleared up well. Good cosmos has been in demand; so have bachelor's buttons.

Pink snapdragons sell well. Other colors are little wanted. Single violets have been badly affected by the damp, warm weather and thousands have gone to sleep before they could be even offered for sale. Gardenias remain rather scarce. Cattleya labiata is much more abundant, and there is a good supply of other fall-flowering orchids. Yellow and white marguerites, while small, still are coming from a number of growers and sell well. Green stock has been in a little better demand. Some asters still arrive, but they are getting poor. Gladioli of good quality are still arriving, also some good dahlias.

Club Meeting.

A drenching rain on the night of the club meeting, October 14, was the cause of a rather small attendance. C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., was present and gave an interesting talk on a splendid exhibit, consisting of some fifty varieties of chrysanthemums flowered outdoors. The awards committee recommended a report of merit. Peter Fisher showed a new carnation, Alice Little, deeper than Pink Delight and considered much superior by Mr. Fisher, who has 3,000 plants of it. It was awarded a report of merit. Mr. Fisher also showed Carnation Gorgeous. M. C. Ebel, secretary of the national organization of gardeners, read a paper on "Who Is the Real Gardener?" which was discussed by many of those present. Four new members were elected. Reports were presented by the landscape, picnic and field day committees.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Wax, of the well known Tremont street firm of Wax Bros., have arrived home on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, after an extended European trip.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, are cutting pompon mums in quantity, in addition to such varieties as Unaka, Smith's Advance, Pacific and Polly Rose. They cut 600 longiflorum lilies daily and a fine lot of speciosums. They are still

The Boston Coöperative Flower Market will have its annual dinner for stockholders, shareholders and their wives, Wednesday evening, October 29.

William R. Nicholson, of Framingham, has fine Unaka, Polly Rose, Monrovia and Chrysolora chrysanthemums. In carnations, Pocahontas is extra good; also Pink Delight, Benora and White Wonder.

The Halifax Gardens Co. now sells all its flowers at the Boston Flower Exchange, through A. E. Walsh. This is the first season with roses. Exceptionally good Sunburst, Richmond, Taft and Killarney are being cut. Carnations are not being picked in any considerable number as yet, but a fine assortment of chrysanthemums are being sent in.

The committee on nominations for the Massachusetts Horticultural Society has posted this list of nominees to be voted on at the annual meeting, November 15: For president, J. K. M. L. Farquhar; vice-president, Walter Hunnewell; trustee for one year, F. L. Ames; trustees for three years, E. B. Dane, I. M. Weld, Wilfrid Wheeler, E. B. Wilder; delegate to state board of agriculture, H. T. Kidder; nominating committee, H. A. Clark, Philip Dexter, A. H. Fewkes, F. S. Moseley and John L. Smith.

Malcolm Orr, of Saugus, is growing Bonnaillon heavily this season. He also has a fine house of sweet peas from which he will commence cutting in a few days.

W. Hannan & Son, of Dorchester, have extra good Unaka and Chrysolora mums at the Boston Coöperative Market. Good Unaka also are coming from H. Zum Brunnen, of Auburndale.

James Seaver, of South Framingham, and Bert Winch, of Framingham, are shipping to J. S. Manter, at the Boston Flower Exchange, a fine line of such carnations as Benora, Pink Delight and White Wonder.

The New England Rose Conservatories, Exeter, N. H., are now cutting some extra fine Beauty roses, also Dark Pink Killarney, Double White Killarney and Hillingdon.

Edward Bingham, of Dedham, is one of the most successful growers of Princess of Wales violets and his flowers never wait long for purchasers. He is one of the few growers sending in ivy leaves, which are in demand.

The first callas seen in the market came from J. Streiferd & Son, of East Braintree. They also have fine Unaka mums and Killarney and White Killarney roses.

The New England Florists' Supply Co. has just received a large consignment of baskets and other novelties from Germany and Japan. The company has a stall at the Boston Coöperative Market, in addition to the store, and is well satisfied with business.

Geo. H. Noyes is receiving a fine line of carnations from S. J. Goddard, including Pink Delight, White Perfection, White Wonder, Rosette, Benora, and a fine dark red seedling, No. 59. From W. D. Howard, of Milford, he is receiving extra good Mrs. C. W. Ward, also Beacon, Fenn, Benora, Pink Delight and White Enchantress.

Perry E. Green, of Quincy, is strong on cosmos and sweet sultans at the Boston Coöperative Market. Fred L. Sly, of South Stoughton, has the first Campbell violets of the season at that market.

John A. Johnson, formerly Nelson & Johnson, Framingham, is sending well-flowered plants of that useful pink begonia, Gloire de Chatelaine, to W. A. Hastings. This begonia is splendid, either for bedding or pot culture and is a perpetual bloomer. Mr. Johnson also has good single violets, and carnations of the Enchantress type.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. are getting busy in their sundries department and look for an active fall and winter trade.

J. K. Chandler & Son, of Tewksbury, are heavy growers of single violets and mums. They have been sending in as many as 100 dozen Golden Glow mums daily of late.

Edward Winkler, of Wakefield, has a light pink seedling carnation similar to Winona, which he grows in quantity and finds profitable. He has a fine assortment of other carnations, also yellow marguerites.

Albert Roper, of Tewksbury, in addition to being a splendid carnation grower, has some magnificent mums. His Chrysolora and Unaka are superb.

The Budlong Co., of Auburn, R. I., is shipping among other roses, good Russell, Killarney Queen, Double White Killarney, Richmond, Sunburst and Cardinal. The last named proves a good seller.

W. H. Ward, of Montvale, at the Boston Flower Exchange, has some good heliotrope and yellow marguerites; also a good variety of carnations, including excellent Pink Delight, Winsor, Beacon, Benora and Rosette.

A. Cartwright, of Clematis Brook, and Joseph Fuller, of Leominster, have good Killarney roses at the Boston Coöperative Market. Mr. Cartwright also has nice Richmond.

George W. Ayer, of Reading, has exceptionally fine single violets this season, which do not go to sleep as many are now doing. He is just starting to pick carnations.

Anderson Bros., of Woburn; E. F. Hutchinson & Son, of Lexington, and Miss Carrie Ball, of Southboro, are all shippers of high-grade carnations in quantity to the Boston Coöperative Market.

Charles E. Evans, of Watertown, is cutting a fine crop of Smith's Advance and Unaka chrysanthemums.

Mrs. J. W. Rogers, the Summer street florist, has an attractive window of colored-leaved plants. She is carrying quite a line of Dutch bulbs and fall trade is good.

Gustave Olson, of Woburn, is cutting splendid Chrysolora mums, and Lively & Bond good Unaka. Both are sold at the Boston Coöperative Market.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter M. Miller are enjoying a vacation in Maine.

Growers are doubtful if their flowers will be in season for the chrysanthemum show which opens October 30. All varieties are a few days late here.

At Ernest H. Borowski's, in Roslindale, there are two as grand houses of specimen cyclamens as I have ever seen. A house of Cincinnati begonias also is fine. Lorraine here has been dropped entirely. The old Boston fern is well grown here and is in much heavier demand than the newer varieties. Bougainvilleas are looking well. Preparations are being made to build more glass for azaleas, which are imported in quantity. W. N. Craig.

ST. PAUL.

The Market.

Conditions are constantly improving in this market. Outdoor stock is now entirely off the market and indoor stock is not too plentiful. Mums are coming in slowly, as are also carnations. Roses are more plentiful, but are not overabundant. Violets and sweet peas are not plentiful and the demand readily exhausts the supply. A fine lot of orchids of all varieties is to be had and they move well. Debutante parties and receptions are taking their usual share of high-class flowers and a great many fancy baskets are included in the offerings. Funeral work has been plentiful, with hardly enough stock available at times. The general business is fine and everybody is earnestly going after his share of it.

Various Notes.

L. L. May & Co. report business as rapidly improving and cut flowers moving readily. This firm is doing a heavy bulb business.

Fred Topel, the East Seventh street florist, has been at the hospital, suffering from rupture. He underwent an operation and no doubt will be at his business again in a few weeks.

Chas. Keipert has a fine lot of mums and his place is in excellent shape.

The Snelling Floral Co. has just completed the filling of a fine new house devoted entirely to cyclamens. Violets are coming on nicely and should give a fine lot of flowers soon. This concern started several years ago to specialize on cyclamens and violets and grow nothing else. The output is readily disposed of.

There is a rumor of the formation of an association of growers. The plan is to organize and have a central distributing point, with a wholesale house, perhaps. A number of the growers are enthusiastic and no doubt such a move would be a good one. It would simplify the growers' end of the business a great deal. The retailers also appear to approve of the idea.

Holm & Olson had the Bohn wedding decorations at Lake Minnetonka October 10. This no doubt was the largest job executed this season. Chrysanthemums and Beauties were the principal flowers used and the local market was practically cleaned out. A crew of men was on the work four days. O. J. Olson is given much credit for the way this job was handled.

T. Clausen, of Albert Lea, Minn., was a recent visitor. He reports his stock in fine shape and, as he depends on this market for the sale of same, he negotiated for winter orders. C. R. F.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, O. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

NOTICE was given October 3 of the retirement of Roland Bolgiano from the copartnership of J. Bolgiano & Son, of Baltimore, Md.

It is remarkable the way pansy seed sells. This year larger quantities than ever before have been sold and the supply is well cleaned up.

FROM a beginning in a small store in the Masonic Temple, the Shugart-Ouren Seed Co., of Council Bluffs, Ia., is completing its twentieth year in its new three-story building.

THE Champaign Seed Co., of Champaign, Ill., has discontinued handling shrubbery and florists' supplies and in the future will confine its business to field and garden seeds.

A LARGE addition has been made to the warehouse of the Edward F. Dibble Seed Co., of Honeoye Falls, N. Y., doubling the available floor space. The building is of concrete blocks, 40x50 feet, and one story in height.

A. R. MILLER, of the Covington Seed Co., of Covington, Ky., has disposed of the concern to Goode & Dunkie, who will continue the business as in the past. Mr. Miller will give his time to the seed and florists' trade in the firm to be known as the W. R. Miller Sons.

THE American crop of aster seed is increasing each year that there is a fair crop and it appears that this season the output of seed will be much better than the crop of cut flowers would indicate. Still there is no reduction in the quantity of European aster seed imported.

ALFALFA, fig, olive and walnut crops were the only crops normal or above that point this year in California, according to figures announced at the office of the state horticultural commission. The estimates were made from returns submitted to the commission by county horticulturists.

CREDITORS of the Alexander Seed Co., Augusta, Ga., will receive a settlement of ten per cent, as the agreement on this composition has been confirmed by the court. The total amount of the company's liabilities is $27,153, so that the firm will pay $2,715.30 and be discharged from bankruptcy.

ACCORDING to a recent decision of the solicitor of the Department of Agriculture, shippers of potatoes and other produce who misbrand the contents of the barrels or packages, or fill up with marbles or culls, will not only be subject to a fine but will be likely to go to Atlanta federal prison for a year, for violation of the food and drugs act. The Department of Agriculture has issued circular No. 21 bearing on the subject.

SUIT for an injunction has been brought by the Griswold Seed Co., of Lincoln, Neb., against the road overseer, who threatened to tear down the new greenhouse of the firm, which was built on land platted as a street in 1891 but never used. The company has commenced proceedings for the vacation of the property as a street, but, until the restraining order was obtained, had to keep the road overseer off with a hose and heavy water pressure.

THERE are quite a few small lots of cold storage lilies that are beginning to bother the owners.

A SEED store will be opened soon by Everett Scott at Weatherford, Tex. Mr. Scott will run this concern separate from his present produce business.

THE officers of the Archias Seed Store corporation, Sedalia, Mo., are: President, L. H. Archias; vice-president, L. A. Kipping; secretary, L. Archias.

ANOTHER FIGHT IS ON.

The seed trade, figuratively speaking, is taking off its coat for another battle to save itself from the handicap of the parcel post. This time it is the rate of postage on catalogues that is to be enormously increased unless a fight is made.

October 9, acting under the authority given him in the parcel post law, Postmaster General Burleson submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission a proposal to change the regulations in such a way as to bring books and printed matter within the parcel post and submit them to the same zone system and rates as apply to other parcel post matter. The law gives the Postmaster General the authority to change regulations and rates subject to the approval of the commission. The commission has given until October 20 for the filing of statements or requests bearing on the question. Washington advices are that it is not improbable the commission will hold a public hearing before approving the changes.

Immediately upon receiving information regarding the proposed changes W. F. Therkildson, Painesville, O., who is chairman of the American Seed Trade Association's committee on postal laws, prepared a protest which he filed with Third Assistant Postmaster General A. M. Dockery. Mr. Therkildson believes that the protest of the catalogue houses of the country will be sufficiently strong so that, even if books are included under the zone system and rates, an exception will be made of books issued for advertising purposes.

A good many people think the present flat rate of postage on printed matter, 1 cent for each two ounces without regard to distance, is higher than the parcel post rates, but the seed trade knows it stands to lose thousands upon thousands of dollars if the zone rates are applied to seed catalogues. To begin with, a catalogue weighing four ounces now goes anywhere for 2 cents, while under the parcel post rates it will cost 4 cents. The increase on heavier books will not be so great as 100 per cent, but in actual practice in the seed trade the increase will run from thirty-three to fifty per cent. A book weighing six ounces will pay the pound rate, from 5 to 12 cents according to distance. Millions of seed catalogues weigh under ent rate or below, but above 500 miles there would be a sharp increase.

But one of the great disadvantages comes in the extra labor necessary to determine the zone and correct amount of postage—a big job where an edition of a catalogue runs to 100,000 copies, as many now do.

Every seedsman, nurseryman and florist should figure out at once just what the application of the parcel post zone rates would do to the postage on his 1914 book and write or wire a statement to reach the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C., not later than October 20. That's next Monday. Don't delay.

BENT GRASSES GOING UP?

According to A. Le Coq & Co., Darmstadt, "the crop of Agrostis stolonifera (vulgaris) is a perfect failure this year in America. Old stocks are nearly exhausted and prices jumped to an enormous height, which does not yet seem to have reached the top. In our country we shall probably have a medium crop of the German agrostis, which is so well liked, although some lots are chaffy and require a good deal of cleaning. In consequence of the poor American crop, speculation has set in and one may expect high prices for this variety also."

THE ORCHARD GRASS CROP.

According to Conrad Appel, of Darmstadt, orchard grass, Dactylis glomerata, "in all centers of production, America excepted, has yielded quite a full crop and, taking the average, prices are lower. However, the rather brisk demand on the part of the American buyers has produced a certain increase; the market is firm and a further ad-

THE GRANDEST OF FORCING AND BEDDING TULIPS

"Brilliant" Keizerskroon

A bed of this most beautiful of tulips when in bloom is certainly a dazzling sight. The combination of colors, Brilliant Red and Dazzling Gold, cannot be surpassed by any other variety. The flowers are of extra large size with very strong stems, which protect them against rain and wind storms; furthermore, on account of their general strong character, they make a perfect showing for a longer time than any other variety. We have received from a specialist in Holland an exceptionally fine stock of this Tulip and offer them at the low prices as below.

NOTE: Keizerskroon is also a most desirable sort for forcing and house culture.

PRICE:

First Size Bulbs, per 100, $1.25; per 1000, $11.00
Mother Bulbs.....per 100, $1.50; per 1000, $14.00

We also have a complete line of all bulb stock of "WORTH WHILE" quality and at right prices.

Lilium Candidum

AND OTHER SEASONABLE BULBS

The Lilium Candidum we have on hand is now in cold storage, therefore in perfectly dormant and sound condition. Planted now in the open ground or in pots, they will make their winter growth—be very handy for Decoration Day or June Weddings. We offer the following sizes till sold:

- Lilium Candidum, 18/20 ctms., $3.75 per 100, $35.00 per 1000
- Lilium Candidum, 20/22 ctms., 4.25 per 100, 40.00 per 1000
- Lilium Candidum, 22/24 ctms., 4.75 per 100, 45.00 per 1000

All cold storage Lilium Giganteum sold. Still have on hand, however, the following:

LILIUM SPECIOSUM ALBUM—Cold Storage

8 to 9-in., 225 bulbs in a case, $7.50 per 100, $50.00 per 1000, $12.00 per case

SPIRAEA, or ASTILBE (Cold Storage)

- Gladstone. Enormous spikes of pure white flowers . . . per 100, $6.00; per 1000, $55.00
- Queen of Holland. One of the finest; grand florists' variety; white. per 100, 8.00; per 1000, 75.00

THE GODFREY CALLA

Also Calla Aethiopica, from the Guernsey Islands, ^{New}Source

All in excellent condition, sound and free from disease.

THE GODFREY CALLA

- Large bulbs, $7.50 per 100; $70.00 per 1000
- First size, $6.00 per 100; $55.00 per 1000
- Mailing, or Second size, $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000

CALLA AETHIOPICA—Guernsey-grown

These bulbs have been selected with great care and are sound and free from rot, and all with eyes.

- 1¼ to 1½ inches in diameter. $ 5.50 per 100; $ 50.00 per 1000
- 1¾ to 2 inches in diameter. 7.00 per 100; 65.00 per 1000
- 2 to 2½ inches in diameter. 10.50 per 100; 100.00 per 1000
- Monster bulbs 16.00 per 100

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

MENLO PARK, CAL.

The Menlo Park Horticultural Society will hold its annual fall flower show October 31 to November 2. There is a good-sized premium list, with chrysanthemums, of course, the important feature. Entries must be in the hands of the secretary forty-eight hours in advance of the opening of the exhibition. The officers are: President and manager, Henry L. Goertz; vice-president, Charles Ehrlich; treasurer and assistant manager, George Nunn, and secretary, James T. Lynch.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The season's trade is opening up finely, many large wedding and funeral orders marking the first few days of the month. Large quantities of roses are coming in and there is no scarcity except in whites, but still there is little stock that goes to waste. Cosmos is a good seller among the cheaper grades of stock. Orchids are practically down and out, the demand being greatly in excess of the supply. Other flowers are about as last reported.

At the Huntington Estate.

Every time I visit the Huntington estate I note a great improvement, not only in the condition of the stock, but also in the great variety being constantly added. Mr. Hertrich is always on the lookout for anything novel or rare, and the addition of the Bradbury collection of rare plants is a noteworthy one. There are now no less than forty-two varieties of cycads at this famous place; Zamia Woodi, the rarest of all, is the latest addition. It is said that only one other large specimen exists and that is in the Royal Gardens at Kew. There is also a magnificent sample of Encephalartos Leichensteini, a rare specimen with a double crown.

I have before mentioned the Phoenix Roebelenii here and praised them, and it may be worth mentioning that Harry A. Barnard, of Stuart Low & Co., England, in whose company and that of C. Morton I took the trip, said they were the finest specimen plants he had ever seen. Cocos insignis is a lovely thing and there are many others.

The collection of rare and valuable acacias here is probably unrivaled, the variety being too great to chronicle here. One is quite unique, called Quenevaca, a Spanish name. It has singular, bloated looking thorns and is of great beauty. A beautiful foliage plant, among the new arrivals, is Excœcaria bicolor, bearing leaves that are a deep green on the upper surface and bright scarlet beneath, a most striking and beautiful plant. The Japanese garden is especially beautiful now, the lake being covered with water hyacinths in full bloom; great masses of the pretty blue spikes show up everywhere.

Whole pages could be written about this great place without exhausting half its beauties and there is nothing else exactly like it in the world.

Various Notes.

H. Turner, Fred Howard, J. Dieterich, William Hertrich, C. Morton and C. Winsel are among those booked for the San Francisco show from this neck of the woods.

D. MacRorie paid another flying visit to Los Angeles last week.

I was glad last week to renew an old friendship with Harry A. Barnard, the well known, genial representative of Stuart Low & Co., Enfield, England. Mr. Barnard was much interested in all he saw in southern California. By his pleasing manner he makes friends wherever he goes. A retentive memory, combined with his many years' experience, makes him a most interesting companion and he is "posted" as are few men in the horticultural world today.

J. B. Menasco is cutting some remarkably fine outdoor roses. His MacArthur, Ulrich Brunner, Detroit and Kaiserin are splendid in color and substance.

Morris Goldenson reports fine business, especially in funeral work and weddings.

S. Murata reports business as excellent. The mums and violets handled by this up-to-date wholesaler are exceptionally good. Miss E. V. Baker is now connected with the office department as bookkeeper and stenographer. This is not the only fair maid around the Murata establishment, for the White Fair Maid carnation here is equally charming in its own way. This is handled exclusively by Murata & Co.

There was an appreciative audience at the monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society, October 6, to hear Mr. Goelitz speak on landscape gardening.

Fred Sperry returned October 4 from his trip through Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, and reports an enjoyable time and good business. Trade keeps up well at the store.

V. Clemence, of Pasadena, was in town, looking up stock and also finding new customers for his fine plants.

J. Marshall, of Pasadena, died October 5 and many of his late associates in the Horticultural Society attended the funeral. A fine floral offering was also sent.

The H. N. Gage Co. has given an option on its Long Beach property at something like ten times the purchase price of a few years ago.

Tom Wright is back at the store, after his serious illness at the California hospital. Everyone was glad to welcome him back. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The last week was one of considerable business activity for both grower and retailer. We are still enjoying perfect weather about the bay, and the warm, sunny days stimulate the growth of greenhouse stock. American Beauties are of almost perfect quality; there are fine flowers with excellent stems. They command top-notch prices and have been used abundantly for decorative purposes and also for funeral sprays. Owing to the fact that the rains have not yet begun, violets are still inferior. They have no fragrance and have not the strength that they should have at this time. Among the cheaper flowers in good condition are cosmos. They are good sellers, because they are newcomers. Carnations are showing longer stems this week and the flowers are larger. Killarney and My Maryland roses do not show much improvement. Mrs. Taft remains popular.

The downtown merchants are realizing more and more the rich effect that can be obtained for their show windows with fresh flowers and fresh greens in place of the stiff artificial ones, and great quantities of huckleberry, oak and salal are being sold. Teasels are unusually popular this winter. During the scarcity of orchids, lily of the valley has been drawn on heavily, and unless our growers put in some quick action we shall notice the shortage some Horticultural Society.

At the regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, held at Sachem hall on Saturday evening, October 4, the exhibits were scored as follows: A vase of Mrs. Taft roses, exhibited by E. W. McLellan Co., 90 points; specimen plant Adiantum Farleyense, exhibited by MacRorie-McLaren Co., 90 points; specimen plant of acrostichum, exhibited by H. Plath, 85 points.

The interest of the society is concentrated on the coming fall flower show. The committee in charge, of which William Munro, of the Crocker estate, is chairman, reported favorable progress. There has been some difficulty in finding floor space for the many exhibitors. The committee reported the souvenir programs ready for the press, the quarter cards distributed, the floor scheme adopted, a long list of patrons with liberal subscriptions and an early sale of tickets. There is no doubt that the flower show will be a great success, being in the hands of able managers. At the meeting of the society an invitation was received from the Menlo Park Floral Society, to attend that society's show at Menlo Park, October 31 to November 2. A feature of the Menlo Park flower show will be a barbecue.

Various Notes.

Julius Eppstein, of the California Florists, had an elaborate table decoration at the Family Club last week. There were fifty guests seated at a table which bounded a miniature reproduction of Golden Gate park. Over four sets of elaborate swinging gates was the inscription, "Travers Park." The park itself was a skillful creation of lawns, swimming pools, driveways, and beds of chrysanthemums, cornflowers, cosmos and pansies. In the menagerie were twenty-five living monkeys, which supplied much merriment to the guests. Back of each guest was a cartoon which bore a remarkable likeness to the person over whose chair it was placed. Automobiles moved back and forth on the driveways, complete with electric equipment. This decoration was not entirely a creation of flowers, but one such as the retail florists are often asked to supply. It showed unusual originality and dexterity of arrangement.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. is sending out a neat price list of Holland bulbs, of which they received a heavy shipment early in the month.

The Mayflower Floral Co. has closed its doors and the contents have been sold at auction. The fixtures, which represent a large expenditure of money, are still practically new. A deal is pending, which, if successful, will turn the store over to a new management, two women being interested in the location.

San Francisco has added another florists' establishment to its list. The Bellview Floral Shop opened its doors October 1. The store, which is in the corner of the hotel building, is a large and attractive one. Miss Cohn, formerly with Julius Eppstein, is one of the partners and is known to the craft. We wish the new firm every possible success.

The Panama-Pacific Exposition Co. is preparing to exhibit some fine specimens of bougainvillea plants at the coming flower show, to be held at the Fairmont hotel. The plants stand fully fourteen feet in height, are pyramidal in shape and are covered with a mass of blooms.

The Art Floral Co., on Powell street, has been showing some attractive window decorations during the week. There is no doubt that this firm has used every opportunity to make the new tiled-floor show window one of the most attractive in the city. W. A. H.

SEATTLE.

The Market.

Business is picking up nicely, and were it not for the shortage in the supply of stock, there would be little to complain of. Almost all varieties of stock are exceedingly scarce. Carnations are arriving only in small quantities, and for the next month or so there will be a limited cut. Roses, too, are somewhat scarce, but the quality in most cases is exceptionally good. A few local chrysanthemums are coming in and are meeting the competition of the California blooms, which arrive in good condition. A few outdoor flowers are offered. Asters are with us yet and gladioli are still in good condition. Some cyclamen plants are seen in the stores, but ferns and palms seem to be in greatest demand for pot plants at present.

Various Notes.

The Arcadian Florists have made a new departure in advertising in this city. They have large posters on the billboards, showing a bunch of roses, as a means of attracting trade.

Victor Johnson, well known to the trade in this city, has purchased the establishment of the Capitol Hill Floral Co., on Capitol hill. This place has been allowed to run down considerably, but under Mr. Johnson's capable management, no doubt, it will regain its trade and standing. The location is one of the best in the city, and the proximity of the Lakeview cemetery is a good asset.

The proprietors of the Roserie have overhauled their premises on Second avenue, making a more roomy and commodious store.

Rosaia Bros. are cutting fine roses at their plant at Thomas. The Bridesmaids are especially good.

Mrs. Floyd O'Grady, better known among the florists as Miss Bessie Burns, is the proud mother of a daughter.

The city greenhouses in Volunteer park are now pretty well filled with plants. The cyclamens, obconicas, chrysanthemums, etc., are looking fine, and Jacob Umhauff, who has charge of the houses, is certainly making a creditable display. Several fine specimens of geraniums are in full bloom.

The tarnish bugs have been extra busy this season. Not confining their depredations to asters and chrysanthemums, they have practically destroyed the dahlias in several plantations, and even gladioli and roses are the worse for their attentions.

The Washington Greenhouses are in better shape than they have been for some time. C. Hoffmeister has been putting in a lot of hard work here, and the results prove the efficiency of it.

The Market.

Business has started off with a rush. Weddings of prominence are numerous. Orchids and valley have been meeting with an unusual demand and the local supply is limited. There is a good supply of roses in all varieties and they sell readily. Carnations are improving, but are yet far from a surplus and are usually sold out before the day is over. Mums are a little late this year and therefore a scarcity prevails. The mum fly has been hard to cope with this season; in some of the ranges the stock was badly injured and it took constant attention to keep the pests down. Shipments from California are being used to relieve the deficiency. Several slight frosts have injured the outside stock, but in secluded places some flowers are still to be found. Violets are more plentiful and move readily.

Various Notes.

F. Borsch has left for California, where he expects to spend the winter. Mr. Rose, representing the Sefton Mfg. Co., was a week-end caller.

Charles Welty returned last week from an extended trip to Europe. He reports having had an exceedingly pleasant time. E. R. C.

The Market.

This city was visited Saturday night, October 4, by a heavy frost. The thermometers in some places registered as low as 22 degrees above zero and all kinds of outdoor stock were more or less damaged. We still see a few sweet peas, asters, marigolds, etc., grown in protected places, but flowers of this kind are almost gone. Carnations are arriving in greater quantity, but are of poor quality and are still far short of the demand. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful and a great deal of California stock is seen. There are many fine, big blooms with little foliage, due partly to poor packing by the growers. Roses are of fair quality and bring good prices. Last week was an unusually busy one, with several funerals and decorations.

Various Notes.

Mrs. M. E. Hayden is showing an autumn effect in the decoration of her store and windows. Mr. Miller, her store manager, reports business as extra good.

Mr. Goldsack, for the last few years grower at the greenhouses of A. A. Hinz, has purchased an interest in the place of Robert Davis, at Larchmont. One house, 20 x 100, is being added and other improvements are being made. The houses will be used for lettuce this winter, followed by tomatoes and bedding plants next spring and summer.

Several of the local growers made a trip to Seattle last week, calling on the growers there.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

C. H. CHANDLER, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., has purchased 234 acres near Muscatine, Ia., at $225 per acre, and will establish a nursery there.

THE Spaulding Nursery & Orchard Co., of Springfield, Ill., whose plant was destroyed by fire recently, will rebuild at a cost of $1,500.

NURSEYMEN in the southwest lost so much young stock as a result of the long dry, hot spell that a great many advance orders will probably have to be canceled.

G. A. CHAMBERS, for the last ten years in the employ of the Griswold Seed Co., of Lincoln, Neb., succeeds E. S. Gunn as manager of the retail store at Lincoln.

CHAS. ERNST will move his nurseries to Eaton, O., from Moscow, O. The loss inflicted by the floods last spring decided him in making the change, as well as an inducement of $5,000, put up by the citizens of Eaton.

THE Tennessee State Board of Entomology has issued a pamphlet by G. M. Bentley, state entomologist and plant pathologist, entitled "Suggestions on the Preparation and Use of Spray Formulas." The pamphlet, bulletin No. 10, gives a large number of formulas and suggestions for the treatment of various plants for the different pests and diseases.

D. S. LAKE, after successfully conducting the Shenandoah Nurseries, of Shenandoah, Ia., for forty-three years, has incorporated for $200,000 and taken his two sons into the concern. The nursery assets of Mr. Lake, amounting to $300,000, are to be turned over to the corporation for the stock. The officers of the company are: President, D. S. Lake; vice-president, A. F. Lake, and secretary and treasurer, R. S. Lake.

ONE of the reasons why the demand for peach and other fruit trees in the Pacific northwest is not holding the pace of recent years may be found in a report from Wenatchee that the largest peach orchard in Washington will be destroyed before next spring, or a cannery will be built to handle the entire crop. The Moses Coulee Orchard Co. has 500 acres of peach trees in various stages. Shipments this year would have totaled fifty cars but for demoraization of the market.

IN his address on "How to Secure Early Matured Stock for Early Fall Shipments," before the Southern Nurserymen's Association, Harry Nicholson, manager of the Commercial Nursery Co., at Winchester, Tenn., pointed out a few of the ways in which it is possible to aid nature in her work. Ceasing cultivation as early as possible in the fall is a method generally practiced. He also stated that in his section of the country a successful practice has been to spray peach trees with a fine spray of one pound of copper sulphate dissolved in fifty gallons of water from October 10 to 15. This helps to "ripen" the trees and causes the leaves to fall off in less than ten days.

THE office building of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, on J street, Fresno, Cal., has been moved to a location near Roeding park. There is talk of building a new structure on the old site, but Geo. C. Roeding, manager of the concern, says no such action will take place this year.

A DECISION handed down by Judge Jones of the court of common pleas at Troy, O., which makes nursery stock subject to taxation in that state, is being strenuously opposed. A number of firms of Springfield, O., have combined to engage three attorneys to carry the case into the court of appeals in the hope of a reversal of the ruling.

THE Horticultural Trades Association of Great Britain has received complaint to the effect that shipping rates from that country are twenty-five per cent higher on nursery stock sent to the United States, than those paid by Holland and Belgium. At the last meeting of the council it was resolved to approach the shipping agencies with a view to securing more uniform rates.

THE situation in the nursery trade in the middle west is not so good as most of the men in the business would like. To begin with, last spring's cleanup was not so profitable as it might have been. Then the long, dry, hot summer caused the loss of considerable spring planted stock, deficient growth, and now the loss in the twin kings, corn and cotton, is thought to have impaired the purchasing power of the farmers over a big section of the country.

RECEIVER RUNS CONCERN.

John Y. Chisholm, the receiver of the Phoenix Nursery Co., of Bloomington, Ill., an account of whose appointment was given in a recent issue of The Review, finds his hands full in operating the concern now that the fall rush of business has begun. Mr. Chisholm is now in full possession of the property of the company, and has plans for clearing up the indebtedness and leaving the concern in shape to do business. The total liabilities will probably reach $50,000 to $60,000, and the assets are considerably more than that, according to the estimates of the former managers. The creditors have all agreed to let the receiver remain in charge and work out the situation the best way possible. Mr. Chisholm is using every available economy to conduct the business while it is in his charge, in order to realize the most cash for the creditors. One of the things decided upon is to call in the force of traveling men and to make sales by catalogue for a year or two. It is likely that the uptown store will be discontinued after the expiration of the lease of the present quarters.

The stock and physical property of the company are in excellent condition and the concern has an immense amount of growing stock on its own and leased lands. W. E. Rossney will continue his services with the concern and work with the receiver in the clearing up of the indebtedness and the rehabilitation of the plant.

and arborvitae in this part of Tennessee. I want to know the history of this insect and the best way to get rid of it.

J. S. G.

I have had no experience with this pest on cedars or arborvitae, but it is evidently similar to one that attacks spruces. The spruce pest, and probably the one that is found on your trees, can be controlled by giving the trees a thorough spraying with whale oil soap about the last week in March. I would advise you, however, to send specimens to your state entomologist, Professor Gordon M. Bentley, Knoxville, Tenn., who may be able to throw further light on the subject.

Your white pine and blue spruce are infested, not with a scale, but with an aphis which has proved extremely troublesome the last two or three years. I would not advise the use of the lime sulphur solution, although sulphur is

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The Nassau County Horticultural Society held its annual dahlia show at Pembroke hall October 8. The entries were many and the displays all excellent. James Duthie, gardener for Mrs. Edward M. Townsend, Oyster Bay, N. Y., was the leader of the prize-winners and won the Henry A. Dreer silver cup by capturing first prize for the best collection of dahlias for the third successive year. The Stumpp & Walter Co. had an exhibit of dahlias, Charles Totty a collection of early flowering mums and P. W. Popp, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., a fine lot of peony and collarette dahlias. The awards for flowers and plants were as follows:

The New French Hydrangeas

Let us tell our friends that these new French Hydrangeas are the most meritorious plants brought out in years. They have enormous trusses of bloom that completely hide the plant. They are half hardy and may be planted outdoors in the latitude of Philadelphia and in the Gulf and Pacific states. They are also fine as house plants, blooming in the spring time about Easter.

These plants are especially valuable to the florist, as in a four-inch pot even they throw up an enormous head. Buy them in the fall, pot up in a cool house and bring on gradually. They are very easy to manage. Anyone can bring them into flower. The varieties we offer are the cream of the lot.

New French Hydrangeas. Note what immense flowers they produce in a 4-inch pot.

AVALANCHE—A splendid large white, which has made a reputation for itself during the past two seasons. An easy variety to force.

2½-in. pots, dozen, 75c; hundred, $5.00; thousand, $45.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, 85c; hundred, $6.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $1.50; hundred, $10.00.

BOUQUET ROSE—Large trusses of well formed flowers, rosy-amber turning to bright pink; has proven a special favorite in the New York market this season.

2½-in. pots, dozen, 75c; hundred, $5.00; thousand, $45.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, $1.00; hundred, $7.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $2.00; hundred, $15.00.

E. G. HILL—This is the newest one and the very best, and is by far the very best pink that we have yet tried; trusses of immense size. Color a most pleasing shade of baby pink that does not fade. Growth vigorous, foliage large and attractive. It is one of the easiest to force into bloom during the spring, coming into flower early.

2½-in. pots, dozen, $2.50; hundred, $20.00; thousand, $150.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, $3.25; hundred, $25.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $4.00; hundred, $30.00; 5-in. pots, dozen, $6.00.

FRAICHEUR—Very large, regularly shaped flowers, white, delicately suffused with rose. Very free flowering.

2½-in. pots, dozen, 75c; hundred, $5.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, $1.00; hundred, $7.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $1.75; hundred, $15.00.

GENERAL DE VIBRAYE—A favorite wherever seen. Very large heads of bright rose colored flowers. A splendid early forcing variety.

2½-in. pots, dozen, 85c; hundred, $6.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, $1.25; hundred, $8.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $2.00; hundred, $15.00; 5-in. pots, dozen, $3.00.

LA LORRAINE—Very large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink; has become a general favorite during the last two years.

2½-in. pots, dozen, 75c; hundred, $5.00; thousand, $45.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, $1.00; hundred, $7.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $1.75; hundred, $12.00; 5-in. pots, dozen, $3.00.

MONT ROSE—Immense panicles of clear flesh rose, entirely distinct. One of the very best early flowering varieties.

2½-in. pots, dozen, 85c; hundred, $6.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, $1.25; hundred, $8.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $2.00; hundred, $15.00.

MLLE. RENEE GAILLARD—Very large panicles of milky white, irregularly dentated flowers, which is certain to become popular; it is entirely distinct. One of the best growers of Hydrangeas says that this variety should really have been awarded the silver medal given to Mme. Emile Mouillere last year as the best white.

2½-in. pots, dozen, 85c; hundred, $6.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, $1.25; hundred, $8.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $2.00; hundred, $15.00; 5-in. pots, dozen, $3.00.

MME. MAURICE HAMAR—A delicate flesh rose color; a vigorous grower, the individual flowers as well as the trusses being very large; one of the easiest to force. Early.

2½-in. pots, dozen, 85c; hundred, $6.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, $1.25; hundred, $8.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $2.00; hundred, $15.00; 5-in. pots, dozen, $3.00.

MOUSSELINE (The Famous Blue Hydrangea)—With us a beautiful plumbago-blue. The introducer describes it as a beautiful mauve-rose with cream-colored center; the flower heads are large and held erect; a decided acquisition. If you desire a beautiful deep blue Hydrangea flower, get this one.

2½-in. pots, dozen, 75c; hundred, $5.00; thousand, $45.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, $1.00; hundred, $7.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $2.00; hundred, $15.00; 5-in. pots, dozen, $3.00.

MME. E. MOUILLERE—This has been the favorite white variety in the New York market this year, very free flowering, of good size and form. Awarded silver medal at the National Flower Show at Boston last year. A great favorite with English growers, one London grower known to us handling over thirty thousand of this variety alone.

2½-in. pots, dozen, 85c; hundred, $6.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, $1.25; hundred, $8.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $2.00; hundred, $15.00; 5-in. pots, dozen, $3.00.

ORNAMENT—Large pretty mauve-pink flowers; very free flowering.

2½-in. pots, dozen, 75c; hundred, $5.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, $1.00; hundred, $7.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $1.75; hundred, $12.00; 5-in. pots, dozen, $3.00.

SOUVENIR DE MME. E. CHAUTARD—One of the very best, of splendid erect habit; very robust. Fine sized heads of bright rose colored flowers. One of the very best of the bouquet type.

2½-in. pots, dozen, 85c; hundred, $6.00; 3-in. pots, dozen, $1.25; hundred, $8.00; 4-in. pots, dozen, $2.00; hundred, $15.00; 5-in. pots, dozen, $3.00.

NEW CASTLE, IND.

On a recent trip to the South Park Floral Co., at New Castle, the writer was greatly impressed by the fine appearance of the roses and carnations. Casual mention of a few of the many novelties tried out by this concern may not be amiss. Never have I seen American Beauties show more thrift, both in length of stems and size of buds. Foliage clear to the ground speaks well for the man in charge. Jonkheer J. L. Mock, a rose of American Beauty type, shows up remarkably well, nearly all of the buds equaling American Beauty in size. This rose ought to prove valuable to the retailer as a substitute for American Beauty in times of scarcity. Next we have a real new one, Rostand, greatly similar to Sunburst, but more intense in its coloring. Then the handsomest, at the same time the most delicate and, above all, the most fragrant novelty of all is Cecile Brunner, here called My Sweetheart and in the east Mignon. Still it's the Cecile Brunner of California. The tiny buds, delicious fragrance and perfect rose coloring make it an invaluable asset for the small-sized colonial bouquets, so popular now as favors.

The fine condition of other roses of standard commercial value, such as Richmond, Ward, Sunburst, Killarney, White Killarney and Killarney Queen, was a pleasant sight and must be a source of great satisfaction to Mr. Heller. Here we also find, perfectly grown, the latest eastern novelty, Fire Flame, truly named, shading from a pale to a burnt orange. This rose will certainly hold its own for some time to come.

New Castle soil must contain magic, when we note the prosperous condition of the many varieties of carnations grown here. Among the newer ones we find two especially worthy of mention. Ruth, darker than Mrs. C. W. Ward and more like Rosette, is surely a winner. Then we have Golden Ray, a yellow carnation of great intensity of color. It seems to the writer that the day of the yellow carnation is at hand; the commercial value, in these times of demand for anything in yellow or orange, must appeal to everyone.

Among the mums, Wm. Turner, white, shows every indication of attaining enormous size here. Chrysolora needs no praise; we all know its many good qualities and here we see it as well grown as everything else.

Henry E. Klunder.

OUR NEW SEEDLING CARNATION PHILADELPHIA

We beg you to consider our new Seedling Carnation PHILADELPHIA and to ask yourself the question—

What Should One Expect of a Carnation?

As you answer your own question, point by point, you will be describing Philadelphia.

You will say it must be productive. Philadelphia is without a doubt the most productive carnation that has been introduced for some time.

It must be perfect in color. Philadelphia is strikingly beautiful in that respect—the rare and much-wanted true rose-pink.

It must produce large blooms. Philadelphia averages 3½ to 4 inches in diameter.

It must have long stems—a point in which Philadelphia is second to none.

Its absolutely non-splitting calyx, unusually strong constitution, wonderful root action and continuity of bloom are other points of merit which place it in the front rank of the best commercial varieties today.

PHILADELPHIA was first exhibited in Detroit in January, 1912, under No. 23, at the time the Rose and Carnation Societies held their conventions in that city. It attracted a great deal of attention and the following extracts from the trade papers may prove interesting reading:

"No. 23 is a true pink, one of the best colors among the new varieties at the show. This is a color that appeals to the flower buyers and as shown it has every appearance of being an acquisition." American Florist, January 20, 1912.

"There was nothing finer shown in the seedlings than this one, staged by Thomas F. Browne, Greenfield, Mich., as far as color is concerned. It is distinct from all other Carnations I have ever seen. I would call it a true Rose-pink, there isn't any other one could compare with it in this respect. Size and finish of the flowers leave nothing undesired."

Florists' Exchange, January 20, 1912.

BUT, we do not want you to take our word for all this. It would please us indeed, and we urge upon you to come out and see it for yourself at any time during the season that may suit your convenience. Seeing is believing. We venture to say that the sight of PHILADELPHIA at Mt. Clemens or Greenfield, Michigan, will surpass your own expectations. We say it in all sincerity that PHILADELPHIA is one of the most productive Carnations that was ever brought out, barring none.

Whether you grow for the wholesale or the retail trade, it will pay you to invest in PHILADELPHIA. Furthermore, as a wholesale grower, it would be to your own interest, before you place any order, to investigate the variety for yourself. If, for example, you are willing to spend One Hundred Dollars for Carnation Cuttings and give at least Five Hundred Dollars' worth of space to it, why not spend a few more dollars and see the Carnation with your own eyes? We want every grower to see Philadelphia growing and to those who have already placed their orders we are extending the privilege of cancellation if upon seeing the variety they conclude that they do not want it.

Mr. W. W. Wells, an eminent Chrysanthemum and Carnation grower of England, while on his recent travels in this country, made the following note about our variety:

"PHILADELPHIA is a true pink and the freest I have seen. It has a grand habit and is a great producer. Grand XXXXX (5 X's denoting Mr. Wells' unqualified stamp of approval on varieties seen in this country during his recent visit)."

We sent him One Thousand Plants, which he is growing now, and in a recent letter received from him, he tells us that "PHILADELPHIA is a doer" and that "the plants are bushy and beautiful."

We have an immense stock to propagate from and we expect no difficulty in filling orders. We have already booked to date over One Hundred and Seventy-five Thousand cuttings.

Watch PHILADELPHIA blooms at the different exhibitions this Fall. Any club or individual wishing blooms can have them at any time by dropping a postal to the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, 38 Broadway, Detroit, Michigan.

OH! JOY!!

Here is the Red Carnation we all have been looking for

For the last two years E. H. Blameuser, of Niles Center, Ill., has been shipping us cut blooms of a new red carnation—seedling raised on his place, he said. He seemed to cut, and cut, and cut, and cut—never off crop, and he always could go out and cut us a few more when we phoned him. So he named it JOY! He describes it as "a strong grower, early, very free and continuous bloomer, with strong calyx and good stem," to which we add that it is one of the best shippers we ever handled. Appreciating that here is a commercial red (perhaps scarlet is a better word) carnation, a real bread-and-butter red, one you all can grow at a profit, we have arranged to disseminate Joy in 1914 as exclusive selling agents. Jobbers can get it through us. The originator says it is so easy to root he can afford a low price, and we offer

ROOTED CUTTINGS, January delivery . . . $10.00 per 100, $80.00 per 1000

The trade is invited to visit Mr. Blameuser's place at Niles Center and see the variety growing.

The Market.

Trade remains about the same as last reported. We had some real summer weather, which caused stock to come along rapidly, bringing a plentiful supply of almost everything but roses into the market. So far we have had no frost to speak of, and never in many years have dahlias been so plentiful and of such fine quality as this year. Some of the stores have been featuring them in the windows and have sold many hundreds. Mums are, of course, getting more plentiful and better as the season advances. Snapdragons and gladioli are about gone.

Various Notes.

John Breitmeyer's Sons had a display of dahlias in their window the latter part of the week of October 5, from the dahlia farm of J. Baumann, at Birmingham, Mich., which was without doubt the finest seen in this vicinity. There were in all twenty-five varieties, all choice. On each vase the name of the variety was shown.

The weather permitting, a party of about 100 members of the Detroit Florists' Club will leave the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange building Friday morning, October 17, in automobiles, bound for Oxford, Mich., to visit Robert Unger and be his guests for the day.

B. Schroeter showed some beautiful varieties of dahlias, effectively arranged in hampers and baskets, in one of his windows. In the same window were also some specimen plants of the new Dracæna Rotheana and Nephrolepis Goodii.

The L. Bemb Floral Co. has been exceedingly busy with table decorations. This firm will stop at nothing to carry out an idea and it is nothing unusual for them to model designs out of clay and then bronze or color them to harmonize with some decorative scheme.

Mrs. Anna Marie Stahelin, mother of Albert Stahelin, of Redford, Mich., died October 10 and was buried October 13.

October 20 will be retailers' night at the Florists' Club meeting, and many questions of special importance to the retail florist will come up for discussion. Subjects have been assigned to several retailers, who are to give short talks.

The Market.

There has not been much change in trade conditions since last report. Business has not been all that could be wished, owing to the warm weather. There are dahlias and cosmos in plenty and they find a ready sale. Roses and carnations are being cut with longer stems, but until cooler weather has its effect the flowers will not be first-class.

Various Notes.

Julius Niednagel is in Egypt and will not be home for some time. His firm is having a nice cut of roses, carnations, dahlias, cosmos and snapdragons. Emil Niednagel says he has no complaint to make regarding business.

C. L. Niednagel has resumed shipments to St. Louis. He is cutting some fine Beauties, and while the stems of his Killarneys and other roses are short, the flowers are fine.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. reports the usual good business for this time of year. The firm is cutting plenty of roses, which are extra good. Some good carnations from the field are being cut.

Miss Nellie Goodge is cutting fine dahlias and cosmos, and a bench of snapdragons is in splendid bloom.

J. C. Elsperrmann has plenty to do right along. He had one especially good day last week.

Karl Zeidler is having a nice cut of roses and carnations. His Killarneys, Marylands and Kaiserins are especially good.

Mr. Winters, of the Evansville Floral Co., says business has been a little backward, owing to the warm weather. However, he reports having had several good decorations lately.

Royston & Fenton are cutting a good number of roses. Mr. Fenton, who is secretary of the Ohio Valley Fanciers' Association, says the florists have been liberal in giving plants and cut flowers as premiums for the coming poultry show, January 12 to 17, 1914.

Henry Seymour's carnations and mums are making a fine showing.

Mrs. M. L. Doerr has been advertising in the local papers. She keeps a nice stock on hand and is ready for any call for flowers. E. L. F.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

The retail business has been slack the last week. The out-of-town shipping business is brisk. Mums are getting more plentiful. There are few violets and they are poor. Roses are over-plentiful, but carnations are still scarce. Potted mums are now seen on the market, and also cyclamens.

Various Notes.

Dr. J. P. Parker, the orchid specialist of Santa Cruz, Cal., spent a few hours with us several days ago.

Fred Maler is adding two new houses, 25 x 200 feet, to his range of glass.

Graul Bros., the wholesale florists, are now using an automobile for delivering.

The monthly meeting of the Colorado Florists' Club was held October 6. E. Johnson, of the Pikes Peak Floral Co., of Colorado Springs, Colo., gave a talk to the members of the club on the past and present conditions of the florists' business.

L. Goodfriend, Pacific coast representative of Wertheimer Bros., of New York, stopped off between trains en route to the Pacific coast.

It is with regret that we announce the death of Wm. H. Grimes. The family has the deepest sympathy of the trade in their bereavement. A notice of his death appears in this week's obituary column. L.

DARK HARBOR, ME.

Malcolm McLeod, who came here from Bar Harbor a year or more ago, is doing a thriving landscape business among the wealthy summer cottagers. He is at present laying out a fine new golf course, on which he has a large number of men employed. He is just completing a fine new dwelling for himself and is planning the erection of greenhouses to care for his increasing trade. He owns a large and powerful motor boat.

Hit the Bull's Eye and Buy from the Firm that Protects your Interests

Now the time has arrived to stock up your store and greenhouses with the best quality stock the market produces. Every careful florist is turning over page after page of The Review and is anxious to find the ad—what their favored friend, Godfrey Aschmann, has to say. He is the fellow that has his heart in the right spot. They all can depend on him; he always has a smile and protects their interests. Look at that frog in our ad of Oct. 9—it means protection (not tariff protection). It means what all florist stores want—Protection to the Florist Trade; retail store keepers' protection.

TESTIMONIAL

Mr. Godfrey Aschmann, 1012 W. Ontario St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Dear Sir:—Yours of the 15th inst. has been received. We beg to state that the plants arrived in very good shape. We wish to express our highest approval of your method of packing and the general quality of goods you sent us.—W. J. Robinson.
Amount of order, $159.75. Speaks for itself. These goods were shipped by fast freight from North Philadelphia Aug. 29, 1913. Three weeks en route.

NEW CROP AZALEA INDICA has just arrived per Steamer Marquette from Ghent, Belgium, and had on board for me 75 cases of Azalea Indica of only the best selected varieties, raised for us for the last twenty years by an Azalea Specialist in Belgium. I tell you frankly that by buying your Azaleas from us you never get disappointed, either in size or variety. Our eyes are our judgment, you will receive just what you pay for; if you send us 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00 or more, you will receive your full value with no measurement quotations. We have the reputation for that; we do the right thing for everybody; and, my friends, please don't get angry when I say, cash with order, please—the profit on Azaleas is so small that we can run no risk whatever; we are not in business for fun, we cannot afford to pay duty, freight, etc. (which is from 50% to 60%).

AZALEA INDICA FOR CHRISTMAS FORCING.

Deutsche Perle (double white), Simon Mardner (double pink), Vervaeana (large flowering double variegated rose), White Vervaeana (double white), Pharalide Mathilde (double variegated) and Mme. Petrick (double early pink), 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50.

AZALEA INDICA, EASTER VARIETIES.

We have only those varieties that are much in demand, namely, Mme. Van der Cruyssen (double pink), Simon Mardner (double pink), Vervaeana, Niobe (double white), De Schryveriana, Apollo (double red) and a few more standard varieties, 40c, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. All well budded, as round as an apple.

FIELD CARNATION PLANTS.

I am receiving an extra large number of testimonials as to good results from my last year's stock. This year my stock is even better than last year. Irrigation took the plants through the drouth without injury and they are bright, thrifty, bushy plants now. A Syracuse grower who had some stock this fall says it is doing better than his own stock. A Raleigh, N. C., grower writes, "Send me 440 W. Enchantress; fine, bushy plants like what we got before (Sept. 10)."

FERNS—Continued

FERNS.

Now is the time to buy ferns for your fall trade. I have over 2000 and about half of them are the new Whitmani compacta—the kind that does not revert to the Boston frond. This is a handsomer fern than the old Whitmani. My fern stock is in fine shape and I guarantee, absolutely, to please every buyer. Order your large pot stock now, to be shipped before cold weather.

FROM BENCH:

Whitmani compacta, 5-in. 25c
